FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

On December 19th, 1881 the first regular meeting of the Fortnightly was held; our club has been in existence forty years. In order that the club as a whole may know its reputation from the time it was started to the present day, we take the liberty to repeat a remark made recently by one of our "City Fathers," a man who has been at the front in most of the civic affairs which have given us our beautiful Winchester.

"The women of the Fortnightly have put over every good thing that has been started in this town. Evening school, play ground and summer school, cooking and carpentry, all these have originated from The Fortnightly. We must live up to this reputation, our future must equal our past. The new year book will soon be out, a beautiful book decorated with our club seal; you will be pleased to see the feast of good things the Entertainment committee has laid out for you."

The millinery class, Miss Bunker teacher, will hold its first meeting on Thursday, Oct. 13th at 3 o'clock, in the Fortnightly Room, Lyceum Building. Those interested to join please notify Mrs. Corthell phone 1067.

Please bring scissors, tape measure, pins, thimble, also frame and material for a hat.

BANQUET AND ILLUSTRATED LECTURE AT FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

On Friday, Oct. 14th, at 6:45, in the Vestry of the First Congregational Church, the Men's Club will have their annual fall supper and entertainment. Scheluber will be the caterer as he was at last year's banquet. "Fine cats" and plenty of "smokes" are assured!

Dr. Hindes has imported a rare pianist for the occasion and will lead the men in the old-time songs.

Chaplain Russell of the Fishermen's Institute, Gloucester, will give an illustrated lecture on "Gloucester Fishermen at Work." Over 160 beautifully colored slides will be shown, describing all kinds of salt-water fishing. All ye lovers of fishing, come and see the deeds of these heroes of the "white collared seas!"

All men who attend the Church, whether members of the Club or not, are cordially invited and urged to be present.

DINNER POSTPONED

The dinner of the Winchester Civics and Trade Association, in process of organization by the Winchester Board of Trade, which was to have been held in the Town Hall last evening was postponed. Not all of the members of the Board of Trade are in accord with the new movement; not, apparently, through any question of its value to the town, but rather over the question as to who should have the power to undertake the forward step proposed. A meeting of the Board of Trade has been called for this evening, which will doubtless be largely attended, and at this meeting the question will be thoroughly gone over. The decision reached will govern the future action in the matter of forming the newer organization.

MISS SUSAN BELLE FOSTER

Miss Susan Belle Foster, aged 40 years, died at her home, 15 Norwood street, on Wednesday. She was a native of Saugus, but had spent the greater part of her life in West Medford, from which place she moved to Winchester about three years ago. She was the daughter of James E. and Susan (Wilson) Foster. She leaves one brother, Mr. Thomas L. Foster, and one sister, Miss Lillian M. Foster of this town.

The funeral services are to be held from the residence this Friday afternoon and will be conducted by Rev. Howard J. Chidley. The interment will be in Oak Grove Cemetery, Medford.

LEGION HOUSE WHICH IS TO BE OFFICIALLY OPENED ON COLUMBUS DAY

LEGION LAWN CARNIVAL

The committee in charge of the Legion Lawn Carnival to be held on the lawn of the Town Hall and Legion House in the afternoon and evening of Columbus Day, October 12th, have announced some new features.

In addition to the attractions already mentioned, the following are announced:

The Winton Club has consented to take charge of a bag table. There will be bags of all types and descriptions, such as skating bags, knitting bags, shopping bags and hand bags. Their specialty will be however, a bag for school books. This bag has been highly recommended and endorsed by the school authorities.

The Fortnightly Club has arranged to have Madame Zuoh, the celebrated palmist on the grounds to read fortunes. This promises to be one of the most interesting features of the carnival. In addition the Fortnightly is to have a cake and candy table where it will be possible to obtain the finest of home-made candy and cake.

The Kum-O-Mist Club has most generously volunteered their services to decorate the American Legion booths which are to be erected on the grounds next Monday. Not content with this, these same young ladies have arranged to have some of their members dressed in Oriental costumes selling cigars and cigarettes on the grounds.

The Sigma Beta Sorority will take charge of two attractions for the children. The first will consist of rides around the grounds in pony carts. The second is a grab—"The Old Lady Who Lived in a Shoe." This will involve everything else delight the children and amuse their parents. Don't overlook this feature!

The En Ka Sorority is to have charge of the things which satisfy the inner man. There will be a tea room at which will be sold coffee, doughnuts and sandwiches; a booth well supplied with ice cream cones, frankfurts, etc., and a refreshment table in the Town Hall in connection with the dance.

The committee in charge of the carnival wish to express their appreciation, and to announce their indebtedness to George W. Blanchard & Company who have donated free of charge, the lumber to erect the booths; George R. Poland, who has donated his services in connection with the erection of the booths; Edmund C. Sanderson for the free use of electrical equipment; Winchester Laundries, Inc. for the free offer of their orchestra, and the Winchester "Star" for the publicity which the editor has accorded the committee in charge of the carnival.

In case of rain or threatening weather the carnival will be postponed to the following Saturday, Oct. 15th.

An invitation is extended to all the World War Veterans in town whether members of the Legion or not to march in the parade. Every service man is requested to be in uniform. There will be, however, a section in the parade for those not in uniform.

The concert program of the Waltham Watch Band, conducted by Carl W. Leitsinger, will be as follows:

March—"Mothers of Democracy" Panella
Overture—"Post and Precent" Simon
Intermezzo—"Wedding of the Rose" Jossell
Selections from—"The Folies" Cohen
Dance—"A Cavalry Charge" Linder
Fantasia—"The Opera Mirror" Toland
Selections from—"The Prince of Pilsen" Luders
Medley—"Southern Airs" Foster Characteristic—"Musical Scenes from Spain" Langley
Finale—"American Patrol" Meneham

The parade will start at 2 o'clock from the Legion House on Washington street, and will be in the following order:

Marshall.
Police Detail.
Color Guard.
Firing Squad of the Legion.
Winchester Post of the American Legion.

Waltham Watch Band.
Colors and delegations from Lexington, Woburn, Stoneham and Arlington Posts of the American Legion.
Sons of Veterans.
Grand Army of the Republic.
Boy Scouts.
Girl Scouts.

Winchester Hospital Nurses Training School.
Troop of young ladies on horse back.
Selectmen of Winchester.
Fire Department.
Decorated floats, trucks and cars.

Marching organizations will assemble in front of the Wadleigh School and east on Mt. Vernon street. Automobiles, floats, trucks and decorated cars will assemble on Washington street north from the Baptist Church. The parade starts at 2 p. m.

It is the earnest desire of the committee that the entire town turn out for the parade and the carnival. Any money which may be raised by the Legion on this day will be used first for the purpose of taking care of Winchester's disabled and needy World War veterans and second for furnishing more completely the new Legion house.

Come and see the boys' new home! Come and have a rousing good time!

GIFTS TO THE LEGION

Mr. E. Alden Bigelow, treasurer of the E. Howard Clock Co., has presented to the Legion a handsome wall clock for use in its new quarters. It is an eight-day clock and the outside finish of fumed oak is in keeping with other furniture of the house.

Mr. Robert E. Fay has had framed and given to the Winchester Post a group of pictures, which he himself took, of the 1921 Memorial Day parade.

An anonymous donor presented a pool table which is now in use in the Legion House.

These gifts add materially to the usefulness and attractiveness of the building, and the members of the Legion appreciate very much the spirit of those who have so kindly and generously contributed to the furnishing of the house.

Another thing which the Legion men very much appreciate is that, since its opening, it has been constantly supplied with fresh flowers from the garden of Mrs. Alonzo F. Woodside. Her thoughtfulness in thus adding to the attractiveness of the rooms is the subject of grateful comment by the men as they learn who it is that is so kindly remembering them.

LEGION MEETING

The annual meeting for the nomination of officers of Winchester Post 97 of the American Legion takes place next Monday evening, October 10th, at the Legion House. At that time plans will also be announced for the parade on Columbus Day. The importance of this meeting should not be underestimated by the members, who will, it is hoped, turn out in good numbers. Refreshments and a social hour will follow the business meeting.

FIREMEN RESCUED HORSE

Box 45 was sounded Wednesday afternoon at 4:25 o'clock to call the assistance of the firemen in rescuing a horse which had fallen in Russell Brook. The animal was out at pasture, and whether the brook, greatly famed in the past for its unsavory odor and quality, proved too much for the animal or not is unknown.

At any rate, he fell into it and in his struggles got on his back and became helpless. He was hauled out in an exhausted condition by the firemen. The horse was owned by James P. McCue of Sheridan circle.

MUSIC GARDEN

The season of 1921-22 was opened Tuesday evening by a meeting at the home of Mr. Joshua Phippen, Myrtle Terrace.

Evidence of a healthy interest in matters musical is shown by the enthusiastic support given by our people to this club, the membership list of which is now filled, with new applications being constantly received.

The program of Tuesday was especially interesting. The opening number being a beautiful rendition by Mrs. Woodsum (Violin) and Mr. Phippen (Piano) of the noble Sonata for these instruments composed by Cesar Franck. The remainder of the program was devoted to a study of the works of that gifted master of melody, Franz Schubert, and commanded the closest attention of all present.

CARE GIVEN STAR DELIVERY

To the Editor of The Star:

Will you kindly allow me a little space to reply to your article in last week's "Star" regarding delayed delivery of your publication mailed to other localities?

Since I have had charge of this office I have it a point to personally see that all of the "Star's" delivered here to be mailed out of town were given proper and expeditious treatment, and I can vouch for the fact that every one of them, each week, is out of this office by 3 o'clock on the afternoon of the day we receive them, and I am assured that has always been the case.

The writer will welcome any constructive criticism at all times, and any written complaints will receive conscientious consideration and courteous treatment.

Your readers may be interested to know that the Rural Delivery man takes out on an average 500 pieces a day and travels over 18 miles a trip. The regular carriers average to take out and deliver on an average from 600 to 800 pieces a day each.

LAUNDRY OWNERS SEEKING BETTER UNDERSTANDING

"Visit Your Laundry Week" to Make Patrons More Familiar With Modern Laundries

Although the laundry is said to be doing the family washing for more than a million American homes, it is yet a little known institution to many citizens. This, say local laundry owners, explains the reason for "Visit Your Laundry Week" which is to be observed nationally, October 24 to 29.

Locally, every laundry will keep open house during this week. Its doors will be open to all comers, and a cordial invitation will be extended every citizen to drop in and see what is being done there.

Guests will be shown how the family bundle is checked, marked for identification, and sorted. They will see the wash-room, where the most modern of washers replace the spinning wash-tub and wash-board, while flaring baskets do the work of the domestic wringer.

Other interesting pieces of laundry equipment which will perform for the visitors are drying tumblers, perforated cylinders in which the damp clothes are revolved while a current of warm air plays on them; steam-heated presses of various types which are used to iron most of the family wearing apparel which comes to the laundry; large flat work ironers which care for the table and bed linen and other big pieces; shirt finishing units; collar finishing equipment, curtain dryers and conveyors which carry garments from one department to another.

If Milady cares to wait an hour or two she can, it is said, see her whole week's washing and ironing done before her eyes. In any event she will have an opportunity to visit every department of the plant and to see every operation through which the family bundle goes in the modern laundry.

SUNDAY MUSIC AT UNITARIAN CHURCH

The program of music at the Winchester Unitarian Church for next Sunday is as follows:

Organ Prelude
Andante Beethoven Quartet
Come before His presence Martin

Solo—Eye Hath Not Seen Gaul Quartet—Consider and Hear Me Liggett

Organ Postlude—Allegro Mendelssohn

A hearing has been called for the parents of pupils of the Wyman School by the School Committee, to be held at that school this evening. The meeting will discuss the recent changes made to care for the extra children now in attendance. The committee decided to put one room on part time, to which some of the parents object. It is possible that the question may lead to the Town's purchasing a portable school house.

MRS. J. ARABELLE PUNCHEDARD

DEATH OF MRS. EDWARD O. PUNCHEDARD

Mrs. Julia Anabelle Punchedard, widow of Edward O. Punchedard, formerly a partner of Harvey D. Parker of the Parker House in Boston, died on Monday, in her sixty-third year, at her home 89 Church street. She was born in Manchester, N. H., the daughter of Dr. Charles H. and Julia P. (Morse) Walker, who moved to Chelsea when Mrs. Punchedard was a child. She was educated at Mrs. Blake's private school in Chelsea and at the Chelsea High School. Mr. and Mrs. Punchedard were married on Oct. 2, 1893. The former, who died in 1917, was a nephew of Harvey D. Parker, in his day one of the best-known hotel men in the United States.

Mrs. Punchedard had made her home in Winchester since June 1891. In her earlier years, she was well known in the community as a soprano soloist. She was a member of the Fortnightly Club and had served as its president for four years. She was a member also of the Presidents' Club of Boston. She was long an active worker in the Church of the Epiphany.

Mrs. Punchedard is survived by her daughter, Mrs. A. D. Radley of Winchester and a sister, Mrs. Henrietta P. Walker of Agassiz street, Cambridge. The burial service for her was read at her former home yesterday afternoon at 3:30, by Rev. John W. Suter, Jr., and Rev. Murray W. Dewart, rector of the Church of the Epiphany.

"HE DID"

There came to the Winchester Laundries, about ten years ago, a fellow named Carruthers, whom now most of you know. When he was twenty, often we all heard him declare: "To marry, he would never, that he could solemnly swear. When five more years were added, making twenty-five, He made the same old promise, as sure as he's alive. But, alas, as he grew older, and registered "25" Friend Cupid got so busy, it was only a matter of time. So on Oct. 6th, in the morning, at 8:30 o'clock, The Winchester Laundries office folks surprised him on the spot. He couldn't see for a minute, confetti rained supreme, and all the girls, well you know how girls can scream! He found all their good wishes around an electric lamp, and then about his office, those same girls did camp. With best of congratulations, and good wishes too, for him and his bride from Waltham, when they both say, "I Do."

Miss Alice Nichols, formerly of Winchester has been visiting her father at the home of Mr. Herbert P. Poole. She has returned to New York where she is meeting with great success in her musical endeavors. She wishes to be remembered to her numerous friends in Winchester.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Kempton have had as their guest for the past two weeks, Miss Winnifred Brown of St. John, N. B.

BIG NAVAL BALL AT MELROSE, OCTOBER 11TH

Local Naval Battalion to be Re-organized

During the last few days there has been a great deal of publicity in the paper in regard to the orders from the Navy Department disbanding practically the entire U. S. Naval Reserve. This has called forth just criticism from high officials all over the country, for with the second largest navy in the world as regards fighting ships we are near the bottom of the list for reserves to man them. It especially becomes a matter of great interest to the section north of Boston because in the short space of nine months a mere handful of Reservists have built up one of the strongest, if not the strongest, Naval Battalion in the whole of New England—a battalion which as regards efficiency, growth, attendance, recruits, etc., leads all others.

However, in order that the citizens might know more about the Navy and the Naval Battalion they decided to run a big Naval Ball on Tuesday evening, Oct. 11th, at Memorial Hall, Melrose. In order to have it in keeping with the prestige of the Navy the Governor and Lieutenant-Governor with their wives expect to attend, as well as many high ranking Naval and Army officers, and Mayors and prominent persons from surrounding cities. The proceeds, after expenses, are to be turned over to the hospitalization work among the disabled veterans as the Melrose Naval Battalion is officially disbanded as a paid organization.

Te Deum E flat Dudley Buck

"There is a land beyond the setting sun" Smitten
"Fear not, O Israel" Spicker
"King all Glorious" Barnby
Mr. Chidley will give an address in the series on "Texts that have Carved Empires" speaking briefly on "Francis Xavier's Text." The public is cordially welcome at these services.

PUBLIC EVENING SCHOOL

The same lessons will be taken that are made the basis for examination for citizenship, and when a class is ready to take an examination an examiner will come to the school to give it.

At the High School instruction will be offered in typewriting, stenography, bookkeeping and commercial arithmetic. Classes in other subjects will be provided if a sufficient number of pupils are interested.

Sessions will be held Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

The attention of employers is called to the law requiring illiterate minors to attend evening school. These will go to the Chapin School.

WINCHESTER LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

The first regular meeting of the Winchester League of Women Voters for the season was held in the small Town Hall Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Bertram Bernard, the new chairman, presided. The subject before the meeting was the Winchester Public Schools.

Mrs. Rho Zueblin as chairman of Publicity for the School Committee announced that Mrs. George Root and Mr. Dunbar S. Carpenter would speak to the women's and men's organizations of Winchester concerning the schools, the knowledge thus gained to be used as a basis for constructive criticism.

Mrs. Root gave a very straightforward talk on "Winchester Schools as They Are," outlining the present school plant and showing in what way the various buildings and grounds are inadequate for the present need. She said that the School Committee hoped to eventually have the Six-Three-Three System in the schools, six elementary, three Junior High and three High School grades. The age of admission to the kindergarten and the first grade was raised this year because it was decided that many children were entering the High School at too early an age to be capable of judging for themselves which course they were best fitted to pursue.

Mrs. Root was followed by Mr. Charles Zueblin who said that at present Winchester was undergoing a civic revival which, among other things, was bound to end in her building the much needed new school houses. He said that the "little old red school house" had served well its purpose, it was now high time to let in plenty of light and air on educational matters. The average child is an individual child, let him emerge so from his school. No child is fitted to go out into the world as an American citizen unless he has spent some part of his time in the public schools. No child is fitted to go out into the world unless he has been so trained as to be able to earn his living with his hands. Elasticity is the keynote to the character of the school of today. Many of the most progressive communities now have a Junior High School and a Junior College.

In closing, Mr. Zueblin said that a school program for a progressive community such as Winchester should have two fundamental principles actuating it,—firstly, to have something so notable as to attract others to see and imitate and secondly, to allow no others to do anything any better than we are doing it.

"Make the world come and look on by putting the spiritual content into this new building enterprise" he concluded.

That the meeting was of real interest to those present was shown by the fact that many joined in the discussion which followed, including Mr. John R. Fausey, superintendent of schools, and a large proportion of those present.

The following was unanimously passed: Resolved that the Winchester League of Women Voters hereby express their hearty approval of the stand taken by the Board of Selectmen of Winchester, refusing to grant permits for the erection of Billboards in our town; we pledge our united efforts in combating any attempt to erect Billboards in Winchester, and urge the rejection of any application for renewal of any permits which may have been granted previously within our town.

LET'S GET TOGETHER

Sentiment regarding the reorganization of the Winchester Board of Trade has developed rapidly during the past week. Some of this sentiment is adverse, and the reason, in our judgment, is two-fold. One is that the membership was not consulted regarding the starting of the campaign, and the other is that Winchester has enough organizations to do its work. One thing is certain, however, and that is that the movement is an important one, else Winchester could not be roused to the pitch that it is.

The opposition that has developed is unfortunate, from our viewpoint, for surely the plan is an admirable one, requiring only the unselfish service of enough interested citizens to finance an institution that has come to be regarded as indispensable in a city or town. Let us take up the reasons for that opposition, as we see it.

First, the membership was not consulted. That seems to be pretty well established and admitted. We are told elsewhere that the membership is not usually consulted in such a case, either because of lack of such membership, or lack of interest in the membership, when there is one. That was somewhat the case in Winchester, so it is only fair to assume that the directors acted in good faith when they sought to revive the organization by bringing in new blood and a new method of operation. They had no more to gain by the revivification of the organization than any other citizen, therefore we must believe that they were well-intentioned.

There is the other objection, which is that Winchester is strongly organized. But if Winchester has many organizations, so have other cities—and other cities and towns insist on having good, live community organizations. The prospectus of the organization says of such a body:

"Obviously it cannot be a church, nor a political or social club. It cannot be an association devoted exclusively to trade or industrial activities. It must combine civic as well as commercial interests."

If that is so, and we believe it is, then we must have such an organization. Surely we can profit by the experience of other cities and towns, which find such institutions essential. Winchester should be big enough and broad enough not to quibble over a technicality and grasp this opportunity to get together in one big organization in which we have a reasonable assurance that we can make progress toward establishing a unity of thought as concerns Winchester that cannot help but be beneficial.

CALIFORNIA'S ENCHANTED ISLANDS

Nine American islands off the coast of California, a number of them inhabited, and some important to mariners because of the lighthouses and telegraphic stations upon them, are claimed by Mexico, according to dispatches from Mexico City. These islands are the subject of the following bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society from its Washington, D. C., headquarters.

"The climate of the southern California mainland has acquired a world-wide reputation because of its mildness and equability; but the climate of the islands lying from twelve to fifty miles off its coast is praised by visitors as even more delightful. Surrounded by the blue Pacific under a semitropic sun but fanned by ocean breezes, they are a land of perpetual summer and can be imagined to merit the title, 'enchanted isles' that some enthusiasts have bestowed on them.

"All of the California islands are rough and most of them too small to be abundantly supplied with water. They are therefore of little importance agriculturally. On several of them, however, sheep and goats are raised in considerable numbers. The largest of the islands, Santa Cruz only about 25 miles south of Santa Barbara, has some vineyards and orange groves.

Home of the Glass-Bottom Boat

"Santa Catalina, which has been developed as a pleasure resort is the best known of the islands. On a beautiful little crescent bay of that island, facing the mainland 25 miles to the east, the town of Avalon has been built. Thousands of tourists visit the place every year in the steamers which run regularly from San Pedro. Avalon is the main Pacific coast headquarters for the big game fishing, the adjacent waters abounding in tuna, sea-bass and swordfish. The little town has built quite an industry in the mounting of specimens of these great fishes that they may adorn the trophy rooms of sportsmen.

"The greatest and most appealing of Catalina's charms are its under sea gardens. Scores of boats with glass bottoms, ranging in size from rowboats to river steamers, ply the waters in and about Avalon Bay. From these novel craft thousands of visitors to the island look down into the clear waters where they may see beautiful vegetable forms that make up sea meadows and forests and the interesting fishes and other creatures that thrive abundantly in this sheltered sea nook. It is estimated that more than $100,000 is invested in the glass-bottom fleet of Catalina.

Rose From the Sea

California owes her off-shore islands not to the drifting sands as the southern sections of the Atlantic coast owe theirs, but to the fact that the State is the center of one of the most active regions geologically in the world in recent geological times. San Clemente, the southernmost of all the islands, has risen from the sea, according to geologists until its topmost peak has an altitude of over 1900 feet, Santa Catalina, on the other hand, has been sinking, though evidences of the slow movement are not apparent to laymen.

"None of the California islands is of any great extent. Santa Cruz, the largest, is 21 miles long and has an average width of five miles. It is also the highest, having a peak which reaches an altitude of 2,407 feet. Santa Barbara Island is only one and one-half miles long and one mile wide. The three Anacapa islands which almost touch, are together slightly larger, but the individual sections are smaller. These islands are generally considered one.

"The Farallones, though small, are probably the most useful of the islands. They are a group of rocky islets about 20 miles directly off the Golden Gate, the entrance of San Francisco's wonderful harbor. Past these islets streams an important part of the commerce of the world, and from them are flashed by submarine cable reports of arriving and departing ships. On the largest of the islets is situated Farallone light which throws the first welcoming beam of America to ships bound to San Francisco from across the Pacific and out of the South Seas.

"The California islands played a part in the history of the west coast. Cabrillo, the first European to sail north of the present Mexican line on the Pacific coast discovered them in 1542, died on one of them and was buried there. Viscaino, another Spanish explorer, surveyed them in 1602, gave them their present names and strengthened Spain's claims on them. There was no actual occupation of the islands until after 1769 when the first settlement in Alta California was made at San Diego, on the mainland near the islands. During the gold rush of '49, Catalina was occupied by United States troops.

"When Mexican independence was gained the islands passed with the mainland from Spanish to Mexican

Service the True Function

Primitive man was dependent upon his own efforts for the necessities of life. Heat and light came from fuel dragged from the nearby woods. The only power was man's brawn and the domestic beasts.

Today public utility companies supply very many of our daily necessities.

This is pre-eminently true of the gas business. Your Gas Company is not content simply to supply you with so many thousand cubic feet of gas. It furnishes gas when and where and in what quantity you want it. It virtually cooks your meals, heats your rooms, lights your home. It offers you a service you could not do without; and back of it are trained labor, substantial investment and a directing genius, all working together to merit your good will by efficient, faithful service.

Curfew Has Worked Well.

In the Middle Ages a bell was rung as a signal for fires to be covered up for the night and consequently for the people to go to bed. The word curfew is derived from the French words, couvrir, to cover, and feu, fire. In the United States a curfew has been sounded to warn young people to be within doors unless accompanied by adults. It is said that over 3,000 towns and cities in this country now have curfew ordinances and some of them report as large a decrease as 80 per cent in juvenile delinquency since the enactment of such laws.—Exchange.

Material of Comets' Tails.

Exactly what comets' tails are made of is one of the unsolved problems of astronomy, but the theory most generally accepted is that they are formed from particles of the comet itself, forced away by the pressure of sunlight, as they apparently increase in size and activity the nearer the comet gets to the sun.

First Oriental Rugs.

Rugs in the Orient are mentioned by classical writers of a very early period. There are some rare specimens in the museum at Cairo, Egypt, which date from at least 1150 B. C.

HIGH SCHOOL SURVEY

Students of the Winchester High School have just given a full and complete answer to a question that has been asked concerning the reorganization campaign, namely,
"What can such an organization do?"

They have submitted in all, 67 different recommendations in answer to a questionnaire submitted by the organization of the Board of Trade.
The questionnaire contained other questions, some of which will be helpful to the school authorities, but the recommendations for improvements in Winchester are of the most vital interest to the present citizens as indicating the trend of the thought of their children.

Two entirely opposite recommendations vie with each other for first place. One of these is for the clima-nation of the grade crossing, and the other is for movies in Winchester.
Better school building is also a favorite recommendation, and other public buildings come in for criticism in an indirect way by recommendation for a new public library and a new postoffice.

There was a total of 162 answers received. Nearly all of them answered the first question which was:
What occupation do you intend to take up when you finish your schooling?

An interesting trend is revealed here. Fourteen of them desire to be stenographers, but there are 11 others who wish to come private secretaries. In other words, the girls seem to be striving upward to better occupations.

There were 157 who answered the second question, which was:

Do you intend to remain permanently in Winchester? Of the number answering this, 33 per cent, approximately are going to leave, according to their present thought.
One hundred and five will stay and 16 are doubtful. Of the reasons given for refusing to stay, it is in most cases due to the fact that there is not enough opportunity here.

The summarized answers are as follows:

SPECIAL MEETING OF THE BOARD OF TRADE

Regarding the alleged dissolution of the Board of Trade, that is best answered by the publication of the following letter sent to the members regarding tonight's meeting.

October 4, 1921.

To the Members of the Winchester Board of Trade:

Gentlemen:
Some misunderstanding has arisen regarding the present and future status of the Board of Trade as a result of the reorganization campaign now going on. Here are the facts in the matter:

1. The Winchester Board of Trade is still in existence and there is no

- | | |
|--|---|
| thought of its going out of existence. | 8 |
| 2. The purpose of the present campaign is to enlarge the membership, increase the financial strength and broaden the scope so that we may be more effective in our service of Winchester and all its interests. | 1 |
| 3. The officers and directors of the Board of Trade have resigned to take effect only when their successors are elected by the enlarged membership.
They are now on the job conducting the affairs of the organization as usual. | 1 |
| 4. The proposed reorganization procedure, thoroughly in accordance with the spirit and letter of the constitution and especially of last year's decision to broaden the basis of membership, is as follows: | 1 |
| a. The securing of application for membership from all citizens who are willing to pay dues of $15.00 per year. | 1 |
| b. The election of applicants to membership by the present Board of Directors. | 1 |
| c. Consideration of desirable amendments to the constitution. The Campaign Committee recommends that the name be changed to "The Winchester Civics and Trade Association." | 1 |
| d. Election of officers and directors. | 1 |

When these successive steps have been taken Winchester will have an organization for the accomplishment of community desires on a par with other progressive cities and towns. Although the emphasis is to be changed from class service to community service the organization will be in a position greatly to increase its usefulness to the present members. A paid secretary will be possible on account of our increased financial strength; if there were no other advantages, this alone would make the reorganization well worth while.

I believe, however, that we who are in business in Winchester are as desirous of serving the interests of the whole town as is any class of our population. We extend a cordial hand of welcome to all in Winchester who will unite with us to make an ever better and better town.
For further discussion of the development there will be a special meeting of the Board of Trade in campaign headquarters, 555 Main street,
Friday, October 7, at 7:30 P. M.

Faithfully yours,
George T. Davidson.

Mr. Robert H. Bean, who is well known to many Winchester people, has been put to a great deal of annoyance recently owing to newspaper accounts of the misapplication of funds by one Robert L. Bean, Cashier of the Meganticook National Bank of Camden, Maine. The unfortunate similarity of names and the coincidence that both are in the banking business has caused much confusion among friends of Mr. Robert H.
Bean who has for some years been identified with prominent banking interests in New York City and who is in no way related to, or connected with, the Robert L. Bean referred to in the newspaper dispatches.

NEED NOT HAVE PUNCTURES?

Use Kor-Ker in your Tires and Save Tire Trouble I Plug Punctures and take that tired feeling out of tires.

I live inside your inner tube and I INSTANTLY find and PERMANENTLY plug every puncture "on the run," without loss of air.

I locate and seal forever those sneaky little porous places in your tube which cause SLOW-LEAKS—the daddy of all flat tires, rim-cuts, stone-bruises and blow-outs.

I keep the rubber of your tube soft and elastic. I LAST FOREVER—I never dry out, harden, gum, ferment, or clog your valves.

I DO NOT FILL YOUR TIRES. I take up only 6% of the air space and weigh almost nothing.

The best part of it all is that I SAVE YOU MONEY.

A TRIP TO HAWAII'S ACTIVE VOLCANO

Editor of the Star:

I enclose an account of my excursion to Hawaii's active volcano, Kilauea, thinking you might care to print it in the Star. Since my visit there about ten days ago, the report reached me that the molten lava is rising rapidly—about 12 feet per day—so that another overflow seems imminent. This is a most wonderful country to the eyes of the new-comer—such a wealth of natural beauty is well-nigh impossible to describe!

Yours very truly,
David A. Somes.

Pleasanton Hotel,
Honolulu, T. H.

Thursday, Sept. 8, 1921.

Leaving here on Tuesday evening, August 30, by the S. S. "Buckeye State," we arrived at Hilo on the island of Hawaii early the next morning after a smooth trip of about 250 miles. Hawaii lies in a southeasterly direction from Oahu and is the most southerly island of the group as well as the largest of all, containing 4015 square miles, or twice the area of the other seven combined; its population is 65,000. Here are found the two highest peaks in all the islands—Mauna Kea and Mauna Loa, each being nearly 14,000 feet elevation and snow-capped; here too is the only active volcano, Kilauea, 4000 feet high and about 30 miles southwest of Hilo, in the heart of the Hawaiian National Park.

From the dock we passed over a fine concrete road to the city which is nearly three miles from the wharf. In the forenoon our party rode to Paauhau by train, skirting the North-east coast, but at a high elevation after the first ten miles; this line was completed about ten years ago at a cost of nearly $4,000,000; of the 44 trestle bridges we crossed, 14 are of steel from 100 to 230 feet high, and from 400 to 1000 feet long, and are striking pieces of remarkable engineering. Our route lay along the ledges of high bluffs which descended precipitously for a thousand feet to the sea; we crossed frequent deep gorges filled with dense tropical growth and containing rushing mountain streams and high waterfalls—there were two tunnels through the mountains, the longer one three-quarters of a mile in length. An official of the Santa Fe Railroad described this scenic trip as, next to the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, the most remarkable he ever saw; the round trip distance is 80 miles and occupied 5 hours; a good buffet lunch was served in the observation car by two Japanese girls in native costumes.

Returning to Hilo at 2:30 we were driven by automobile 31 miles to the Volcano House at Kau, which is located as near to Kilauea as is thought safe; the latest eruption of note was in 1919, although only last March the lava rose and overflowed the rim of the crater. The roads from Hilo were perfect in some sections, equal to any found in Massachusetts; there were, at intervals, stretches of ordinary dirt roads which were rough—the route gradually ascends, first through immense sugar cane plantations, and small villages composed principally of the homes of the laborers at these cane fields, then after a few miles a change in vegetation was noticeable and there were no more palms, cane-fields or bananas, but still plenty of flowers everywhere, mangoes and an abundance of wild guavas in all stages of ripeness, and clumps of wild ginger with its large bunches of fragrant yellow blossoms; at about 3000 feet we left all these behind and came then to tree-ferns, eucalyptus, and other growth which was new to me; the air became cooler, then chilly and misty, until after a rather hard ride of two hours we reached the Volcano House at an elevation of 4000 feet, and from here had our first view of the crater which is 8 miles in circumference with perpendicular walls 600 feet in height; the floor of this pit has an area of 2650 acres and is filled with a vast area of solidified lava which has hardened into fantastically contorted shapes; jets of steam or vapor continually issue from the cracks and crevices. Near the center of the pit is the active portion of the volcano, which the natives call Halemaumau (House of Everlasting Fire); this inner pit is a mile in circumference and contains at all times a sea of molten lava, its red hot waves rising and falling in slow imitation of the ocean, and occasionally throwing up spurts of liquid fire; periodically this sea of lava rises, sometimes dropping back before the top is reached, but occasionally overflowing the rim of the pit and spreading out over the floor of the main crater; the latest occurrence being last March. The sight of this seething white-hot sea is weird and fascinates the beholder for hours; we remained until after dark and then indeed the scene is truly thrilling and defies description. Our U. S. Government working with the Hawaiian Volcano Research Association, maintains an observatory and seismological station near the edge of the crater in charge of Prof. Jagger whom our Government sent to Martinique immediately after the Mount Pelée disaster there, about 15 years ago.

From deep cracks in the solidified lava upon which we stood, issued warm vapor, or steam, which at times felt uncomfortably hot on one's ankles and some of the party scorching the soles of their shoes; one nearby fissure was red hot at only 6 inches from the surface and offered a good opportunity to slightly burn the corners of post cards to send to friends as souvenirs. Literally it seemed as though we were "standing upon the roof of Hell."

The entire surroundings for miles present a prospect of dreary desolation over which a chilly wind sweeps constantly, and after a little time the effect of this weird, almost uncanny, outlook brings a powerful sense of depression and repulsion, and the average person is glad to leave it and to return to more congenial surroundings. We returned to the Volcano House about 8 o'clock, where the night was passed; two open fires in the living rooms gave out a little grateful warmth, the outside temperature being 60 degrees, but extremely damp and cheerless; as I had been told that it would be cool, I wore a woolen suit and light-weight overcoat. My bed was very cold and damp with so strong an odor of mustiness as to be nauseating; I was very glad when morning came and lost no time in getting started for Hilo where I arrived at 9:30; this city is second in importance to Honolulu and has a climate much like Port Antonio, and the Hilo Hotel reminded me strongly of the old Titchfield in its type and surroundings; there are seven or eight cottages containing bed rooms similar to those at Port Antonio and as Hilo is more humid than Honolulu, vegetation in the hotel gardens is more dense and rank. There is a very handsome Federal building here built in 1915, and during that year a Congressional party from Washington visited Hilo and former speaker Joseph Cannon officiated at the laying of the corner stone; a portion of the building is occupied by the postoffice. A very attractive hospital is nearby with beautiful palm-shaded, extensive grounds in which perfect quiet reigned; Hilo has no street cars. We drove out to the North a couple of miles and viewed Rainbow Falls where a large volume of water has a drop of about 75 feet amid wild surroundings—as the sky was overcast when we were there, no rainbow greeted us.

At 5 p. m. the "Buckeye State" drew out from the dock and headed again for Honolulu where we arrived about 5:30 next morning. I was very glad to get back here, for, while the sights at Kilauea should surely be seen by everyone and are well worth some personal inconveniences and slight hardships, still the experiences at the Volcano House with some unpleasant aftermath left an impression which detracted in a measure, and I would not care to repeat the trip. In a few days I expect to go out to the pineapple district with the resident superintendent for the California Packing Corporation the proprietors of the famous Delmonte brand of canned fruits and, I believe, the largest packers in the Islands and in California; and as active work is in progress the visit should be instructive and interesting.

The "Buckeye State" left here last evening for San Francisco and Baltimore and it seemed like parting from an old friend; my associations in the month spent on board were all agreeable and the memories of the entire voyage most pleasant. Her cargo as reported to me was as follows:

Tons	Pounds	Bags
Sugar, 5,500	11,000,000	88,000 @ $1.25 ea.
Canned Pineapple, 4,500	9,000,000	180,000 @ .50 ea.
	10,000	20,000,000
		268,000 pkgs.

If we call the average weight of a carload 50,000 pounds, we find that her cargo totals approximately 400 carloads; estimating the average length of a freight car to be 40 feet the train of 400 cars would have a length of about 3 miles. When we consider that she was not loaded to capacity, and that this represents but one steamer's cargo, and that the sailings for the Pacific mainland alone will average at least two each week, some idea of the volume of exportation in these two items will be gained—in addition to steamship lines to San Francisco, there are regular sailings to the Orient, to Seattle, and to the South Sea Islands, Australia and New Zealand.

One very noticeable feature of the Hawaiian language is its softness and musical quality which is largely due to the fact that every syllable ends with a vowel, and only seven consonants are used:—h, k, l, m, n, p, w—the use of the letter k is very frequent.

The city of Honolulu has splendid electric street-car service with long distance 5-cent fares and a generous transfer plan; the telephone service is the new automatic system which our New England Company is planning to soon install; I have noticed automobile registration plates slightly exceeding 4000 for the city; here, too, are 10 banks, an active chamber of commerce, two large iron foundries, coffee mills for pulping and cleaning, the largest pineapple canneries in the world, rice mills, six U. S. forts and army posts, and a sugar association representing more than 500 plantations producing over 500,000 tons of sugar annually; the property valuation is $125,000,000.

The Wills Sainte Claire is not just merely "another motor car," but one advanced in its design, sound in its materials and exact in its workmanship. Walter L. Clafin, Dealer, 526 Main street; tel. Winchester 703. 12

WE Serve You

SERVICE!

We like to put it in capitals that way because we believe it is the most important thing in the battery business.

Of course we can't make a new battery out of an old one, or a good battery out of a poor one, or a long-lived battery out of a short-lived one. There are limits even to battery service.

But we can make any battery last longer and serve better if you give us a chance. We can make the Willard Threaded Rubber Battery do both—and it already holds records for long life and reliability.

We can always do more with a battery if we get a chance right at the start, although we are ready to help any time. Come in! You'll say, too, that we give—

BOWLING BEGINS MONDAY

Twenty-One Teams Start Big Tournament at Calumet Club Alleys

The annual fall bowling tournament at the Calumet Club will start on Monday evening with an entry of 21 teams, taking 105 members of the club into the contest. The entry list makes this tournament one of the largest in the history of the club.

Owing to the large number of teams the schedule of games will carry into the middle of next March and in view of this there will be no winter tournament as has been customary. Matches will be run on every open night at the club, Saturday evenings excepted.

Many of the teams are made up of old bowlers who have rolled together for years, and these organizations will prove formidable opponents, although many newer teams will have the advantage of low ratings. The ratings are to be made as fair as possible, and with this in view three rerating periods have been set—one after a bowler has rolled 5th match, again after his 10th, and finally after his 15th. The prizes will be awarded on the final rating.

No less than eight prizes will be awarded, four team prizes and four individual. Three class prizes are to be awarded. The prizes are to be given out at the close of the tournament at a dinner to be given by the members of the 11 teams standing lowest in the tournament.

The big tournament is in charge of the following committee: John H. Taylor, chairman; Walter J. Brown, secretary; John A. Maddocks, Arthur E. Sanford and Barton K. Stephenson. Following is the list of teams, schedule of games, rules and list of prizes:

RULES TO GOVERN TOURNAMENT

Games to begin at 7:45 o'clock p. m.

Three strings to be rolled by the team.

Points counted for each string and for total pins.

No postponed games will be allowed under any circumstances, except for club functions. This rule shall be strictly enforced.

Bowlers will be re-rated after the 5th, 10th and 15th matches.

Prizes awarded in various classes on season's bowling against handicap given after 15th match.

PRIZES FOR TOURNAMENT

1st—Team having largest number of points.

2nd—Team having second largest number of points.

3rd—Team having third largest number of points.

4th—Team having fourth largest number of points.

5th—Highest individual average without handicap in scheduled tournament.

6th—Highest individual average with handicap in Class A.

7th—Highest individual average with handicap in Class B.

8th—Highest individual average with handicap in Class C.

Class A rated 86 to scratch, inclusive.

Class B rated 80 to 85, inclusive.

Class C rated under 80.

At the close of the tournament, the prizes will be awarded at a dinner to be furnished by the eleven lowest teams.

RICHARDS WON SWIM

There were few Winchester people on hand Sunday morning to see the start of the swimming race between Sam Richards of the L Street Swimming Club and Walter Paterson of Bridgeport, Conn., at the Winchester Boat Club. The race was routed from the boat club to the Puritan Canoe Club in Dorchester Bay by way of the Mystic River, a distance of about 18 miles.

At ten o'clock, the time for starting the race, no one was around the boat club except three spectators and the swimmers, so in order to allow the photographers and reporters more time to reach the scene, the start was put off until 10:45. At that hour, after posing for several pictures, the pair dived into the lake from the float and started on their 18 mile swim.

The dam at Medford Boat Club was reached in 30 minutes, Richards leading by an even minute. The two men left the water and walked over the dam to the lower lake, where the swim was taken up again.

Richards easily won the race, although neither he nor Paterson finished the course as laid out. Richards was 6 minutes, 45 seconds ahead when he left the water at Pier 47, Boston & Maine docks. Paterson stopped at the Chelsea Bridge.

Both swimmers found the water of the upper harbor cold, it dropping from around 70 at the lake to 60. Paterson protested before the race that he did not know he was to swim through the harbor, having understood that the race was to the Chelsea Bridge. He has been accustomed to swim in the warmer waters of the Sound. He acknowledged Richards as the winner.

There was a large crowd at the Medford Boat Club to witness the swimmers leave and enter the water, while the lower parkway and the banks of the river was crowded with spectators.

A rally supper and social was held at the First Baptist Church last evening, attended by a large gathering of friends and members of the congregation. The evening was designated as "Get-Together Night," and newcomers and strangers were cordially welcomed by the reception committee. Rev. Richard M. Vaughan, D. D. spoke on "Impressions of Cuba," giving a very interesting talk. There was special music.

GLENNA COLLETT WON

Miss Glenna Collett of the Rhode Island Country Club, Providence, was the winner of the championship play of the Women's Golf Association of Boston, which closed at the Winchester Country Club Friday. She defeated Mrs. Watson of the Hoosic Whiskick Club of Canton, 3 and 2 in the finals, making her the new women's champion. She is but 19 years old. In the final play she was not so steady as in the previous matches, but she had the distinction of making a four for the first hole, something never before done by a woman. She made a 25 foot put at this hole.

The tournament week was concluded at the Country Club with an open mixed foursome, Miss Ruth Batchelder and L. B. Page of Weston taking first honors with 85 for gross. Two teams tied for net at 78.

The local teams entered scored as follows:
Miss A. MacDonald and B. K. Stephenson 92-12-80
Mrs. G. F. Edgett and A. M. Moxie 90-9-81
Mrs. D. M. Belcher and J. S. Burns 88-6-82
Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Russell 97-14-83
Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Brown 86-12-84
Mrs. F. R. Wyman and C. P. Whorf 98-15-85
Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Chase 92-7-85
Mrs. George and R. B. Neley 104-16-88
Mrs. E. A. Fletcher and C. M. Crafts 107-13-94

WEST ROXBURY TOO STRONG

West Roxbury was too strong for Winchester Saturday afternoon, defeating the local High School eleven 13 to 7 on Manchester Field. Winchester scored in the third quarter, Capt. Matthews going nine yards for a touchdown after an end run by Tansey. As a whole, the visitors had an easy win.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Woburn Union was hostess last week to the Middlesex County convention and gave a hearty welcome to the large number of delegates who gathered there for the annual meeting. Mrs. G. H. Hamilton of Winchester presided, and with her went a full dozen other members of the Union to fill the delegation from here. The morning was given over to the necessary business, reports of the year's progress and the election of officers. Dr. N. Louise Rand having felt obliged to give up the vice presidency was succeeded by Mrs. Fannie Allen from Melrose, and Mrs. Florence Packard resumed her former position as secretary in place of Mrs. Pike whose ill health had made it difficult to do the necessary work. The president, Mrs. Hamilton, and Mrs. Maynard, of Maynard, treasurer, were both re-elected.

Among the reports of special interest was that of the Jubilee Fund which is now approaching completion, many Unions having filled their quotas, based on their membership of two years ago. Two new Unions have been formed by the president, one of thirty members at Weston and one in Woburn, the second in that city, of twenty-two members. This latter, called the St. John's Union, assisted the older society in preparing and serving the luncheon enjoyed by the delegates.

The afternoon was given in part to an address by Robert Magwood of the Anti-Saloon League who spoke helpfully of the present condition of prohibition enforcement, explaining some of the puzzling questions which present themselves. A memorial service in honor of Mrs. Abby Rolfe was conducted by Mrs. McWain of the Cambridge Union. Mrs. Lillian Marshall added much to the pleasure of those present by her singing and leadership in the chorus singing.

Prizes were awarded to the winners in the essay contest, a student in the ninth grade of the Watertown schools taking first prize, the second going to one in the eighth grade in Melrose. Much interest was taken in this year's contest and the essays showed careful thought and good handling. These contests are an annual feature.

FREIGHT CAR THIEVES CAUGHT

Special officer Roland Sanborn of the Boston & Maine Railroad made another important capture, assisted by Winchester police officers, on Saturday morning when two freight car thieves were taken into custody at the foot of Irving street. The arrested men, who were held in $1000 bonds for the grand jury Saturday, were Vincent F. Crowley of Somerville and Christopher Ross of Medford.

Sergt. Sanborn was aboard the freight train leaving Boston at 9:55 p. m., and reaching Winchester at 10:15. He saw the men throw goods from a car as the train passed the foot of Irving street near the Puffer factory. At Walnut Hill two men jumped from the moving train, although it was travelling fast, as their scratched faces and torn clothes proved later. Sergt. Sanborn did not attempt to make the jump, and had to ride to Lowell. He returned on the next train and found a pile of goods beside the tracks where it was thrown from the train.

He notified the Winchester police and officers Kelley and Hogan went to the place with him, hiding nearby. At 2:15 a fine Murray touring car ran down Swanton street, through Florence street and backed up to the fence by the tracks. It contained three men. They put out the lights and started to gather up the loot, the officers stepping in and capturing two of them. The other man escaped in the darkness.

The goods stolen consisted of sweaters, women's and men's hose, bloomers and underwear, none of it particularly valuable individually.

BOY BADLY INJURED BY TRUCK

When Colella Genero, 19 years of age, living at 81 Prince street, Boston Garage, was working on a tire on which he was riding Monday morning he fell under the rear wheel and was badly crushed. The accident occurred on Main street near the Russell farm.

Genero was riding on one of the five-ton Thayer-Griffith trucks driven by Alexander Parker of Cambridge. The accident occurred at 6:55 a. m., the young man suffering from a fractured thigh and bad internal injuries. The police were notified, but before they arrived he was taken in the touring car of Ralph P. Sylvester of 366 Main street to the Winchester Hospital, where his name was immediately placed on the dangerous list.

CUT BY TIRE RING

While Thomas F. Dooley of Main street, night man at the Metropolitan Garage, was working on a tire Monday morning at 4:30, the holding ring sprung out of the rim and struck him in the forehead, inflicting a bad cut. He was taken to the Winchester Hospital, where it was necessary to take several stitches to close the wound.

POLICE WORKING ON DOWNS ROBBERY

Winchester police and private agencies are working on the robbery which occurred last week Thursday night at the residence of Mr. Jere A. Downs on Arlington street. Thus far no sign of the $5500 worth of loot has been found. On the same night an attempt was made to enter the George E. Henry house on Highland avenue, and the same thieves, presumably, entered the residence of Mr. Fred L. Pattee on Bacon street, but took nothing so far as has been ascertained.

The Downs house was entered by means of an upstairs window, it being thought that a ladder was used, it being replaced by the thieves after leaving the house. One maid was alone in the house at the time, which has been set at about 8:30 owing to noise made by three dogs at that hour. The break was discovered at 11:30.

At the Henry house an attempt was made to enter by a window on the second floor, but this was given up, the window tried being locked. The Pattee house was entered, but nothing taken.

The list of articles taken from the Downs house was as follows:

- 1 Knight Templar Charm marked J. A. Downs "St. Bernard" Boston valued at $75.00
- 1 Gentlemen's platinum and pearl watch chain valued at $55.00

BOAT CLUB TO HOLD SPECIAL MEETING

A special meeting of the Winchester Boat Club has been called next Thursday evening, Oct. 13th, at the club house, for several important matters. Included in the list of questions to be considered are a number of amendments to the by-laws, as well as two new additions. The proposed changes deal with an endeavor to hasten the routine business of the club in the approval and payment of bills, the date of the annual meeting and size of a quorum, together with the class of members who shall be admitted; the classes of members, annual dues of various classes, terms of admission, maximum membership, creations of liens on property of members in aiding enforcement of obligations and the liability of club members for losses or injury to the property of members left on club premises.

In addition the important question of acquisition of new land adjacent to the club for the purpose of building new tennis courts and straightening property lines with abutters will be considered.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

The October meeting of the Girl Scout Council was held Monday, October third, at the home of its commissioner Mrs. J. F. Ryan. Work for the coming year was discussed. It was announced that the float for the parade on October twelfth would be in charge of Mrs. Holbrook Lowell and Mrs. Charles Eastwick, assisted by the Captains of the various troops, Mrs. F. P. Smith, Mrs. J. F. Tilden, Mrs. C. H. Eastwick, Mrs. F. H. Le-favor, Mrs. E. U. Harrington were selected to constitute the Court of awards. Mrs. Anna T. Sullivan, Mrs. A. T. Smith, Mrs. M. F. Brown were appointed as members of the Education Committee and Mrs. E. E. Thompson as Press chairman. It was announced that Mr. Charles Lane has presented the Girl Scout organization with a silver cup to be awarded to the girl who attains the highest excellence in scout work this year.

Members of the Winchester Board of trade will hold a special meeting at the campaign headquarters in the former Edison store on Main street. The purpose is to discuss the campaign from all angles, and particularly that of the action of the directors in authorizing the campaign without first consulting the membership. This action, together with that of the resignation of the directors, which resignation is to take effect only upon election of their successors, has given rise to the rumor that the Winchester Board of Trade has been dissolved.

At campaign headquarters on Main street, it was stated that the directors had acted in just the manner that such a body usually does. Very seldom is the proposition for a campaign of this sort submitted to the entire organization. The question is submitted in cases where the organization is already fairly strong and the membership interested.

Regarding the alleged dissolution of the Board of Trade, that is best answered by the publication of the following letter sent to the members regarding tonight's meeting.

Tango Pauline, a daughter of Langwater May King with a record of 9,559.7 pounds milk, 535.97 pounds fat. She is 12½ percent May Rose and is out of Governor's Pauline, 14,930 pounds milk, 844.47 pounds fat.

Blossom Hill GUERNSEY MILK

Beginning November first we shall be prepared to supply a limited number of Winchester residents with certified Guernsey

Milk produced by a small herd of cows selected from our famous Albamt Herd of registered pure bred Guernseys which is located at Campton, "High in the Hills" of New Hampshire.

Our entire herds are under Federal supervision and are regularly tested for tuberculosis by the Government, therefore, the milk produced by our rugged healthy Guernseys is the best milk money can buy.

Our Winchester herd will be located at Blossom Hill, which is on Cambridge Street, just above Church Street, and where we have prepared a model barn and dairy. This building will be open to public inspection after November first.

In order to acquaint you with the value of Guernsey milk we state the following facts:—

Guernsey milk has the richest natural yellow color of any milk. The flavor of Guernsey milk is unsurpassed. Guernsey milk contains an average of 5% butterfat and frequently more, as well as a proportionately high amount of other solids. Guernsey milk is consequently much more nutritious than other milk. Guernsey milk makes children big and strong and husky. Guernsey milk makes boys and girls grow into healthy and happy men and women. Guernsey milk is good for older folks too. Sparkling eyes—clear skins—good teeth—ruddy cheeks—snap—pep. The joy of good health belongs to all who drink plenty of good fresh Guernsey milk.

Consider the fact that there are 23,000,000 dairy cows in the United States, with an average yearly production of less than 4000 lbs. of milk and 175 lbs. of butterfat. Of this vast number only 5% are pure bred animals, representing the four dairy breeds. Then consider the fact that the average of over 10,000 official yearly records of pure bred Guernsey cows, of all ages, from heifers to mature cows is over 9300 lbs. of milk and 475 lbs. of butterfat. From the above you will readily understand that Guernsey milk is worth over double the price of ordinary milk. Our production of certified Guernsey milk at Blossom Hill will not be large, but it will be milk of the highest possible quality and richness. It will be produced under the most sanitary conditions possible and will be bottled and sealed in our own dairy, thus insuring its perfect cleanliness.

Blossom Hill certified Guernsey milk will be delivered in Winchester by W. F. Noble & Sons Co., with whom we have made arrangements to establish a local route and who will carry the milk directly from our dairy to our customers' homes. They will also carry pure rich Albamt Guernsey cream produced by our cows at our main Albamt Farms at Campton, New Hampshire.

Orders for Blossom Hill certified Guernsey milk will be accepted by W. F. Noble & Sons Co., 16 Sewell Street, Somerville, Mass., in the order received up to the productive capacity of our herd, which is limited.

The price of Blossom Hill certified Guernsey milk will be twenty-five cents per quart.

Royal's Pearl, a daughter of the great May Rose sire, Langwater Royal, holds third place in Class D with a record of 16,930.4 pounds milk, 788.37 pounds fat. She is 12½ percent May Rose and a half sister to Pearl's Dot.

St. Austell Donnetta, fourth daughter of Don Diavolo to enter Advanced Register with a Roll of Honor record of 9,790.6 pounds milk, 479.77 pounds fat Class DD. She is now on retest and will make about 14,000 lbs. milk and 700 lbs. butterfat.

World's record Roll of Honor Guernsey cow, Duchess Ruth, which made 14,644.2 pounds milk, 850.49 pounds fat, placing her at the head of Class AA. This was her third A. R. record. Her daughter is also in the Albamt Herd.

THE ISLAND OF OAKU

Interesting Letter From David A. Somes on Hawaii

Honolulu, Hawaii.
Wednesday, Sept. 14, 1921.

Editor Star:
Today through the invitation of Eben Low I have been on an automobile trip in the car of Mayor Wilson around the Island of Oahu, covering 90 miles, nearly the entire distance, skirting the sea-shore with excellent roads except a stretch of about 8 miles which was very rough.

Twelve miles west of Honolulu lies Pearl Harbor, with an immense expanse of land-locked water, and is the location of what is said to be the greatest naval station under the American flag. There Uncle Sam has enormous industrial buildings, gigantic cranes, towering radio masts, marine corps garrison, submarines, warships and a large island devoted entirely to airship work.

Leaving here and beginning to ascend above the sea-level, a sudden change in the soil was immediately noticeable, the color changing to a bright vermilion shade of red, and the cane-fields were exchanged for very extensive pineapple plantations—this fruit thrives remarkably well in this red soil which is rich in iron and manganese, and the climate too, seems to be ideal for its cultivation to a very high state of perfection.

I was surprised to learn that no irrigation is necessary during the dry season as the plants do not require much moisture; from the first plantings of young shoots to the maturity of the first yield is 18 months. In 1918 the exports of this item had reached a value of approximately $6,000,000 for canned, $50,000 for the fresh fruit and $13,000 for bottled juice—in this same year the U. S. Navy Department purchased 37,500 cases which represented one year's supply for navy yards of the East coast and for the Atlantic fleet.

Since then very large areas of new land have come under cultivation and the production has increased tremendously. As soon as I have made my visit to the California Packing Corporation canneries, I will be able to give you more up to date information. Here we passed through Ewa, which was home of the Bishops in the summer of 1836, when they removed from Kailua, Hawaii. Sorenson lived at Ewa for three years, and in 1839, when 12 years of age, was sent to New England for the completion of his education. When he returned to Honolulu with his bride in 1853 he proceeded to Lahaina, on the island of Maui, where he immediately assumed the duties of seaman's chaplain. Lahaina then was an important shipping center, especially as the port of call for American Whaling ships.

Another 10 miles brought us to Wahiawa and the Schofield Barracks, said to be the largest military post West of the Rockies, spreading out over a vast area at the base of Mt. Kaala (4000 feet), the highest peak in Oahu; ten miles more through great stretches of pineapple fields and we came to the Northwest Coast, and the beautiful harbor of Waimea, with an expanse of miles of clean, sandy beach and the attractive hotel of Haleiwa ("Hale"="house" and "Iwa"="beautiful"), resembling more a country club than hotel.

After lunch we resumed our journey and at Waimea Bay found great quantities of cactus by the wayside, heavily laden with the ripe fruit. Mr. Low personally secured and prepared some for us; this fruit has dual properties—the outer portion next to the skin is laxative in character, while the inner section produces an opposite result—the interior is intense dark red in color with many small, hard seeds, and a flavor resembling well ripened watermelon.

Passing now the large territorial industrial school for wayward youth, we came suddenly upon the greatest radio plant in the world, located at Kahuku Point and operated by the Radio Corporation of America. The plant is reported to have cost $250,000. I regret not having counted the towers, or masts, but as I now recall them, my guess would be from 20 to 25, and I remember they were extremely tall.

As we came to the village of Laie, where there were no homes more pretentious than modest bungalows, I was astonished to see an enormous church set in terraced and extensive grounds on a slight eminence. This proved to be a Mormon temple, the largest outside of Utah. It was completed in November, 1919, at a cost of about a quarter million; the environment seemed decidedly incongruous for so expensive and elaborate a structure.

The next 20 miles were principally scenic, wild and sparsely inhabited; the road here was almost at the water's edge and the mountains rose sheer and high, presenting remarkable formations; the peaks in the majority of instances rising sharply to steep points, their almost perpendicular sides scored with deep ravines, filled with verdure of varying shades of green, and when the rains are heavy each ravine becomes a rushing torrent of foaming water. In many that I saw these crevasses were so regular as to suggest their formation by some giant-toothed rake.

We passed a large pineapple cannery bearing the well-known name of Libby, McNeill & Libby. It is closed down and will not be opened until 1923 according to report. I was told they had met some heavy setbacks here, and I will give you further details later. Rice is grown quite extensively in this section and we saw it in varying stages of growth.

Coming now to the latter part of our journey and approaching Honolulu from the Northeast or windward side we arrived at the foot of the only pass in the entire mountain range which forms the backbone of Oahu. The summit of this pass, known as The Pali, is 1200 feet elevation—we reached it by a very devious route of sharp turns and twisting roadway of the "switch-back" type. This road is of cement with lateral scoring, patterned after the idea of depressions used to enable the teeth of cog-wheels to obtain a traction hold—this arrangement offers a good surface of the automobiles in ascending and descending; our car was a Cadillac and took the stiff grade and very sharp turns perfectly. From the Pali we looked back over the Northern portion of the Island and marveled at the wonderful panorama before us.

It was at this spot that Kamehameha I in 1795 met and defeated the rebellious Oahuans, thousands of them being forced over the 1200 foot precipice to instant death. Mr. Low told me that even now, after 125 years, an occasional skull or other remnants of skeletons are found at the foot of the cliff.

One of our party was Jonah Kumalee, who in addition to being one of the Island supervisors, is also proprietor of the largest ukelele factory in the city—we visited his establishment and saw the process of manufacture in all stages—the native Koa wood is used and the finished product very handsome. Mr. Kumalee said he could dispose of 2000 a month, but his present capacity is only about 1500—he mentioned some Chicago and New York dealers as his customers, and also Oliver Ditson & Co., of Boston. In addition to ukeleles he also produces very handsome Koa guitars, and manufactures poi. This latter is a very staple article of food with Hawaiians—it is made from the root of taro and when ready to be eaten, resembles old fashioned mush of a pearl grey color—the liking for it must surely be a taste to be acquired when one is young and susceptible.

One day this week I lunched at the Rotary Club as the guest of Mr. White, resident manager of the California Packing Corporation, and met some of the representative men of the City. The venerable Sanford B. Dole first governor of Hawaii and President of the Republic at the time of annexation to the United States, is a member and was present—he wears a long, flowing white beard and was dressed in a white linen suit; music, instrumental and vocal, was furnished by Hawaiian girls.

A rather peculiar arrangement at the Post office is that the public is not admitted inside the building, all business being transacted through windows opening out of doors, and all postoffice boxes which number up to 1500, are opened by the holders from the sidewalk. This arrangement does not apply to the money-order and registry divisions; these departments handle their business indoors, but separate from the regular post-office.

A plumber on Hotel street has the appropriate name of E. R. Bat: Mr. Chow Me Fat does not operate a lunch-room, but is a florist. My next number will deal with the details of growing and canning pineapples. Mr. White lives at Waiakua, about 30 miles from Honolulu, and gives the plantations a great deal of personal attention.

Edgar Guest has expressed the thought we must bring with us to this meeting to make it a success, so with due apologies we will quote from his "When You Know a Fellow."

When you get to know a woman
Know her joys and know her cares,
When you come to understand her
And the burdens that she bears,
When you've learned the fight she's making
And the troubles in her way,
Then you find that she is different Than you thought her yesterday.

WINCHESTER 7, WAKEFIELD 0.

On Friday, Oct. 7, Winchester High football team defeated the strong Wakefield team by the score of 7-0. Winchester although outwitted by Wakefield, played the best game it has played this year. No score was made during the first three periods but Winchester threatened several times. In the 4th quarter Winchester took the field and marched down the field. Tansey the Winchester full back then ran through center for ten yards and a touchdown. Winer backed the goal. Tansey, Winer and O'Connor starred for Winchester while Hall and Maroney played best for Wakefield.

It was Winchester's first league game and the victory puts in a tie with Woburn for first place in the Mystic Valley League.

OCTOBER

The locust trees are shedding
Their leaves like tears of gold.
As tho they wept while dreading
The winters' freezing cold.

Around, about are scurrying Dry leaves as tho they said,
"There is no cause for worrying, We'll make for you a bed."

Upon my ear seems falling
A voice amid the rush,
"Soon Mother will be calling,
Now all my children, Hush!"

PHYSICIANS TO STUDY TUBERCULOSIS

The Boston Tuberculosis Association is to give a Physicians' Institute at the Massachusetts General Hospital on Wednesday and Thursday, October 26-27. The purpose of this Institute is to give practicing physicians an opportunity to learn all about the most recent advances in knowledge of this widespread disease. In public statements various authorities have been calling attention to three facts: the importance of early diagnosis, the failure of most medical schools to give adequate instruction about tuberculosis and the lack of opportunity for the doctor in active practice to keep up with scientific developments. The Institute of the Boston Tuberculosis Association will therefore assemble authorities on diagnosis and treatment and afford to any physician of Greater Boston the chance to get informed if he will only attend. This is distinctively a contribution by the Association towards the diffusion of knowledge and not only are the physicians invited to come, but a complimentary midday collation will be furnished by the B. T. A. in cooperation with the nurses of the Boston Consumptives Hospital, Out-Patient Department.

Two tuberculosis specialists from New York state, Dr. James A. Miller and Dr. Lawrason Brown and the State Commissioner of Health and that of the city of Boston will speak, together with eight or ten local specialists whose names are known throughout the country.

Invitations have been sent to 14 physicians in Winchester and the Association will be glad to learn of any others, who through error in the lists or for any accidental reason have failed to receive such invitations. This is Boston's unique opportunity to learn the latest facts in anti-tuberculosis methods.

LEGION HOUSE DEDICATED

tions. There were seven cars in line for the Henshaw Motor Co., representing Dodge autos, and the Central Battery Co., Mr. Napoleon Goddu had a car following. The Mystic Motors had six cars. Mr. George H. Hamilton a decorated car, George Kerrigan a neat car and the Winchester Buick Co. four cars.

One of the floats which excited the greatest comment was that of the Geo. W. Blanchard Co. This was a dugout made of flour sacks entitled "Near Pals." It was manned wholly by veterans, of which all were Canadians except the driver. These veterans were William L. Hall and Fred Mitchell of this town, who fought with the Black Watch, Alec Gibbons of the Black Watch and Fred J. Bridge. The men were all members of Vinny Ridge Camp No. 1, Am. Vol. of A. E. F. John Delorey, dispatch rider of the 76th Division was the driver. In front of the dugout guns were pitched and a camp fire was built.

The parade was reviewed at the Legion House by the Selectmen and Legion officers, and the house was formally turned over to the Post by Chairman Joseph A. Dolben of the Selectmen and accepted by Commander William E. Ramsdell, the exercises taking place at the entrance directly after the review. The house was open to the public and was crowded during the entire day and evening.

Gifts of flowers made the already attractive rooms doubly pleasant, and during the day the Post was the recipient of several gifts of checks and articles of furnishings. During the several weeks the house has been in use, fresh flowers have been placed in it daily by Mrs. Alonzo F. Woodside, for which the Post extends thanks.

The grounds about the house were most attractively decorated with a quantity of flags, over 150 of which were loaned through the courtesy of Lieut. Halwartz of the receiving ship at Hingham. This made an attractive setting for the many gaily decorated booths opened by various organizations for the benefit of the Legion in further furnishing its house.

The Fortnightly had a large table for the sale of cake, from which almost $400 was realized. This was in charge of Mrs. William A. Lefavour, Mrs. Napoleon Goddu, Mrs. Lillian T. Mason, Mrs. Rufus Clark, Mrs. F. E. Ritchie, Mrs. Geo. N. Saltmarsh, Mrs. Herbert E. Stone, Mrs. Lorenzo M. Crowell, Mrs. Addison M. Goldsmith, Mrs. William J. Drisko, Mrs. Irving T. Cutter and Mrs. Saltmarsh. The Fortnightly also conducted an exciting and mysterious tent wherein the most pleasing fortunes were told by a celebrated and world renowned clairvoyant recently secured from the south.

The Winton Club conducted a bag booth, where all styles and sizes of attractive bags were sold for the ladies. Mrs. Charles A. Burnham was in charge there, assisted by a committee of Mrs. Joseph Butler, Mrs. Norman Hunnewell, Miss Winsome Abbott and Mrs. Henry A. Shrieve. Other members who aided included Mrs. Lawrence G. Holden, Mrs. Preston Cotten, Mrs. Clarence P. Whorf, Mrs. William H. McGill.

The American Legion Auxiliary had a novelty table, with ice cream, cake, aprons, bags and other attractive things. Mrs. John Gorman was in charge, assisted by Mrs. Annie Mitchell, Mrs. Bessie Pierce, Mrs. W. A. Bennett, Mrs. Pauline Farrar, Mrs. Bessie Rowe, Miss Mildred Keaneally, Miss Agnes Morrison, Mrs. William McMullen, Mrs. John Hanlon, Mrs. Mary Manzie, Mrs. Edith Lloyd, Mrs. Bernard Matthews, Mrs. Carl Fisher, Mrs. John Harrold, Mrs. Doris Fitzgerald, Mrs. Harry Bennett, Mrs. Ray Trainor, Mrs. Malino Moffet, Mrs. Wm. Coleman and Mrs. Carrie McNulty.

The articles on chances were awarded as follows: Electric lamp, made by a World War boy confined at Belmont Hospital, to Mrs. L. E. Brown of Medford; rug to Mr. Chas. Harrold, Nelson street; centerpiece to Mrs. W. A. Bennett, Highland avenue; hand-made bag to Miss Barbara Kibbe, Myrtle terrace.

Grabs were in charge of the Sigma Beta Society, as were attractive pony rides for the children, Miss Ruth Davidson had general charge, assisted by Miss Eleanor and Miss Priscilla Tilden, Miss Ruth Whittington and Miss Dorothy Laraway.

The Catholic Daughters of America had a table for the sale of candy and pop corn, largely patronized. This was in charge of Mrs. Alice Martin, assisted by Mrs. Frances Conlon, Mrs. Elizabeth McDonald, Mrs. Agnes Lynch, Mrs. Minnie O'Connor and Mrs. Annie Poland.

Delicious hot dogs and coffee were served by the En Ka girls, a booth on the lawn and a tea room on the Legion veranda doing a thriving business, especially in the cool of the evening. Miss Brenda Bond and Miss Susie Guernsey had charge, with Miss Frances Boone, Miss Helen Woods, Miss Josephine Woods, Miss Eleanor Richardson, Miss Elizabeth Fitch, Miss Georgianna Watters, Miss Gertrude Felber, Miss Edith Lewis, Mrs. Mary Flinn Smith, Miss Helen Raynor, Miss Ruth and Miss Charlotte Brooks, Miss Betty Bird, Miss Beulah Foss, Miss Constance Dow, Miss Irene Lord, Miss Irene Atwood, Miss Annette Mason, Miss Esther Bartlett, Mrs. Mabel Blackler, Miss Madeline Robinson, Miss Dorothy Riddle, Miss Miriam DeLoria, Miss Dorothy Cummings, Miss Edith DeLoria, Miss Phyllis Fitch and Miss Charlene Dean.

The Legion itself conducted four booths for the general amusement of the crowd. They were in charge of Harry Donovan, aided by members of the post. No. 1 was under Edward Lloyd, with Miss Dorothy Armstrong, cashier; Alden Symmes, Joseph Rogers, George Joyce, P. E. Carlisle and Anthony M. Cullen. No. 2 was directed by Terrance Cullen, Miss Marguerite Waldmeyer, cashier; John Nowell, John Rogers, John Cullen, Peter Cullen and Daniel Hanlon. At No. 3 D. E. Lynch had charge, with Mary R. Halwartz as cashier. Assisting were Joseph Moffette, John Moynihan, Henry Haley, Harry Mullen, Arthur Locke and Michael Flaherty. W. S. Robinson had charge of No. 4, with Miss Phyllis Fitch, cashier. Here were Willard Locke, Percy Smith and George Stevens. No. 5 was under James Flinn, with Miss Kathleen Kenneally, cashier and Charles Harrold, Stafford Phippen, Robert Hamilton, Franklin Lane and Loring P. Gleason. Miss Dorothy Wellington assisted at these booths as general cashier.

The Kum-o-Misit Klub had two members selling cigars and cigarettes to the thirsty. Misses Mary LeLuc and Margaret Leahy, who realized a substantial sum for the Legion. The two balloon girls, Miss Rosamond Lefavour and Miss Katherine Hunt, dressed in costume, were Sigma Beta members, while Miss Angie Harrold and a large number of other young ladies took in many quarters by the sale of tags and tickets for the dance.

During the afternoon and early evening the band gave a program of music on the lawn, and during the supper hour the rooms on the first floor of the Legion house were largely turned into tea rooms for those who desired to escape the cool of the night. The dancing opened at nine o'clock, the Winchester Laundry Orchestra furnishing the music, with a band concert on the lawn back of the hall between dances. The dancing was in charge of Vincent P. Clark and Edward J. Boyle.

Owing to the detail involved, the final figures totalling the funds realized from the lawn sale are not wholly compiled, as well as the list of gifts received by the Post during the day. This will be announced later.

The Legion desires through the STAR to extend its thanks to Winchester's citizens, organizations and residents for their gifts and their support, and their hearty corporation in making the carnival such a success. Not in a long time has such a successful affair been held in this town and the clear weather of the afternoon, the cool evening and the hundreds who attended and lent their assistance by interest and patronage, combined to make it an auspicious opening of Winchester Post's fine new headquarters.

THE PACIFIC COAST; AMERICA'S NEWEST COMMERCIAL BATTLE FRONT

With the awakening of the Far East, the shifting of world interest to the Pacific, and the rapid growth of its commerce, the western rim of the United States where it touches the vastest of the world's oceans is becoming one of the country's most important boundaries, says a bulletin issued by the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

This rippling line of Pacific surf marks the end of the great Aryan migration, which began ages ago in some mysterious, unknown land of central Asia, surged through the deep valleys of the Himalayas, and has since poured ever westward, making the greater part of the world's history as it went. Across this boundary of white colonization the yellow people of the East have shown themselves ready to flow in a counter current, making complicated racial problems and giving the western boundary an ethnic importance which none of the three boundaries possesses.

The Pacific's Hidden Harbors

For centuries after the discovery of the Atlantic coast of America, even for centuries after Balboa first looked upon the Pacific at Panama and after his compatriots sailed ships across its vast expanse, the Pacific coast of what is now the United States remained practically unknown. Cabrillo, a Spanish navigator, it is true, entered San Diego Bay near the present Mexican border in 1542 and his expedition later sailed north as far as the big bulge in the coast line. But the two priceless features of the Pacific coast were missed: San Francisco Bay, one of the greatest, safest, and best of the harbors of the world; and the entrance to Puget Sound, where landlocked Seattle and a group of other fine harbors now handle a large part of the commerce between America and the Orient.

This failure of early navigators to find San Francisco Bay, though many of them passed up and down the coast and the Spanish even made a special effort to discover a satisfactory harbor, constitutes one of the mysteries of the Pacific seaboard. Francis Drake is supposed to have anchored in Bodega Bay, about 40 miles northwest of San Francisco, and numerous other explorers visited the tiny Drakes Bay only thirty miles northwest of the Golden Gate, and the Farrallone islands, an equal distance due west of the entrance to the great bay, but none of these sojourners appears to have obtained the slightest inkling of the existence so close by of the matchless harbor. The bay was first sighted from the land in 1769, more than two hundred years after the Spaniards began their search for a Pacific coast harbor, and it was six years later when the first ship sailed through the Golden Gate.

Where Mountains Meet the Sea

The Pacific coast of the United States is markedly different from the Atlantic coast, especially that part of the latter south of Massachusetts, with its relatively low sandy shores and its outlying bulwark of sand islands and sand spits. San Diego Bay, only ten miles north of the Mexican border, is the only bay of major importance on the Pacific coast of the United States land-locked by a sand spit. Point Noma, forming the northern boundary of San Diego Bay, however, is a ridge several hundred feet high, and from there northward to Canada with only a few miles of narrow lowlands between the sea and the hills or mountains by way of exception, the coast is bold and rugged. Parts of it are what geologists call a "drowned coast," where mountains have sunk so that the water meets their steep slopes. Parts are "uplifted coasts" where mountains once under the sea have partly emerged, and their slopes are still lapped by the waves.

It is the mountainous and bold character of the Pacific coast which sets it off most distinctly from the coast of the Atlantic. From a point 50 miles north of San Francisco one may sail northward for hundreds of miles alongside bluffs and promontories, finding hardly any indentations of importance. It was this region which made the Spaniards despair, before they discovered San Francisco Bay, of finding that essential to commerce in all ages, a safe, commodious port. Today the problem has been solved on a small scale at least by the construction of cable tramways extending from the heights to outlying rocks. But lack of ports and the roughness of the country immediately inland have held back the development of much of coastal northern California.

An Inland Sea of Countless Ports

North of the main bulge of the Pacific coast, Cape Mendocino, small bays are more numerous in California, Oregon and Washington, and about many of them railroads have been built and considerable commercial development has taken place. Finally, at the mouth of the Columbia River, over 500 miles north of the Golden Gate, a good deep water harbor is reached at Astoria. Ocean vessels may even ascend the river to Portland nearly 100 miles inland.

More than 350 miles north of San Francisco is the ten-mile-wide Strait of Juan de Fuca, the entrance to Puget Sound, the great sunken valley which carries deep water for more than a hundred miles into the heart of the State of Washington, and affords many miles of matchless land-locked harbors. The center of the entrance to the Strait of Juan de Fuca is the northern boundary on the Pacific of the United States proper.

After an interval of nearly 600 miles where British Columbia fronts on the Pacific, the Pacific coast again becomes territory of the United States as the southernmost point of Alaska is reached. For more than a thousand miles to the roots of the Alaska peninsula the waters of the Pacific bathe the shores of this territory, and for an even greater distance the long arm of the peninsula and the Alutian Islands off its point sweep out into the ocean. Practically all of this seaboard is a drowned coast, rugged beyond description, with countless bays, gulfs, islands and channels. When all these convolutions are counted Alaska has more than 15,000 miles of coast line. The shores south of the peninsula are for the most part heavily wooded, often to the very waters edge. Snow clad mountains tower above ships as they sail through the inland passages and glaciers discharge a never-ending succession of icebergs into some of the bays.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Few persons who saw Marshal Douglass Case riding at the head of the Legion parade Wednesday realized that his jaw was bound up with wire and that he had but just been allowed out of the hospital. During the extraction of a tooth earlier in the week his jaw was fractured. Only a part of the tooth was taken out and he was obliged to go to a Boston hospital. He suffered a most painful experience, and was warmly congratulated on his pluck in taking part in the exercises.

A very interesting talk was given by Miss Carolyn Smiley on "Our work in Ahmednagar." Miss Smiley spoke from personal experience there which made the talk more interesting.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

The world seldom gives a man more than he deserves, but certainly many of us are over-looked.

Some men have so much to do these days that you can see them sitting in the shade thinking it over.

A church bell has an empty head and a long tongue, yet is discreet enough not to speak until it is tolled.

We doubt if all the police officers in Winchester could have kept our streets clear during the Legion parade and exercises without completely closing them to automobile travel. At our next celebration why not leave the auto at home?

The Legion is settled for the winter. If it is to continue to receive the cordial co-operation in driving dull care away that it received Wednesday from Winchester's young ladies, it may look forward to a very pleasant season.

Do you ever get a call on the telephone from the man who has his stenographer get you on the wire and then makes you wait until she gets him to break away from his important duties? It is aggravating to say the least, especially if your own time is at all valuable.

If you are interested in the proposed legislation compelling all automobile drivers to carry insurance, it is a good time to express yourself. The special committee is considering the bill and will report within a few months. Reputable drivers carry it without compulsion; other should be made to.

Many persons gathering to witness the Legion parade in the center, and later the presentation of the house on Washington street, were banked in behind automobiles, which crowded in on both sides of the street. It is to be regretted that drivers of these cars, containing at the most but four or five persons, should by their thoughtlessness mar the pleasure of so many. Even the Selectmen were obliged to review the parade over the tops of cars thickly parked in front of the Legion house.

Two pleasing features of the Legion parade were noted in the entries of the George F. Arnold & Son Co. and the George W. Blanchard & Co. Not a particle of advertising matter showed in either exhibit and both were distinctly in keeping with the spirit of the day. The Arnold exhibit was a solid bank of beautiful, shining green laurel set off by a centre of the red poppy of Flanders' fields; the other, while cementing the comradeship of Canada and America in the war, brought home to every veteran reminiscences of life "over there." They both received the recognition they merited.

The preliminary statement of the general results of the 1920 census of manufactures, covering the year 1919, for the City of Cambridge, was issued last week. As compared with the year 1914, it is interesting to note that salaries have advanced 129.7 per cent and wages 123.6 per cent, while the number of proprietors and firm members have decreased 8.5 per cent. The latter item is the only decrease in the list, and the smallest increase is 7.3 per cent, applying to the number of establishments. The value of products has increased 122.4 per cent, even a little less than the increase in salaries and wages.

Tom Keane of the Winchester Country Club will take part in the first championship play of the New England Professional Golfers' Organization starting at the Myopia Hunt Club Monday, being paired with L. Cottrell of Belmont. P. A. Hendrick, also a Winchester player, is paired with John Banks of Mt. Tom and T. Fahey will play against J. Hohman of Boston. Harry Bowler will enter the contest, his partner not being announced.

Officer Edward Shea of the Water Department, while patrolling the Falls Monday, found Miss Geraldine Sullivan of Dorchester laying unconscious by the roadside. She had been thrown from her horse while riding near the reservoir and struck on her head. Officer Shea took her to the Melrose Hospital.

The flood of gold into the United States, which ebbed somewhat after reaching its peak in 1917, has set in again and there is now probably a greater supply of this precious metal in the country than at any other time in its history. This flow and what the present stock of gold in the United States means in terms of the world supply is the subject of a bulletin issued from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Gold, the aristocrat of metals, is truly cosmopolitan, says the bulletin, and is found to a greater or less extent in every part of the world from near the equator in Africa, Peru and Borneo to the frozen ground of Alaska, Finland and Siberia. Since the beginning of history and doubtless long before any records were made gold has largely typified the world's desire, and it is the only substance which has been received by all races and peoples in exchange for other property and services. It was in truth, therefore, long before legislation by practically every civilized country made it formally so, the world's standard of value.

Pouring in From 30 Countries

In the early months of 1921 gold reached the United States from about 30 different countries. Much of this gold doubtless originated in the United States, and there was among it no doubt metal from practically every source of gold known to the world. For the gold of the world constitutes practically a single stock held temporarily in many reservoirs; and as exchange rates and other economic and financial conditions change, it flows freely back and forth and across along trade routes, weaving a veritable golden web tying the nations together.

It is not at all improbable that some of the gold that is pouring in on the shores of the United States first left this hemisphere in Spanish galleons after it was torn from the temples of the Incas by the Spanish Conquistadores. Another part may have rested once in the treasuries of the Great Moguls; while beside it is gold fresh from the mines of Australia, the Klondike, or the Rand. For aside from that which is absorbed in the arts or is lost or used in industry, practically all gold these days finds its way to the pots of the assayer and goes to make up pawns in the world's trade.

Of what may be called the relatively common metals, fairly close estimates of the quantity in existence can be made probably only for gold and silver. Even for these two metals satisfactory estimates of production can be made only for the period since the discovery of America. There is nothing on which to base an idea of the gold produced before 1492, but it is safe to assume that because of the few sources and the primitive mining methods the quantity in treasuries and circulation at that time was but a small fraction of the quantity since produced.

Nearly 30,000 Tons of Gold

Since Columbus landed in America, according to statistics assembled by the Director of the Mint, the world production of gold through 1919 amounted to more than three-quarters of a billion Troy ounces. The estimated amount is the equivalent of 29,448.92 tons of the precious metal, occupying 49,100.85 cubic feet, and worth more than seventeen and three-quarter billions of dollars.

This tremendous volume of gold must be measured by a bigger unit than the gold dollar if its magnitude is to be appreciated. If gold were cast in gigantic dollars one foot thick and having a diameter of approximately 18 feet 9 inches, each would weigh 165.85 tons and would be worth $100,000,000. The world gold production since 1492 would make 177 such dollars and leave more than half enough for another. If stacked, therefore, these gargantuan coins would form a tower 18 feet 9 inches in diameter, more than 177 feet high. Since 1905 the average annual world production would have added four and a half of these dollars to the stack each year, but in 1918 and 1919, the latest two years for which statistics are complete, the output would have made less than four of the $100,000,000 pieces each year.

An Eleven Mile Golden Pavement

If the world production of gold since 1492 were made into a curb six inches high and six inches thick it would extend for more than 37 miles, practically the distance between Washington and Baltimore. If spread into a paving surface half an inch thick the same gold would pave an automobile roadway 20 feet wide and slightly over 11 miles long.

Not all the gold produced since the discovery of America is available. Much has been used, destroyed or lost, and much in the form of jewelry or plate is out of circulation and not in treasuries. The best available estimate of the gold in circulation and in treasuries places the amount at $9,000,000,000, or enough to make 90 of the foot-thick dollars. Just about a third of this world treasure is now in the United States, and this is not far below the amount that has been yielded by the mines of the United States.

The United States leads all countries and even some continents in the aggregate amount of gold produced—$3,913,000,000. Africa and Australia have each produced more than three and a quarter billion dollars worth, South America more than two billion and Russia and Siberia more than one and a half billion. For a number of years the Rand section of the Transvaal, South Africa, has led all gold producing regions in annual output, producing around 40 per cent of the world output.

THE CANNING OF PINEAPPLES

Another Interesting Letter From David A. Somes

Honolulu, Hawaii

Saturday, Sept. 24, 1921.

Editor of the Star:

History relates that the initial attempt to grow pineapples in the Hawaiian Islands was made in 1813 by a Spaniard, but I have found no further historical record until the year 1885, when a Scotchman, Capt. John Kidwell, residing in the Manoa Valley in Honolulu, adjacent to the present location of the Pleasanton Hotel, determined to experiment in the cultivation of this semi-wild fruit. About 5 acres of his farm land was prepared and planted with selected young shoots, and partial success rewarded his efforts as the fruits improved in size and appearance under cultivation, but retained its fibrous character and too large a percentage of acidity. By chance he heard of the "Smooth Cayenne" variety in the far-away West Indies, and straightway sent an order to Jamaica for 1000 plants, of which about 600 lived, grew and flourished, forming the nucleus of the present mammoth industry in the islands.

By slow but constant progress the venture grew, obstacles were met and overcome, acreage increased, home consumption encouraged and enlarged, and the surplus raw product shipped to San Francisco, but with some loss by deterioration in transit. In 1892 the first efforts at commercial canning were begun, proving highly successful from the beginning, and the venture grew with such marked rapidity that in the course of a dozen years the industry was rated second in importance, sugar taking first place. In the report of the Oahu Railroad Company for 1920, the following figures were given and show the tonnage of the two items hauled by the railroad:

	Canned Pineapples	Sugar
1920	117,000	146,000

The territory maintains eleven separate producing and packing companies, of which three are leaders in the extent of their acreage and the volume of output; the largest cannery in the islands is here in Honolulu (California Packing Corporation). The entire pack by cases for 1920 was 5,978,000, with an estimated value of $32,880,000, and toward this amount the large factors contributed as follows:

	Maximum Pack
Cal. Pack's Corp.	13,000,000
Hawaiian Pine	3,150,000
Libby, McNeill & Co.	1,775,000
U.S. Navy	1,100,000
U.S. Army	1,022,000

The land, owned and leased, devoted to this industry, is given as 46,854 acres, of which Oahu claims 25,000. By the invitation of Mr. H. A. White, superintendent for the California Packing Corporation, I motored with him to Wahiawa, about 20 miles to the Northwest of Honolulu, where his home is beautifully situated at the end of a long avenue of royal palms, the mansion house located on an eminence about 1000 feet above the sea. Here from the broad, pillared veranda one has an enchanting view in all directions—to the South is the Pacific with a foreground of immense pineapple growth, then deep gulches dividing the foot hills, and beyond these elevations the immense basin of Pearl Harbor; Honolulu and Diamond Head to the Southeast are hidden from this prospect by low hills which intervene; to the West is the Waianae mountain range, particularly rugged in outline and impressive in detail when the morning sunlight shines fairly into their deeply scored sides; at the foot of these mountains lies the immense U. S. military reservation of Schofield Barracks of nearly 15,000 acres, the largest military post west of the Rocky Mountains. Between this camp and the house are still more pineapple fields, interspersed with small settlements on tree covered knolls, which house the laborers on the plantations.

The Northern outlook is principally over rolling agricultural country, and the eastern view includes a wooded area with the Koolau range for a background.

Here at Wahiawa the company has another cannery and a vast area of approximately 13,000 acres of rolling land devoted to pineapple production, and a smaller acreage of cane fields for growing their own sugar. For the best development, the fruit requires an elevation of from 700 to 1000 feet, and Wahiawa which lies in the great plateau valley between the East and West mountain ranges, possesses the proper altitude climate and soil for producing pineapples in the highest state of perfection.

The fruit grows on plants which resemble somewhat the so-called "Century plant," bearing one pine the first crop, and two or more the second and third yields. The fields stretch mile after mile in trim, uniform rows, the spiny spear-pointed leaves gradually losing their identity and blending into a grey-green mass in the long perspective; the soil is clayey in character and deep, dark vermilion in color, and particularly suitable for both this fruit and sugar cane. The division of land between cane and pineapple is largely determined by irrigation possibilities; the coastal areas which can be irrigated are occupied by the former while the upland mesas and foothills over which irrigation is too expensive, are used for pineapples, since these plants require no more water than comes in the average rainfall.

The planting operation seems simple; slips or leafy crowns from the fruit, which have been exposed to the sun for five or six days to become seasoned, are merely placed in prepared ground to the depth of about 1½ inches and in a few weeks these slips root and growth begins. After from 12 to 15 months these plants will mature and in the center of each the first sign of the coming fruit appears in the form of a flower resembling somewhat our thistle blossom, and five or six months later the fruit matures. In all a period of 18 to 20 months has been required from the rooting of the small slip, or crown, to the ripened fruit, but the plant being now matured, produces its second bearing in about a year from the first harvest.

At a certain stage of ripeness the

sugars and flavors are at their best, and just at this particular time the fruit must be picked—if this is done a little too early the flavor is inferior and the acidity too great, but if too ripe fermentation has begun and the pine is worthless. To manipulate the harvesting so that none are picked too green and none allowed to ferment, and at the same time to keep the daily quantity nearly uniform so that the canneries may be evenly supplied, is the task of the field superintendent.

In harvesting the crop each laborer carrying a sack over his shoulder passes between two rows and picks the ripe fruit by bending it and snapping the long stem. When his bag is filled he carries it to the nearest roadway where there are box-like crates waiting to be filled, and then promptly transported to the cannery. After the first fruiting is taken from the plant, the lateral resting buds begin to grow into new shoots. Most of these are removed for further propagation, but at least two are left on each plant, hence the second crop should be larger than the first since there are more stalks to bear.

In the cannery the fruit is dumped into hoppers and carried on conveyors to automatic machines which remove the shell and the eyes; the two ends are cut off and the core removed; then by an endless belt the pine is carried to the hand-trimmers—hundreds of women and girls, each wearing gauntlet rubber gloves, sit at long tables and with knives remove any remaining portions of skin and eyes left by the automatic machine. The object of the rubber gloves is two-fold; first is the plan of sanitary handling from the very first operation in the cannery, and second the juice of the fruit when constantly applied to the skin frequently causes irritation and eruption.

From these trimmers the whole fruit is conveyed to the slicing machines, and then on to packers who place the finished slices in the tins. Then comes the syringing. From 70 to 75 cans a minute pass through a revolving machine where the flow of syrup is carefully regulated each can getting its own distinctive syrup through pipes from separate tanks in the syrup house overhead; several hundred bags of white sugar are used each day in making syrup; sanitary cans only are used, no solder entering into the process of sealing, and each machine doing this work handles about 90 tins each minute. The sealed cans then enter the steam cookers, which process requires 10 minutes. After cooling, the tins are conveyed to warehouses and are ready for labelling and boxing.

A few figures to show the cosmopolitan character of these workers in the canneries, will be interesting:

Race	Per Cent	Male	Female
Japanese	45	50	20
Filipinos	16	80	20
Chinese	13	65	35
Korean	7	50	50
Hawaiian	10	20	80
Portuguese	4	60	40
Sioux	4	40	60
American	1	83	17

The claim has been made by the large packing houses that in slaughtering hogs, use is made of every particle of the animal so that nothing is really lost or wasted but the animal's dying squeal. This is undoubtedly true—so the California Packing Corporation claims to redeem more from the pineapple than any other packers; in fact all that is not utilized is a little water. In addition to the marketable fresh and canned fruit, this company secures as by-products, alcohol, sugar and calcium citrate, which latter is converted into citric acid on the mainland, and from the alcohol the company expects to produce vinegar to be used in its pickle works in California.

Mention should be made of one of the most potent factors in the success of the pineapple industry here, which is the operation of two factories of the American Can Company, one at Haiku on the Island of Maui, and the other (the larger) at Honolulu. Since its coming here the latter plant has produced the stupendous total of 630,250,000 cans up to December 31, 1920, and this factory has a capacity of 100,000 cans per hour. All the materials used are brought from the mainland and these consist chiefly of sheet tin, solder and pasteboard for the baskets—the trimming, or scrap, are baled and sold for waste paper and is sold for export to Japan. The company's investment in these two factories is in excess of half a million dollars.

P. S.—It is not my intention to overload you with matter, but I thought this article would be interesting to your readers. It is not a treatise on "pineapples and their cultivation," but it is an expression of the impressions of a layman, with a few authentic statistics, carefully verified.

Yours very truly,

David A. Somes.

ADVENTURES WITH THE AMERICAN DOLLAR

Variations in currency exchange rates have not only a broad economic significance but also an extremely personal pertinence to the traveler. Maynard Owen Williams, who has just returned from a trip through eighteen countries to compile information and collect picture material for the National Geographic society, relates some of his experiences with exchange as follows:

It is only in times of extreme stress that the average American considers the cart wheel and the greenback as commodities much like flour or madras shirting, but for most of the world foreign exchange is a vital matter every day in the year. When it takes twenty silver dollars to buy an X and V in Budapest, it sounds like a fairy tale to the man who stops to think that it is Uncle Sam's own currency which is treated in this manner. But the Chinese keeper of an exchange shop makes it as plain as day.

A Chinaman Makes It All Clear

You walk up to his open counter facing the sidewalk and ask him how much American dollars are selling for that morning.

"This morning, price very bad. My no want 'em. No man want to buy. No steamer leave today. Saturday big steamer leave for 'Merica, can give you more better price."

During the attempt to reseat the boy emperor on the Chinese throne in the summer of 1917, a money changer in Hankow sold me some Peking notes for 20 per cent of their face value, asserting that I could get full value in Peking, if I ever got there. I was on my way to Petrograd and had to get my passport amended in Peking so I took a chance on twenty-five dollars worth of Peking notes issued by the Bank of Communications which cost me five dollars in Hankow, the railway service between the Yangtze port and the capital being interrupted at the time.

One Exchange Transaction Nets 700 Per Cent

Most of the money I spent at face value in Peking for government telegrams but as I was leaving I invested a few dollars in Chinese postage stamps. At Harbin, where the Chinese and Russian post offices competed, I trusted my letters to the Chinese post because of a censorship on Russian mail and instead of buying Chinese stamps in Russian currency at a high exchange rate I affixed stamps which I had bought in Peking with Chinese currency that was debased in Hankow. My profit on the transaction ran over 700 per cent.

Certain firms and mission boards are in the habit of guaranteeing their workers a rate of at least two Chinese dollars for every gold dollar in their salary. Otherwise a good salary would be subject to a decided variation since Chinese dollars in 1915 were worth only forty cents and in 1918 they were worth nearly a dollar. Under this arrangement employees of one American corporation were sending home more money each month than they receive as salary. Two hundred dollars a month, converted at two to one would bring four hundred Chinese dollars. For 220 of these the American could buy American exchange for $200 and he would have 180 Chinese dollars to live on.

Consular officers get a guaranteed rate of exchange. Military officers get their pay and allowances at the day's rate. In Peking, during the war, a consular clerk earning $2000 a year, on which he was guaranteed a rate of $2.60, was receiving more money than a Lieut. Colonel, who was getting $1.15 for his money.

A Bureau of Standards in Money

In the office of the American Military Attaché in Peking there is an American five dollar gold piece, which has been priced more often than a hold-over pair of 1912 shoes. The officers were being paid the day's rate, which was then about $1.10 Chinese money for an American dollar. But actual gold was worth fifty per cent more. The officer rightly insisted that his men were being paid in a debased currency and insisted on receiving a balance to bring the salaries up to the rate for actual gold. Hence this solitary gold piece was taken around to the exchange shops every month and its value ascertained, but if it had been sold it would have upset the financial system, for the Chinese, ready enough to offer a price for a specific coin, refuse to quote prices on theoretical ones.

It is no wonder that there is confusion in Chinese exchange with foreign currency, for there is a varying exchange rate among the eighteen provinces themselves and the Yuan Shih Kai silver dollar is the only currency on which there is no exchange charge when crossing a provincial boundary. But that doesn't mean that it has a fixed value even then for the value of a dollar in small currency is constantly changing.

When There Is a Premium on Coppers

A silver dollar when exchanged at a foreign store, contains 100 cents. Thus if one makes a 20-cent purchase at a Shanghai department store, he gets 80 cents change, which seems fair enough until one discovers that at an exchange shop one can get eleven dimes and three cents for each dollar. When he changes one of the dimes, he will get, not ten coppers, but eleven or twelve. So that the price of a dollar in coppers runs from 130 to 140, instead of the seemingly logical 100.

This state of things gives rise to the "Oh, by the way" habit. Foreign stores will accept up to 50 cents in "small money" but more than that amount must be paid in "big money." A woman under such conditions develops a poor memory and yields to sudden impulse. She buys something for 50 cents and thus completes the transaction. But before she leaves the counter, she says "Oh, by the way" and purchases another fifty cents worth, thus keeping a dime and two or three coppers for herself. The store gets its money back by returning seven dimes as change for a 30-cent purchase and thus makes its income look, not like 30 cents, but like 44 to 50.

Tr.p Cost $200 Less Than Nothing

In Tiflis, in the spring of 1918, the rouble was selling at 15 to the dollar. I bought 6000, for there was no telling how long it would take to get out of Russia at that time. When I reached Vladivostok, some weeks later, the Japanese were preparing to send an army into Siberia and were buying up roubles. The rate there was 6.35 roubles for a $1. I traveled from the Caucasus to the Pacific and took nearly two months to do it, and when I changed my money at the end of the trip, it had cost me about $200 less than nothing. The professor with whom I had traveled for several months in Russia and Turkestan had converted all his gold into roubles before leaving America and had been spending roubles that cost him 30 cents each which bought no more than those I had bought in Tiflis for eight.

On my recent trip to India I expected to cross Persia on my way from Eastern Europe and since American gold had been worth four times as much as American paper in the Persian bazaars in 1918, I carried a small bag of gold with me. The trip across Persia proved impossible and it was not till the eve of sailing for home that I sold some of the gold which I had carried for thousands of miles and which had caused me endless arguments at nearly every boundary. Most of it I paid to the United States Customs on my arrival, after having carried it for ten months and a hundred thousand miles. There were only two times on the trip when I could have sold it for as much as I could get for a letter of credit.

Prefer Letters of Credit and Travelers' Checks

"I have never heard of anybody making money on exchange by accepting expert advice and I would never want to offer it to anyone. But when I leave American soil again, all my money is going to be invested in a letter of credit and enough travelers' checks to help me out when I want only a small sum. Boundaries reduce currency in a way that alarms the traveler and an American letter of credit is fine at any point where there is a bank. In the varying prices that one can get when merchandising his American currency, the gold coin sometimes wins, the silver coin seldom, and the greenback often. But in the eighteen countries I have just visited, my letter of credit beat every one of the many ways I carried my money.

Once in a while Fortune smiles on the traveler. Last December, in Bombay, I tried to cash a Colombo draft. The bank could not quote a rate and sent it to its Colombo office, advancing me such money as I needed in the meantime. A week later, in Karachi, I received the balance of my amount. There had been bookkeeping and telegraph charges. But the rupee had decreased in value during the time it took to complete the deal and the result was that I received nearly two hundred more rupees than I would have had if the draft had been marked Bombay instead of Colombo.

SAFETY FIRST AT FORD'S

2210 Fourth street,
Detroit, Mich.
Oct. 6, 1921.

Editor of Star:

I see by the Star that the folks back home are having a "No Accident Week."

Why not make every week "No Accident Week" like the Ford Motor Company does?

The Ford News that I am enclosing in this letter is not the only one that preaches safety first to us. From the time we go in to work until we leave, all we can see, hear or think is safety first. We see it in the movies the firm shows us; we hear it from our fellow workers and we think it when we get a full pay envelope.

Very truly yours,

WOODSMAN CAUGHT IN TREMONT STREET CHASE

Martin Driscoll, 40, of Winchester, who declares he is a woodsman by profession, was arrested after a chase on Tremont st., Boston late Saturday afternoon by Patrolman White of the Lagrange street station, after he is alleged to have robbed Cornelius O'Neill of Oakland street, Wellesley, of $30.

According to the police, O'Neill, who is 60 years old, was strolling along Tremont street near Broadway South end, when Driscoll came up from behind and, seizing him about the waist, pushed him into a doorway, snatched a roll of bills from his coat pocket and ran.

He ran, in fact, too rapidly for his own welfare, for when Patrolman White noticed him speeding along, narrowly escaping numerous collisions with pedestrians, he became curious about the reason for Driscoll's hurry, and set out in pursuit. Within two blocks White managed to collar the timber cruiser and, just as the latter was protesting that the run was due solely to a sudden desire for violent exercise, O'Neill came puffing up and told his story.

FINED IN WOBURN COURT

In court, Monday, Fred Russo of Malden was fined $10 for hunting in Winchester on the Lord's Day, and $50 because he was an alien and was hunting. John W. Coakley of Waltham was fined $75 for operating a car in Winchester while he was under the influence of liquor, $5 for not having proper lights and $5 for drunkenness, on all of which he appealed. David F. Lyons of Billerica, for operating a car in Winchester without a license, was fined $10.

SEVERAL ACCIDENTS SATURDAY

After going through the "no accident" week with a clean slate, this town made up for its record Saturday night, when no less than four accidents were recorded. The first accident, an automobile smash, occurred a few minutes before six o'clock, a touring car and a limousine coming together at the junction of Main street and the Parkway. No one was seriously injured, although a party of men and women in the limousine were shaken up by the impact. The touring car was driven by Ralph C. Legley of Worcester and the closed car owned by Maurice T. Kaplan of Roxbury.

At about an hour later, ten minutes before seven, a touring car owned by Philip W. Abellof of Chelsea, overturned on Forest street at the electric car turnout near Highland avenue. In this accident Miss Bessie Abellof and Maurice Korlson, both of Chelsea, were quite badly cut and scratched, necessitating treatment by Dr. Richard W. Sheehy. The automobile was badly injured by the overturn. This party was able to proceed to its destination later.

At 9 o'clock a car driven by Michael P. Meskel of Park street struck James McCue on Mt. Vernon street near the Savings Bank. McCue was knocked down and injured about the knees and legs. He was taken to his home on Sheridan circle.

The fourth accident was on Cambridge street near the junction of Everett avenue, a trolley car being struck by an automobile driven by David T. Lyons of Cambridge. The electric was in charge of Arthur H. Upham of Melrose. In the collision several windows in the electric were smashed, but fortunately none of the passengers were injured. Lyons was arrested by the Winchester police for operating an automobile without a license. Lyons claimed he did not see the electric. His auto was badly damaged by the collision.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR MISS SANBORN

Miss Helen Sanborn had a narrow escape from injury and possible death on Monday evening when driving her automobile on the Alewife Brook Parkway near Massachusetts avenue. She was startled by the noise of a shot, and immediately was showered with glass as a bullet went through her windshield. Had she not been leaning partly out of the side of the car watching a tire, she would certainly have been hit.

She continued on her way, looking for an officer to report the matter to, but meeting none, telephoned the Cambridge police from her home here. They are working on the case. At this time it is not thought that a deliberate attempt was made to shoot her, but rather that the shot was a stray, fired by some boy.

TELEPHONE WEEK

Winchester telephone users, in common with all others in the system hereabouts, received this month an invitation to visit the local exchange and view for themselves the working of this marvelous system which is today so necessary both in business and social life.

In connection with the invitation extended, the following letter to heads of the telephone departments from Vice-President Driver is of interest:

Its aim is to improve our relations with the public and the method outlined—that of inviting the public to visit our exchanges to see how service is given—has been successfully tried before.

This latest suggestion is that each exchange in our territory arrange and encourage such visits during a week especially designated for that purpose, and emphasize the thought that, during that week, every employee of the Company be invited to assist in carrying out the program.

I approve this plan for mobilizing our entire force in behalf of better public relations and appoint the week from October 17th to October 22nd, inclusive, as visiting week.

Beyond setting the date, I give no definite instructions as to the details of the plan. My observation has been that the greatest success of past experiences along this line has come when the employees at a given exchange have been encouraged to help plan and develop the details incidental to a visit by the public.

I would suggest that these details be left to the ingenuity and discretion of the functional heads of each exchange, assisted by a sort of advisory or service committee. One exchange may deem it advisable to have these visits by the public during every day of a designated week, while another may think it more effective to concentrate its efforts on a single afternoon or evening.

We all recognize that the intelligent co-operation by subscribers is a vital factor in giving good telephone service. In order to give that co-operation, the subscriber should know how and why we perform certain operations. The immediate task in connection with this plan, therefore, is to get the telephone-using public, as far as it is possible to do so, to visit our central offices and there to give them a clear picture of our methods, our desires and our limitations.

Please issue the necessary instructions to your subordinates to see that this visiting plan is carried out. I would suggest that in these instructions you emphasize the need of hearty co-operation between the functions, in order to assure the fullest success. Advertising and other forms of publicity, including booklets, will be provided by the Publicity Department.

JOHN F. CARR, LEATHER MANUFACTURER DIES

John F. Carr, president of the Carr Leather Company, with factories at Woburn, Peabody and Winchester, died Sunday morning after an illness of several days at his home, Walker road, Swampscott.

Mr. Carr was 58 years old. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Annie Carr, a son, Walter Carr of the Rialto Shoe Company, Lynn; a sister, Mrs. Mary J. Carr of Lynn, and three brothers, Frank J. of Winchester, Edward P. Carr of Swampscott and Thomas F. Carr of Salem.

Funeral services were held at the Church of St. John the Evangelist at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. Requiem high mass was celebrated by Rev. Patrick Coleman. Burial was in St. Mary's Cemetery, Lynn.

Mr. Carr was born in Boston, April 6, 1863, the son of Felix and Jane Carr. His father was the first man to have a leather factory in Woburn.

John F. Carr learned the trade from his father and then launched into business for himself. He was the owner of the Carr Leather Company plant in Salem, which was destroyed in the big fire. A factory of the company was then opened at Peabody. Offices were established at 497 Union street, Lynn, and at 202 Lincoln street, Boston.

NOVELTY SHOWER

Miss Katherine Flynn of Linden street was tendered a novelty shower by her friends last week at her home in honor of her coming marriage to Mr. Edward Harrington of Malden.

Friends were present from Winchester, Arlington, Woburn, Malden and Medford, and Miss Flynn received many useful gifts. The evening was spent socially and several rendered songs and fancy dancing. Among whom were Wm. Boyle and Mary and John O'Connell.

Noble Grand Roscoe C. Wallace of Melrose Lodge, I. O. O. F., a well-known official at the Winchester Laundry, had charge of the two day's celebration in honor of the lodge's golden jubilee last week. He introduced the speaker of the evening, Mayor Goodwin, on the opening night, and accepted on behalf of the lodge a basket of flowers and a gift of $50 from his wife, Mrs. Edith T. Wallace, Noble Grand of Golden Rule Rebekah Lodge.

Tuesday evening, Oct. 18, is the date for the coming lecture on Christian Science by John J. Flinn, C. S. The lecture will be in the Winchester Town Hall, opening at 8 o'clock. The public is invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Daly left Winchester this week for the Lake Placid Club, Essex County, New York, where they will spend the winter. Mr. Daly has been located there for the past month.

At the rummage sale last week, Vassar College graduates and students here realized $500.

Tango Pauline, a daughter of Langwater May King with a record of 9,559.7 pounds milk, 535.97 pounds fat. She is 12½ percent May Rose and is out of Governor's Pauline, 14,930 pounds milk, 844.47 pounds fat.

Blossom Hill GUERNSEY MILK

Last week we announced in this paper, beginning November 1st we would prepare to supply a limited number of Winchester residents with certified Guernsey Milk produced by a small herd selected from our famous Albamont Herd of registered purebred Guernseys, which is located at Campton "High in the Hills of New Hampshire." We have been very much gratified with the response received to that advertisement and are glad that the people of Winchester appreciate the unusual opportunity we are offering them to get absolutely clean wholesome milk of the superlative quality which only Guernsey cows can produce.

As previously stated, our herds are under Federal supervision and are regularly tested for tuberculosis by the Government, therefore, the milk produced by our rugged healthy Guernseys is as safe a milk as it is possible to produce.

Our herd includes some of the greatest producing cows of the breed, a few of whose pictures we show herewith, consequently, considering the great value of the animals, it is absolutely necessary for our own protection that their health and condition be carefully watched with extreme care. They are kept in quarters which the average farmer would hardly recognize as a cow barn, and given attention which no ordinary producer of milk could possibly afford to bestow on his animals. This means a perfectly clean milk product.

Guernsey milk has the richest natural yellow color of any milk. The flavor of Guernsey milk is unsurpassed. Guernsey milk contains an average of better than 5% butterfat and also a proportionately high amount of other solids. Guernsey milk is consequently much more nutritious than other milk. Because of the care we take in safeguarding our animals our Guernsey milk is as safe and healthy as any milk money could possibly buy.

Royal's Pearl, a daughter of the great May Rose sire, Langwater Royal, holds third place in Class D with a record of 16,930.4 pounds milk, 788.37 pounds fat. She is 12½ percent May Rose and a half sister to Pearl's Dot.

Our production has to quite an extent been taken up but we still have a little surplus left, and we therefore suggest that any persons desiring to avail themselves of this unusual supply of milk get in touch immediately with W. F. NOBLE & SONS COMPANY, 16 Sewall Street, Somerville, who will deliver our milk from our dairy in Winchester, where it is produced, bottled and sealed, directly to our customers' homes.

Our milk will not be pasteurized as this process of destroying disease germs we do not consider necessary in view of the care that is taken in the production of our milk and the health of our animals.

The price of Blossom Hill Certified Guernsey Milk will be 25 cents per quart, which is 5 cents per quart less than the competitive market price of regular certified milk which is not of as high quality as Guernsey certified milk.

World's record Roll of Honor Guernsey cow, Duchess Ruth, which made 14,644.2 pounds milk, 850.49 pounds fat, placing her at the head of Class AA. This was her third A. R. record. Her daughter is also in the Albamont Herd.

THE CO-OPERATIVE BANKS

The Massachusetts Co-operative Bank League will hold its thirty-third annual meeting in Boston during the coming week. It will bring together representatives of a class of financial institutions to which present-day conditions give an unusual opportunity in the promotion of the well-being of the individual and of the community. The co-operative bank stands as the friend of the man who would own his home. It is thus essentially a factor in the cultivation of habits of thrift and in the maintenance of good citizenship. In an era when family life is exposed to many dangers the co-operative bank comes as a guardian of the hearth. The aid which it extends to the home-builder not only tends to the preservation of the old-time ideals in American home life, but it also serves as a contribution to good government in town and city.

With urgent need of building for domestic purposes in Massachusetts, as elsewhere throughout the country, it is proper to call attention to the fact that the co-operative banks offer opportunities for the depositor, as well as for the home-builder, who is both investor and borrower. These institutions have been a powerful agency in the progress already made in efforts to off-set the housing shortage, they provide means for the use of Massachusetts money in the towns and cities of Massachusetts. They are home enterprises worthy of an ample measure of home support.

Co-operative banks in Massachusetts are the development of the past forty years. In that time they have grown in number until there are now 206 of them, and it is significant that four have been added to the list since last spring. Here is evidence that business depression has not halted this movement in the interest of home and community. The co-operative banks have assets of more than $190,000,000. They long ago took their place as recognized members of the company of financial institutions which have proved their worth. It is safe to predict that they have before them a career of increasing usefulness.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Friday, October 21, the Winchester Union will hold an all day sewing meeting of the type which has proved to be most popular in other seasons. Coming together at the vestry of the First Congregational Church at ten a. m. the members work diligently until the noon day recess when there is a basket luncheon, after which work is resumed. The business session is called to order at two o'clock but the needles are quite generally plied while the business is being transacted and adjournment is made early enough to enable the workers to reach home in good season. This month's meeting will be divided between the making of comfort bags for the sailors and the preparation of articles for the sale for the benefit of the Italian Y. P. B. in the North End of Boston. The latter will be held late in November and members of the Union and their friends are asked to make contributions of aprons or other practical articles for the same. This is the work in which Dr. N. Louise Rand is so deeply interested and which, owing to her serious illness during the past year, is somewhat behind.

October 25 to 28 the Massachusetts W. C. T. U. will hold its forty-eighth annual convention in Worcester, and it promises to be unusually interesting. Reports of the progress of the Jubilee Fund, and the Membership Campaign will be made and it is hoped that the Katherine Lent Stevenson Memorial Fund will be reported as completed so some young woman may enjoy the scholarship which will bear the name of the leader of the Massachusetts white ribboners for a score of years. An attractive program has been arranged for the convention and those who go will be well repaid for the effort. Winchester has two members on the State Executive Committee, Mrs. Gleason, president, and Mrs. Hamilton, president of Middlesex County. Three delegates will also be sent to represent the local Union.

IMPORTANT CONFERENCE HERE

The coming conference of Massachusetts Planning Boards, to be held this year in Winchester on Wednesday, Oct. 19th, will be one of the most important of its kind the State has yet held. That Winchester has been selected by its excellence, Governor Channing H. Cox, in calling the conference, as worthy a visitation and survey, is gratifying to every resident.

The conference is the eighth to be held. Mr. Preston Pond of the local planning board, chairman of the Massachusetts Federation of Planning Boards, will preside at the formal session opening at 2 p. m. The opening address will be made by Governor Cox, and important speakers are to be Richard K. Conant, Commissioner of Public Welfare; Arthur E. Tarbell, Billboard Inspector of the State Department of Public Works, who will speak on "Regulation of Billboards"; James A. Bailey, Chairman of the Metropolitan District Commission, and others.

The formal meeting is to be held at the Winchester Country Club following a luncheon at one o'clock. In the morning the visitors are to hold a field session, with an inspection of town planning achievements in Winchester, including a trip to the reservoir in the Fells. Mr. Flavel Shurtleff, secretary of the National Conference on City Planning, will speak during the trip on features of particular interest.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

The Spectator knows of homes in Winchester where certain antagonisms exist which go far toward destroying the happiness of the household. Caroline Benedict Burrell puts it well when she says: "There are mothers who train their children from infancy to dwell together in unity; there are others who cannot do this, and through no fault of their own. Radical differences of temperament often cannot be reasoned or persuaded away, but go so deep that they will persist while flesh and blood endure. With children born to such antagonisms there is but one hope for the peace of the home life—separation." The foregoing winter cites in illustration two boys who may be obligated to room together, one is healthy and boisterous; the other is delicate and fastidious, and appalled by the noise and confusion in which he has to live. The parent says they must each give up to the other, and punishes them when they quarrel; and the inevitable consequence is that the brath between the two widens daily. Two sisters of opposite dispositions, one nervous, orderly, peaceable, the other strong, wilful and helter-skelter, have to endure daily an enforced companionship, constantly rebelling against it and those who insist upon it. Naturally, as soon as they are yours, they drift apart at once the further the better, as they think. In both these cases how simple it might have been to have separated the children if necessary, to give them different homes for a time; and so since history proves the fact, let absence make their hearts grow fonder.

A Winchesterite, by no means an authority on sports, recently had occasion to ride through a district once plentifully, yea, abundantly supplied with evening loafers. To do them justice, there were few cases of theft, and not often did the corner loungeer insult a woman. It was not a vicious neighborhood, but loafing was fashionable, and there was a kind of young fellow who apparently had no idea of leisure except holding up a post or prepping a tree. No optimist could have found anything cheering in the prospect. A young fellow who spends the evenings of two or three summers in this way is not likely to develop manliness. On a recent fine evening he rode by the familiar corner. There was a ball game on the vacant lot, the players were alive, the onlookers were raised to a genuine interest. It was a decided improvement on the twilight of former times in the same locality.

While there have been alleged wonders of nature that were purely fictitious it is probable that the majority of such errors that get into print are due to misapprehension or to haste. The statement that a lost hen was found, after two months, buried under several feet of hay is accompanied by the statement that the former fowl had no food or water during all that period. Granted as to water, but may not the hen have found small insects of some kind in the hay? Between the amount of food necessary to preserve vigor and the amount that will barely support life there is a wide margin. The experiences of war prisoners and of castaways prove that there are human beings who can approach the starvation point and yet survive. It is not given to man to the mammals, or to ordinary bipeds to fast as snakes and tads apparently can, but Winchesterites would do well to investigate the hen story.

CIVICS AND TRADE ASSOCIATION DROPPED

A meeting of the Winchester Board of Trade was held Friday evening in Lyceum Hall for the discussion of the recently inaugurated movement for the forming of a Civics and Trade Association in Winchester. The meeting was called in the new rooms taken last week by the organization on Main street, the members adjourning to the hall for more ample space. President George T. Davidson presided. There was an attendance of 23 members of the organization and the new movement was discussed at length. A number of the members opposed the idea and questioned the need of such an association here, although the chief obstacle appeared to be the financial obligation incurred. The result of the meeting was a vote to drop the movement and terminate the contract made with the American City Bureau, which has been conducting the campaign.

MAIL BOXES REQUIRED

Editor of the Star:

I enclose extracts from a communication from the Postmaster General to postoffices of the first, second, third class;—

If expeditious and efficient city delivery service is to be accorded it is essential that all buildings to which mail is delivered be properly numbered and EQUIPPED WITH PRIVATE MAIL RECEPTACLES. Without house numbers carriers are delayed in serving the routes and errors in delivery unavoidably occur, especially when substitutes are on duty. This condition, coupled with the lack of mail receptacles, inevitably impairs efficiency and delays delivery, with a resultant public inconvenience and loss.

No particular style or type of receptacle is required by the department. It may consist of either a slot in the door, or a conveniently located box of any suitable material. House numbers should of course conform to the system and style adopted by the municipal authorities.

Contractors and builders should be solicited to aid the movement by properly numbering all new buildings erected by them and providing mail slots in or near front doors, and the cooperation of the municipal authorities should be obtained with respect to house numbers.

House numbers enable carriers to locate promptly buildings to which mail is addressed, and avoid errors and delays in delivery.

Mail receptacles insure the prompt and safe delivery of mail in the absence of occupants. Avoid delay of mail through return to office because of absence of occupants or delay in answering carriers' ring obviate the necessity of patrons responding to the bell at inconvenient moments. Expedite the service generally, and permit more prompt deliveries, especially to patrons residing near the end of a route.

After all patrons have been communicated with the carriers should be required to report results, and the matter should be followed up in cases where either a receptacle or a number has not been provided.

May I ask the hearty cooperation of the people of Winchester in carrying out the above recommendation?

C. H. Lochman,
Acting Postmaster.

K. OF C. NOTES

Last Sunday afternoon the Minstrel Show Committee met at the home of Grand Knight Sullivan to draw up plans for the annual minstrel show of the council which takes place in January.

The show will be given under the direction of George "Decker" Thornton of South Boston whose ability in this line is well known in Winchester. The committee agreed after an interview with Mr. Thornton that he has lost none of his old time "pep," as the program outlined for their consideration promises to surpass that of his effort of two years ago, when he filled the Town Hall to the brim—and then some—with the most enthusiastic audience ever gathered together in the town.

Mr. Luke P. Glendon P. G. K., is chairman of the general committee; Mr. Edmund Goggin, treasurer; and Mr. Thomas Collins, secretary, with the following sub-committees:

Tickets
Walter Shaughnessy, John Piccolo,
Henry Longfield, J. Chris Sullivan, G. K.

Press Committee
Frank Rogers, P. G. K. Leo McNally, James Valley, Edward F. Boyle.

Publicity Committee
Terence Cullen, Thomas Collins, Edmund Goggin, Frances Murphy,
Daniel Roudon.

Stage Properties
Michael Foley, James Boyle,
George Young, Henry Haley.

Transportation
William McKee, Frank Boyle,
Albert Lawton, Edward Moore.

The rehearsals for this affair will begin in November. Meanwhile a number of socials will be given in connection with the Minstrel show, the first of which will be a novelty dance Nov. 3rd under the auspices of the K. of C. It is hoped that all who have the welfare of the new Home at heart will patronize these smaller affairs.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT YOUR BATTERY

There are a few battery facts that every car owner should keep in mind says Mr. R. R. Chase, Jr., Willard Service Station Dealer.

"One thing he ought to keep in view is that batteries are bound to wear out in the course of time. Of course, the better the material and workmanship the greater the chance of long life, but wear is always going on just as it does in a piece of machinery.

"Another thing; the life of any battery depends to a considerable extent upon what kind of treatment it gets. Neglect, abuse, and carelessness shorten its life just as surely as you'd shorten the life of a bearing by allowing dust to mix with the oil.

"In short, the responsibility is just about divided fifty-fifty between the car owner and the battery builder. You have to get a good battery to begin with and you must take care of it after you get it."

WINCHESTER DEFEATED WAKEFIELD

Winchester High went to Wakefield Friday afternoon and defeated the High School of that town 7-0 in a well played game not wholly told by simple score figures. Two of Winchester's best players were laid up and out of the game, making the win all the more deserving. A touchdown in the last half by Muggins, playing substitute fullback, followed by a goal by Winer, totalled the score. Coach Bond is turning out a team which will have to be reckoned with in the Mystic Valley Series this season.

A LECTURE

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"SPIRITUAL REGENERATION"

By JOHN J. FLINN, C. S. Former Resident of Winchester

Member of the Board of Lectureship, The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

An audience which filled the Town Hall enjoyed the lecture on Christian Science last Tuesday evening, by Mr. John J. Flinn, C. S., a former resident of this town. Among the audience were many Winchester people who although not Christian Scientists, were interested to learn more about this healing religion.

The lecturer was introduced by Mr. G. R. Townsend, First Reader of the local Christian Science Church who spoke as follows:

Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science, provided for the Church which she established, a manual of rules and by-laws. This work is known as "The Manual of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist," in Boston, Massachusetts.

Article 31, section 1 of this manual reads in part: "This church shall maintain a board of lectureship."

Article 32, section 4 reads in part: "The Mother Church and its branch churches shall call on the Board of Lectureship annually for one or more lectures."

In obedience to this rule of the manual this lecture tonight is being given by First Church of Christ, Scientist of Winchester, a branch of the Mother Church. It is my privilege to welcome you on its behalf.

Today more than ever before in the history of the human race the predominating desire in the hearts of men is for righteousness. Gradually humanity is emerging from its erroneous conceptions of God and His creation into a knowledge of Him as infinite perfection. How to hasten the day when the last vestige of seeming bondage to discordant beliefs shall disappear from consciousness is the greatest problem confronting us.

That Christian Science offers a practical solution to this problem is the opinion of a large and growing number of people.

We have assembled tonight to hear about Christian Science from one who comes to us fully qualified to speak with authority on the subject. He is an accredited member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church.

He does not need an introduction to a Winchester audience. His home was in our midst for a number of years. He was a much beloved member of the community and numbers among us a host of friends.

I take great pleasure in presenting John J. Flinn, C. S. of Evanston, Ill.

Lecture

In that illustrious and immortal document, the American Declaration of Independence, one of the truths which the framers and signers held to be self-evident was that all men are entitled to Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. Countless multitudes in practically all nations of the earth have since subscribed to this assertion of elemental human privilege. In recent years, outside as well as inside of the United States, more than ever before, the inalienable right of mankind to life, liberty and the unhampered pursuit of happiness has been affirmed.

Eighteen centuries before the Declaration of Independence became the Magna Charta of the American colonies, however, man's right to life in all its fullness was proclaimed by Christ Jesus in the presence of the persecuting Pharisees, in that beautiful figure of speech wherein he describes himself as a Shepherd who is willing to lay down his life, if necessary, for his sheep. "I am come," he said, "that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." Again, he told the Jews, who were striving to harass and embarrass him, how they might secure real freedom. In almost his first utterance in the presence of the rabbis, he read from Isaiah the marvelous passage predicting the coming of the Messiah: "The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me; because the Lord hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek; he hath sent me to bind up the broken-hearted to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them who are bound." In the First Psalm is laid down the basis upon which man may obtain happiness. He "walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful, but his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in his law doth he meditate day and night." And Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, ever alert to perceive, and ever jealous to conserve, every privilege of the children of God, declares in the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures: "Discerning the rights of man, we cannot fail to foresee the doom of all oppression. Slavery is not the legitimate state of man. God made man free. Paul said, 'I was free born.' All men should be free. Where the spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty. Love and Truth make free, but evil and error lead into captivity."

FRUITLESS PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS

For ages men have been engaged in an effort to get more out of life, to obtain a larger measure of liberty.

KILLED BY AIRPLANE FALL

Edward S. Foster, Jr., and Companion Met Death Friday

Edward Stanley Foster, Jr., 21 years old, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stanley Foster of Grove street, was killed on Friday forenoon shortly after 11 o'clock when the monoplane in which he and a mechanic were flying fell from a height of about 1000 feet into the Lynn marsh. Both Mr. Foster and his companion were dead when they arrived at the Frost Memorial Hospital, Chelsea, where they were taken.

The accident was witnessed by several persons. It was apparent that the aviator had met with some trouble and desired to land. The plane made a long sweeping turn to avoid a possible fall in the streets or thickly settled territory, and as it headed for the marsh it appeared that the right wing collapsed. The aviators left the aviation field at Saugus at 10:45 a. m. and circled over the marshes and along Revere Beach for several minutes previous to the accident.

Investigation of the accident in which Edward Stanley Foster, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stanley Foster of this town, with his companion, Fletcher Anderson, lost their lives shows that it is impossible to fix absolute responsibility upon either the maker and owner of the plane, Barney Johnson, or upon the young aviator. It appears that the latter had been made acquainted with certain changes in the machine, but that he did not regard them as serious, although necessary in order to register the machine.

On the other hand, Edward Foster had received a course of instruction on the Lynn Beach field a year ago this fall and also during the spring of the present year, while last summer he had taken a course in aviation on the Diggins Aviation Field, near Chicago, where he had displayed remarkable knowledge of aviation, obtaining a diploma from that institution in advance of all his classmates. As a matter of fact he was exceptionally well informed and instructed in the line of work he had chosen and was so reported by his instructors. Upon young Foster's learning that a recent law required a license, he immediately made application for the same and was momentarily expecting the receipt of it when the accident occurred.

It is presumption, rather than a known fact that the machine developed in the last trip constructive weakness which together with lack of practical experience on the part of the young aviator led to the disaster. He was known to be expert, cool and without fear. Probably taken at an average he was as well equipped for flight as any in the profession.

The young man was born in Magnolia and had resided in Winchester since he was a baby. He was educated at the Wadleigh Grammar School and Monson Academy, being a graduate of the latter in the class of 1919, and went to the Diggins Aviation School in Chicago last August.

He was an expert in the making of wireless telegraphy outfits and in operating wireless machines. A wireless outfit made and used by him has been presented to, and is being used at the Winchester High School.

His interest in aviation was even more keen than his study of wireless telegraphy during the past few years. His parents and friends say that he planned to follow up aviation as a career and was planning to enter the commercial aviation field. He was a member of the Winchester Boy Scouts when younger, and was also a member of the local chapter of the Gamma Eta Kappa fraternity.

Besides his parents he leaves one sister, Mrs. Joseph Adams of 7 Lewis road.

Christian Science services in memory of the young aviator were held Tuesday afternoon at the residence of his parents, 15 Grove street.

Mr. George Townsend, First Reader of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Winchester, officiated, reading appropriate hymns and correlated passages from the Bible and Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy. The selections, beautifully rendered, were of most appropriate character and were made strikingly impressive by reason of the introduction of several sacred numbers from a hidden orchestra conducted by Miss Charlotte White. All the surroundings gave evidence of the remarkable esteem and popularity in which young Foster was held in his home town and elsewhere. Seldom has been witnessed such an outpouring of affection for a youth as evidenced from the floral tributes which were sent to him, not only by persons in the community, but from many distant parts. The various groups and societies to which Edward Foster had belonged were represented, not only with tributes of this character, but by the personal presence of his associates. Peculiarly noticeable were the number of young men in attendance.

To the parents of the boy, ever since the accident, telegrams and letters of sympathy have been pouring in from numbers of people, in the east and from distant parts of the country expressing deep sympathy and love.

The interment was in the family lot at Magnolia where brief Christian Science readings were also given by Mr. Townsend in the presence of a large number of old friends and neighbors of the Foster and the Knowlton families in the Magnolia and Gloucester region of the North Shore, where young Edward Foster was born. He had just passed his 21st birthday.

Mr. Richard W. Grant, supervisor of music is to be song leader at the Middlesex County Teachers' Convention on Friday, Oct. 28th at Tremont Temple.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

Former Winchester Couple Celebrated 50th Anniversary at Woburn

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lee Follen Bridge of New York, former residents of Winchester, observed their 50th wedding anniversary on Tuesday at the home of their eldest child, Mrs. George A. Blaisdell, 66 Mt. Pleasant street, Woburn.

Mr. Bridge was born in Bernards-ton on Jan. 16, 1849, and is a lineal descendant in the sixth generation of the Puritan deacon John Bridge, who came to this country from England in 1632 and who settled in Cambridge. He it was who, associated with John Harvard, founder of the college which bears his name, originated the political activity and the educational system of the city of Cambridge. He was prominent in Colonial politics, and Charles W. Eliot of Harvard University, in dedicating his statue on Cambridge common said "He helped to establish church, school and a representative government, and thus to plant a Christian Commonwealth."

Charles L. F. Bridge was one of the original members of the Class of 1869 at Harvard and was one of the ten young men who founded the Winchester Young Men's Association, which later changed its title to the Calumet Club. The other members with him in its formation were Thomas Ayer, George Carter, Austin Eaton, Henry Johnson, Frank Prince, Thomas Spurr, George Stratton and Arthur Whitney.

In 1876 Mr. Bridge went to New York and has since been engaged in business there. For the last 21 years he has been connected with John Moody of Moody's Investors Service, and although 73 years of age, every morning finds him at his desk.

Mrs. Marietta Bridge was born August 19, 1852, a daughter of Joseph A. and Emeline S. (Lowe) Safford.

To Mr. and Mrs. Bridge seven children were born, of whom five are living and attended the golden wedding. There are four grandchildren.

A PORTABLE SCHOOL FOR THE WYMAN DISTRICT

The School Committee is desirous to purchase a one-room portable school building for use at the Wyman School and are considering the various means by which funds for the purpose may be raised. Such a building with equipment will cost about $2500.

The use of such a building is the best way to relieve an overcrowded condition where at present five grades are using four rooms.

The committee has also decided that until a portable building is secured the first and second grades shall be placed on a part time schedule using one room for both grades. This change will go into effect next Monday. The hours for the different grades are as follows:

Grade I.... 8:30-10:30 12:30-2:00

Grade II.... 10:30-12:30 2:00-4:00

It is hoped that this new arrangement will be only temporary and that a portable building may be secured. If the plans for securing a portable building are not successful, some minor adjustments in the plan, especially in the winter months, may be made.

OUTING AT SHARON

Many of our townspeople journeyed to Sharon last week, Wednesday, to attend the Boston Commandery Barbecue. A concert by Boston Commandery Band was furnished at noon, after which all sat down to partake of the food which was greatly enjoyed.

After lunch, announcement was made by Eminent Sir Knight Briggs that the Sharon Country Club had extended the hospitality of the Country Club to Sir Knights present. Sir Knight S. A. Vanner was designated chairman of the Golf Committee. A large number took advantage of the privilege and greatly enjoyed the picturesque course. Prizes were offered for the best gross and net scores, also one for a driving contest, all of which were awarded to Sir Knight C. Harry Bowler, professional, Winchester Country Club.

After distributing the much sought-for prizes, members repaired to the club house where refreshments were served.

Rivalry was very keen in the many sport contests. Harry I. Webber of Arlington finished second in the fat men's race and Sir Knight W. W. Smart carried off the prize in the peanut race. Much interest prevailed in the ham sandwich contest which was won by Sir Knight Harry Bowler who thoughtfully distributed them to many of the Sir Knights present. Dr. F. H. Williams of Brookline secured a valuable prize.

About two thousand people were present and all pronounced it a most enjoyable time.

LONGER LUNCH PERIOD FOR PUPILS

In consideration of the wishes of a number of parents in the Gifford, Mystic and Highland schools the noon recess has been increased from one hour and a quarter to one hour and a half, changing the afternoon session from 1:15-3:00 to 1:30-3:15. The opinion of parents was secured by the Superintendent of School by means of a circular letter. The returns from this showed a preference for the longer noon period, and the objections offered to lengthening the period did not seem to be so important to the welfare of all the pupils as the objections to the shorter period.

DR. FREDRIKA MOORE

DR. MOORE LEAVES WINCHESTER

While it is with a sense of genuine regret that Winchester people learn that Dr. Fredrika Moore, a practicing physician in the town since 1911, and Associate School Physician since 1913, has given up her practice in Winchester to accept a position as Pediatrician, Department of Hygiene, State Board of Public Health, it is also a source of satisfaction that this larger opportunity comes to one who is so well qualified for the position, and so thoroughly deserving.

Dr. Moore is a graduate of Wellesley College, and of Boston University Medical School, and, since receiving her degree from the latter institution, has been constantly on the staff of the Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital, in the Children's Department; she has also lectured at Boston University Medical School on Materia Medica.

During her stay in Winchester Dr. Moore has endeared herself to all who knew her, and the quiet tactfulness and common sense which she combines with her professional ability has enabled her to promote many progressive ideas in connection with public health work in the community.

The open air school rooms, which so many mothers pronounced most helpful to their children, and which have been copied in many other states, were the result of her suggestions in The Fortnightly, and the same is true of the supplementary feeding of milk to undernourished children in our schools at the present time. She has also been associated with the Board of Health as Director of Tuberculosis work.

In taking up her new duties, which have to do with child welfare, Dr. Moore has chosen the work that has always been uppermost in her heart, and for which she has unusual fitness. We feel that the Board of Public Health has made a most fortunate selection. Dr. Moore's genuine spirit of helpfulness in every good cause will be long remembered in Winchester, and many good wishes will follow her to her new field.

PLANNING BOARDS MEET HERE

Winchester Viewed by Officials of 30 Towns and Cities

Winchester was visited by representatives of 30 towns and cities of this State on Wednesday, when the eighth annual conference of Massachusetts planning boards was held here, the home of President Preston Pond of the Federation. The conference included a two hours' ride about the town and through the Fells, luncheon at the Winchester Country Club, and an afternoon meeting with a number of important speakers on subjects interesting communities throughout the State.

The conference opened at 10:40 a. m., when the members assembled at Waterfield road preparatory to viewing what Winchester has done and contemplates doing along town planning lines. Mr. Flavel Shurtliff of Cliff street, Secretary of the National Conference on City Planning, addressed the gathering before the start, outlining the general features to be shown on the ride and giving a brief history of conditions in the immediate vicinity as they had been handled by the Town.

The start was well planned, for Mr. Shurtliff was able to point out from the scene the local plans in the civic centre district, showing the grouping of the Town Hall, High School, Unitarian Church, bridges and landscape features made possible through the pond and river.

Forty automobiles conveyed the party, every car containing at least one Winchester resident to act as guide, and a number of High School pupils were included in this capacity.

In general the route outlined the town, the procession passing down the Parkway to the Medford line, showing the Mystic Lakes; going through the Fells around the reservoirs, visiting the Hospital, crossing to the northern west side section, viewing Black Ball Pond development, Wildwood Cemetery, the Hill section and closing the trip at the Country Club. Accompanying the autos was the service truck of the Winchester Garage, which cared for and promptly handled any car trouble which was encountered by the driver.

The planning boards that were represented at the conference included those of Boston, Arlington, Attleboro, Brookline, Braintree, Cambridge, Clinton, Dedham, Everett, Fitchburg, Framingham, Gardner, Haverhill, Leominster, Lexington, Malden, Melrose, Methuen, Natick, Newton, Norwood, Pittsfield, Quincy, Springfield, Taunton, Wakefield, Walpole, Waltham, Winchester, Weston and Worcester.

Lunch was served at the Country Club at 2 o'clock, about 175 sitting down. The beautiful warm fall weather was a most fortunate and enjoyable feature, enabling the spreading of tables on the club veranda and adding greatly to the social side of the meeting. In fact the meeting was far the most successful and largest attended in the history of the Federation.

President Preston Pond called the meeting to order and presided, Rev. Howard J. Chidley of the First Congregational Church being the first speaker, taking "The Citizen and the Community." His talk was interesting and along a contrast in general of American and European towns.

In the absence of Governor Cox, Mr. B. Loring Young, Speaker of the House of Representatives, represented the State. His remarks cited instances of good and bad municipal and national planning, and he spoke to considerable effect upon the interesting billboard nuisance, asking general support in curtailing this objectionable and unsightly feature throughout our State. The 10 points of objection were listed as fire risk, filth, hiding places for criminals and immoral persons, wind hazard, traffic danger, breeding spots for the Gypsy moth, depreciation of surrounding real estate, the effect on State improvements and ugliness.

The meeting passed a resolution asking that the State employ a field secretary for the Department of Public Welfare and asking for the appropriation of a sum for such purpose.

Other speakers were Mr. Richard K. Conant, Commissioner of Public Welfare, and Mr. Lincoln Bryant of Milton, a well known attorney, who has acted as counsel in billboard cases, and who stated that strict regulation of the nuisance is possible, but its abolition may not be feasible under law. The billboard phase was by far the most interesting to the members present, and there was a unanimous sentiment towards working for the abolition of the evil.

Mr. James A. Bailey, Chairman of the Metropolitan District Commission, spoke of the work accomplished and gave a very interesting talk on civic planning and the methods of its conduct.

The annual election resulted as follows:

Chairman—Horace B. Gale of Natick.

Vice-Chairman—George C. Gardner of Springfield.

Secretary—Arthur C. Corey of Cambridge.

Treasurer—Joseph Finberg of Attleboro.

Executive Committee for three years—Preston Pond of Winchester.

The dental clinic established by the local Red Cross has begun its work with the children of the public schools. Heretofore Winchester children have been sent to the Harvard Dental School for treatment. It will be of considerable advantage to have them cared for at home. A number of local dentists who have conducted the dental examination of children in the schools for the past several years have consented to continue to do this. Their preliminary examination will relieve the Red Cross dentist of a good deal of time that may be spent directly on treating the children's teeth. The dentists doing dental inspection this year are Dr. Hindes, Dr. Nutter, Dr. Wolfe, Dr. Parker and Dr. Blackler.

HOT FIRE AT ADAMS HOUSE

Much Smoke and Considerable Excitement Tuesday Noon

Much excitement was occasioned Tuesday forenoon by an active fire at the residence of Mr. Joseph C. Adams on Dix street. Discovered simultaneously by several people, the fire had gained considerable headway and was sending forth a blinding volume of smoke. As it was it gave the fire department a bad hour before it was brought under control, with considerable damage to the room and a big water damage inside.

The fire evidently caught from the outside roof. Mr. Adams had but entered the house and had burned some newspapers in the fire place. It is thought a burning piece of paper went out of the chimney and lodged on the roof near the gutter, burning a hole inside and then travelling through the unfinished portion. The house has a long sloping roof with quite a space almost impossible of access.

The first alarm was sent in from Dr. Emery's office, a woman passing through the Prince school yard noticing the smoke. This was followed immediately by an alarm from the Calumet Club and other surrounding places. Many thought the Prince school was on fire, the house being very close to it.

The smoke was so dense on the third floor that the firemen found it almost impossible to work inside, and firemen John Danahy and John Flaherty were partially overcome. Danahy got to a window and hung there for some time before he could descend a ladder raised for him, while the only way Flaherty could get out was by following his line of hose.

This dense smoke led Chief DeCourcy to hold two lines of hose outside, he expecting momentarily that the fire would break through the roof. A good breeze made this feature something to be watched carefully.

The mump was put into use and in a little under an hour the fire was practically out. Aside from Mr. Adams' loss, two occupants, Miss M. A. Shireff and Mr. James N. Flinn, escaped with no loss. Mr. Adams suffered considerable loss. Many of the ceilings were gone beyond repair through the water, considerable furniture was damaged and the roof of the house will need much repairing.

LORD—DELOREA

Many prominent guests attended the wedding reception of Miss Dorothy M. DeLoria, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon DeLoria of 7 Woodside road, and Mr. Frederick J. Lord, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Lord of North Woburn last week Wednesday. The couple were married at four o'clock at St. Mary's rectory by Rev. Nathaniel J. Merritt.

Mr. Everett D. DeLoria, brother of the groom, was best man, and Miss Alice M. Swim of Malden was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Edna M. DeLoria and Miss Frances C. DeLoria, sisters of the bride, and Miss Eunice Burke of Woburn. The bride wore a dress of white satin trimmed with lilies of the valley.

Her wedding veil was held with a wreath of lilies of the valley and she carried a bouquet of bridal roses. The maid of honor was dressed in pale blue green georgette, with hat to match. She carried pink roses. The bridesmaids wore pale green, pink and lavender crepe de chine.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, the residence being most attractive with decorations of autumn foliage and streamers. The couple were assisted in receiving by their parents, and the ushers included Messrs. John J. Whelan of Somerville, C. DeLoria of Tennessee, cousin of the bride, and John Fritzel of Salem, N. H.

Many prominent guests were present from all surrounding towns and cities, as well as from Manchester and Alsted, N. H.; Augusta, Me., and Salem, N. H. Many beautiful gifts were received, including silver and cut glass. Following the reception the couple left on a wedding trip to New York and Philadelphia.

MRS. ARTHUR T. DOWNER

The news of the sudden and most unexpected death of Mrs. Helen Maud Downer, wife of President Arthur T. Downer of the Winchester Landries, Inc., was a great shock to a host of friends. Mrs. Downer died during Friday night of apoplexy at her home. She was 52 years of age.

Mrs. Downer was a native of Winchester and a graduate of the Winchester High School, and was always identified with the activities of the town, both in a social and charitable nature. On Friday evening she attended an Eastern Star meeting at Melrose, she being identified with several chapters of that organization. She returned home with her son Charles at eleven o'clock and retired, being found dead in her bed the following morning.

Mrs. Downer was married in 1891 to Arthur T. Downer at Elizabeth, N. J. She was a member of the First Baptist Church, Past Worthy Matron of Crescent Chapter, O. E. S., of Stoneham, and was a charter member and officer of the Winchester Chapter. She was also Past Royal Matron of the Order of Amaranth. During the World War she was prominent in the women's activities here.

She is survived by her husband and five sons—Leroy T., Charles P., Wallace F., Arthur H. and David R., and one daughter, Miss Edith I. Downer. She also leaves one brother, Mr. Wallace P. Palmer.

Largely attended funeral services were held on Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the residence, 26 Stevens street, conducted by Rev. Clifton H. Wolcott, pastor of the First Baptist Church. During the service selections were rendered by the Apollo Quartet. There was an abundance of beautiful flowers and the service was attended by many delegates from various fraternal orders, friends and relatives. The interment was in Wildwood cemetery.

MRS. ORION KELLEY

Mrs. Ida M. Kelley, widow of the late Dr. Orion Kelley, formerly of this town, died at her home in Ottawa, Canada, on Saturday morning of Bright's disease. Mrs. Kelley left Winchester in February, 1920, following the death of her husband. She is survived by a little daughter, Dorothy, 10 years of age, and three sisters living in Ottawa.

The remains were brought to Winchester on Tuesday and services were held at the grave in Wildwood cemetery at 10 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Howard J. Chidley of the First Congregational Church. There was a large number of friends present and a beautiful display of flowers.

NOTES ON SCHOOL BUILDING PROGRAM

The School Building Program Committee is busily engaged in investigating the school problem in Winchester. Mr. R. Clifton Sturgis of Boston, Mr. Frank H. Wood of Albany, New York, with whose report on the school buildings the residents of Winchester are already familiar, and others have been consulted by the Committee.

The committee plans to publish in the Winchester Star from time to time statements which will give information as to the school building situation in Winchester. The committee asks the earnest consideration of all citizens to this most vital problem and it heartily welcomes suggestions which may be presented through the Star or to any member of the committee.

It would not seem necessary to call attention again to the entirely inadequate condition of most of our present school buildings. While the addition of fire escapes has greatly lessened the fire hazards, all the eight wooden buildings do not have the facilities essential to the health, comfort and well-being of the pupils, and are not in accord with present educational standards.

Aside from the condition of the school buildings, the character, number and location of the buildings have brought about a situation in grading the pupils which is most unsatisfactory. At the present time there are only two kindergartens in Winchester, one at the Prince School and the other at the Chapin School. At the Prince School more than one-half of the kindergarten children have a mile or more to travel and some travel a mile and a half. It is obvious that the kindergarten work cannot be adequately taken care of under present conditions since kindergarten grades should be so situated that the children should not be required to walk more than one-half a mile, or three-quarters of a mile as a limit.

There is only one school, the Chapin, which houses the kindergarten and all one to six grades in one building. In all other sections of the town pupils attend two or three and in many cases four different school buildings before entering the High School. The Mystic and the Highland Schools contain only the first two grades, the Washington School, grades one to five and the Gifford School, grades three to five. The Wyman School (which is so overcrowded that the school must be divided into two sections unless a portable schoolhouse is provided), houses grades one to four, and the Prince School all the four grade pupils excepting those attending the Chapin School. Of the six grade pupils at the Prince School about 70 per cent travel a mile or more to school and about 50 per cent travel a mile and a half or more, whereas a few travel two miles and a half. At the Gifford a large number of the children must travel a mile or more and a half to reach the building.

This system of grading is a direct result of the large number of small school buildings and their unsuitable location, and inevitably is a serious handicap to efficient and economical school administration. It seems to be the general opinion that a grade school building should house the kindergarten and all grades from one to six inclusive and that it should be so located that most of the pupils reside within three-quarters of a mile of the school, with perhaps a few pupils coming from longer distances. Under such a system all the pupils in a neighborhood would attend only one school building until they had finished the sixth grade, a local school center would be established, and there would be ample opportunity for the working out of the best educational standards. The establishment of such a system in Winchester would mean at least four and probably five grade school buildings which should be located as far as possible in the center of the districts which they would serve. The next statement will deal with the High School situation.

NOVELTY SHOWER

On Monday evening, Miss Katherine L. Dodge of 26 Pond street was very much surprised when on entering her home she discovered about 75 of her friends gathered therein for the purpose of tendering her a novelty shower. Miss Dodge who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Dodge is to become the bride of Mr. John C. Doherty of Woburn on Sunday next.

Naturally the young lady was surprised but upon recovering thanked her donors most profusely for the many beautiful and useful gifts. A mock marriage was a feature of the evening with the Misses Margaret Kelley and Christina Carroll taking the leading parts. Refreshments were served. Those present included friends from Woburn, Winchester, Arlington, Semerville, Medford, Beverly and Lynn.

HIGH-SCHOOL STOOD WELL IN TESTS

Many Winchester parents will like to know how our High School pupils stood in the much talked of Current Events Tests conducted by the Educational Department of the Review of Reviews. These tests were tried by about 200,000 High School and college pupils. In our High School two classes only took the tests—first year pupils and second year pupils. The average for first year high school pupils country-wide was 35 per cent; Winchester High School pupils stood 41 per cent. The average for the second year pupils was 42 per cent; Winchester pupils stood 47 per cent.

"GET TOGETHER MEETING"

The Ladies' Friendly Society of the Unitarian Church opened its Fall season last Tuesday with an attendance of over two hundred.

A most delicious luncheon was served at 1 P. M. in charge of Mrs. I. E. Gamage and Mrs. F. B. Cole, assisted by a very efficient committee. Metcalf Hall was decorated profusely with fall flowers and autumn foliage, adding a brilliant coloring to the happy gathering.

The Meeting took the form of a large "Get Together Meeting." The Guests of Honor were the former and present pastors and wives of the Church, Rev. and Mrs. Wm. I. Lawrence of Boston; Rev. and Mrs. Joel H. Metcalf, of Portland, Me.; and Rev. and Mrs. George H. Reed, of Winchester.

Mr. Lawrence, to the regret of all was unable to be present, being on a lecture tour in the West. Mrs. Lawrence, Mrs. Metcalf also Dr. Metcalf and Mr. Reed gave most interesting ten minute talks on subjects which all Unitarians would delight in hearing. Mrs. Reed rendered several solos in a most charming manner, accompanied by Mrs. Frank J. Willis.

Mrs. H. A. Goddard, the new President of the Society, filled the Chair in a most gracious and entertaining manner.

A Membership Drive under the efficient chairmanship of Mrs. I. E. Gamage, has brought many new members into the Society.

A Reception was held extending the welcoming hand to the greatly esteemed Guests and the many new members.

HARRIS PRESIDENT OF MEN'S CLUB

Mr. Arthur S. Harris was elected president of the Congregational Men's Club at its first meeting of this season held Friday night at the church. It was decided to continue the men's forum this year and Mr. C. W. Burton, retiring president of the Men's Club is to head the forum committee.

There was a big attendance at the meeting and preceding dinner, over 150 being present. The dinner opened at 6:30 being served by a caterer in the vestry. Following the business meeting, at which Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the church, spoke, an illustrated talk was given by Chaplain Russell of the Fishermen's Institute, Gloucester, on "Gloucester Fishermen at Work." His pictures were particularly interesting in showing the various types of vessels engaged in the fishing industry, the methods of fishing and the perils of the men who earn their living by the sea.

CLUB DINNER TOMORROW NIGHT

The annual fall dinner, or Harvest Supper, of the Calumet Club is to be held at the club this Saturday evening, opening at 6:30 o'clock. The attendance promises to be the largest in the history of the club, nearly the entire seating capacity of the hall being engaged. An excellent entertainment has been arranged and a very attractive evening is promised.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

It is, they say, easier to preach than to practice, therefore it must be easier to be a clergyman than a physician.

Pessimists never get as tired of this world as this world gets tired of them.

Playing fair is always a winner in business.

If you are in a small place it may be because you are not qualified for a big one.

The man with a pull doesn't usually have a knock.

It would have been a nice thing if more Winchester people had joined in the auto trip made about town Wednesday by the planning board federation. Several expressed a thought, especially in connection with the Fells part of the route.

At the fire at the Adams house Tuesday on Dix street, the police were prompt in raising rope barriers at either side of the scene to hold back the hundreds of autos which crowded to the place. This was a great advantage to the firemen in allowing them room in which to work.
From now on this protection will be carried out at every fire here.

WINCHESTER GIRL WILL MAKE HOME IN CHINA

Mrs. James T. Acree (Marjorie Wait) sailed from New York October first on the U. S. S. Henderson. She goes via the East Indies and the Panama Canal to San Francisco, a trip of about six weeks. After a month's visit with relations of her husband near Los Angeles, she sails for Shanghai, China. Enthusiastic letters have already been received from her from Norfolk, Va., the first stop.

Ensign Acree sailed from Philadelphia in September on the U. S. S.
Isabel, taking the eastern route and stopping at Gibraltar, the Suez Canal and the Indian Ocean.

The Isabel is one of the fastest
and the Indian Ocean.
pleasure yachts ever built. It is 245 feet long, 800 tons displacement, and 8000 horsepower. It carries a crew of six officers and 100 men. Requisitioned at the time of the war, it acted with navy destroyers in convoy and patrol duties. Just before the close of the war it was fitted with a new anti-submarine listening device, and was operated along the coast of France.

The Isabel will now be the flagship of the Yangtze patrol, a small squadron of naval vessels doing police work along the river from Shanghai to Schang, 1000 miles inland. From there especially built gun boats take the patrol for another 1000 miles. The capture of river pirates and opium smugglers, and the maintenance of order among the various tribes of Mongols along the river, constitute the principal duties of the patrol. The whole interior of that section is inadequately policed; trouble is constantly breaking out along the beach or among the congested population of junk dwellers, endangering American lives and property. In an emergency, landing parties are put over and order is maintained until the Chinese can control the situation.

Ensign Acree expects to arrive in China this month, but Mrs. Acree probably will not reach there before Christmas. They will make Shanghai their home for two or three years.

THE MacSWINEY ANNIVERSARY

On Thursday, Oct. 27th, at 8 a. m., in St. Mary's Church there will be celebrated a solemn high mass of requiem for the soul of the late Terence MacSwiney, Lord Mayor of Cork, Ireland, who died as a result of a hunger strike of over ninety days, a martyr to the cause of Irish independence.

In the evening of the same day there will be a public mass meeting in the Town Hall, at which time the public tribute to the late Lord Mayor will take place. Besides the speakers, there will be a talented soloist.
The chief speakers will be Prof.
Walter E. Holoway and Dr. John F.
Fitzgerald, Ex-Mayor of Boston. A strong worker for the Irish cause.
None are better able than these two men to explain the principles for which Lord-Mayor MacSwiney gave up his life. Rev. Fathers, N. J. Merritt, Joseph Early and Joseph Fitzgibbons of St. Mary's church will also speak.

The Committee in charge especially desires to extend a cordial invitation to those interested in the Irish question and more especially to those who need conviction of the justice of Ireland's cause. There will be no admission fee and no collection.

The entire celebration is to be conducted under the auspices of Canon Magnier Council, A. A. R. I. I., and the Committee in charge is headed by Chairman, Francis J. O'Hara and President, Henry Songfield.

RED CROSS NOTES

The citizens of Winchester will doubtless be interested to know that we now have in town a dental clinic for school children, instituted and supported by the local Red Cross chapter.

About six months ago the Red Cross began investigating as to the possibility of establishing such a clinic here, visiting clinics in Hyde Park, Brookline, Arlington and Belmont. A conference was held with Mr. Fausey, Superintendent of Schools, Miss Talpe, the school nurse, two members of the Board of Health, and two Winchester dentists. Miss Talpe reported that she was sending an average of twenty children each week to the infirmary for dental work. Using this figure as a basis it was estimated that sixteen hours a week would be sufficient for both the public and parochial schools of Winchester at the present time. The hours were arranged accordingly for the first four mornings of the week—Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday—from 8:30 to 12:30.

A small room adjoining the Health Centre over Randolph's store, formerly used as a dentist's office, seemed to be providentially waiting for the purpose, and was rented by the Red Cross and fitted up with an excellent second-hand equipment secured through the kindness and enterprise of Dr. Wm. H. Gilpatrick. Several shelves were supplied by the boys in the carpentry class of the Wadleigh School, and the Board of Health contributed a desk and chair, doubly welcome after being adorned by Mr. Car-lue with a coat of paint.

Having secured an office and its equipment, a dentist was next engaged, Dr. Roy Y. Raymond of Arlington, Harvard Dental School, 1919, and formerly an assistant at the Brookline Dental Clinic. Miss Grace Hatch of Winchester was secured as his assistant.

The general public may not know that for several years the school children of Winchester have had their teeth examined gratuitously by the Winchester dentists twice a year.
This contribution by the dentists of their time and labor has been of great value to the town, and the Red Cross wishes publicly to express its appreciation of their services this fall, to Doctor Hindes, Nutter, Wolfe, Parker and Blackler. It was only because they again assumed the burden of the examination of the nine schools that Dr. Raymond was able to start in at once, on the opening of the office last week, upon dental operations. As it is, he is now well under way, handling five or six children each morning.

All who are interested are invited to come and see his office and his work and it is hoped that the town may eventually find it worthy of public support. It is of course intended that the clinic shall be an aid only to those who are unable to pay for dentistry at regular prices (the patients being strictly limited in some towns to families having an average income of $6 per week per person). A nominal charge of twenty-five cents is made for each child treated at the Winchester clinic and all pupils of the public schools are admitted only on the recommendation of the school nurse, Mrs. Ethel R. Savage.

WATCH OUT FOR THE CHILDREN

Oct. 12, 1921.

Editor of the Star:

Would you be willing to insert in the Star an account of an experience
I had yesterday in Arlington? As I was walking on Mystic street just before reaching Chestnut street, I saw a little Italian child almost killed by an automobile. The car was not running more than 20 miles an hour. The child, a little boy, not yet three, was on the sidewalk and ran out into the street just as the automobile passed.
The driver, giving a horrified shout, swerved instantly to the left and really endangered his own safety. The child was able to stop and just escaped serious injury. I went up to the little boy and asked him where he lived. He was badly frightened and ran ahead of me to the house on the corner of Chestnut and Mystic streets. Chestnut street, as you probably know, leads off to the left from Mystic to the Catholic Church and is at the bottom of a hill leading up into Arlington Center. I went into the kitchen with the little boy and found his mother there.

I told her that her little boy had just escaped being killed. She was quite piteous in her anxiety for him and talked with the old grandmother in Italian very excitedly for some time. She then explained to me that the little boy was not allowed to cross the street, but that another child of his own age lived in the house opposite. She tries to watch him from the window and to make him play in the back yard which is very attractive with grape vine and flowers. She has a little baby and every morning when she gives the baby her bath, she is unable to watch out the window as carefully as she would wish. The mother asked me to whip the little boy. This I could scarcely do and compromised by telling him very severely at her direction: "Go no more street, go no more street." The little boy cried desperately and clung to his mother.

From there I went to the police station. The police officer in charge heard the story and said, "Yes, we know all about it, but there is nothing we can do. We can't afford to keep a special policeman down in that section. The road between Mystic Boulevard and Arlington Center forms a letter S and is a dangerous curve. It is a highway for Winchester traffic. Eighty percent of the people which Arlington puts into court for violation of the automobile laws come from Winchester or Lexington. A great many accidents to children have happened in this section." The officer besides blaming the Winchester drivers blamed the parents of these little children.

Isn't it clear that the parents are not to blame, nor the children, but our whole roadway system? And just so long as we allow highways to run through a district where family houses are directly on the street, the automobile is the only one who can save the situation. It is just as evident that he will not do this if he merely obeys the laws. He will have to do a great deal better than that.
The mothers in this district are doing their best, and the children their best;
a child's best is to remember when he is not playing so hard that he forgets.
Fifteen miles an hour is fast enough in this district for the driver who does not want to kill or injure one of those children. This is very much slower than the law allows. Everyone should know that children cannot be depended upon. No matter how careful one watches them, they always do unexpected things. The only assurance of being able to avoid accidents is to maintain a very slow rate of speed through this section. Fifteen miles an hour is very slow. It is so slow as to be a real sacrifice and annoyance. But the case is children vs.
speed.

Very truly yours,
Margaret W. Elder.

MANY VISIT TELEPHONE EXCHANGE

Many Winchester residents visited the local telephone exchange during the week in response to the general invitation sent out by the company in recognition of its open week.

The visitors were accorded every facility for a complete inspection of the plant from the "attic to the cellar," the switch board to the complete duplicate power installation held in readiness for instant emergency.

Miss May J. Nelligan, exchange manager, Mr. Thomas N. Farrell, in charge of the plant, and Mr. Frank Conannon, commercial office assistant, spared no pains in explaining and showing the plant. To the average caller the uses of the various stations and the vast network of wires was bewildering, but all could admire the marvellous accuracy of the girls at the big switch board and their speed in answering and handling the calls coming in like falling snow flakes, as well as the orderly confusion of millions of wires and appreciate the delicate work in making the individual connections.

The visit was well worth while to every telephone user, and after looking over the plant one marvels, not that mistakes are sometimes made, but that the work can be handled so fast and so free from trouble as it is.
The office is always open for inspection, and doubtless many more subscribers will call there later, upon hearing of the interesting features viewed and the welcome reception by their friends.

The Kum-O-Misit Club desires to express its thanks to the merchants in Winchester selling cigars, cigarettes, and tobacco all of whom contributed generous amounts of these articles.

To the concerns mentioned in previous issues of the "Star" to whom we are indebted, should be added Arnold & Colgate who gave absolutely free the ice cream sold at the Auxiliary Booth.

The judges in the contest for the best decorated float or truck were Messrs. Henry S. Chapman and Dunbar F. Carpenter. They have awarded first place to the Geo. W. Blanchard Co., whose truck containing a replica of a dugout and manned by Canadian veterans won universal praise. Second place was awarded to the Winchester Garage who entered a most attractive float representing a harvest scene.
Suitable prizes will be awarded by the Committee as soon as they can be selected.

A large number of interesting snap shots of the parade were made by Mr. Robert E. Fay. These pictures include practically all of the marching organizations and many of the trucks and floats. Early this week
Mr. Fay presented to the Legion a photograph album containing nearly fifty different views. This same collection is on exhibition at Allen's Drug Store where orders for additional prints at small cost may be given to Mr. William H. Hevey.

In order to correct a current misapprehension as to the receipts, we wish to advise that the net profits of the Carnival after all bills have been paid will approximate $1600.00.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES

The following cases of contagious diseases have been reported to the Board of Health for the week ending Oct. 20: Scarlet fever 1, diphtheria 1, lobar pneumonia 1.

MYSTERIOUS AND UNFAMILIAR NAMES TO BE GIVEN MEANING

Women to have Opportunity to see What Modern Laundry Machinery is and Does.

Extractors, flat-work ironers, drying tumblers, boding presses, bosom presses, garment presses, shirt finishing systems, collar shapers—terms which sound strange and unfamiliar to a woman's ears are to have a meaning after October 29 if laundry-owners of this vicinity have their way.

Believing that the air of mystery with which the average laundry has been surrounded has reacted unfavorable upon the industry, laundry-owners the country over plan to throw the doors of their plants open to the public the week of October 24-29.

This week will be observed nationally as a "Visit Your Laundry Week." More than 6,000 laundry owners, are cooperating in the movement. Every laundry owner in this vicinity is taking part, and a general invitation is extended the public to visit local laundries during this week.
Visitors will be shown everything in the plant, every machine and every process which is employed in turning out laundry work. They will be met at the door by guides who will give them all the time they require, carefully explaining every detail which visitors find of interest.

Laundry owners expect that hundreds of people who have never patronized the laundry, as well as a majority of those who are patrons will accept their invitations.

BUILDING PERMITS

The following permits have been issued by the Inspector of Buildings for the week ending Oct. 20:

Thomas Boyle of 10 Warren street,
Medford. Wood frame dwelling at 31
Prince avenue, 34x34 feet.

Lewis W. Latremore of 11 Lawrence street. Wood frame garage at same address, 18x20 feet.

M. J. Tobey of 10 Sheffield road.
Wood frame garage at same address 20x20 feet.

Warren M. Cox of 5 Salisbury road.
Wood frame garage at same address
14x14 feet.

Geo. O. Fogg of Concord, N. H.
Additional windows in rear and fireproof paint shop in garage on Converse place.

Selectman George M. Bryne, contractor for the construction of the recently rebuilt Moody Street Bridge at Waltham, is credited with having put through a very fine piece of work in much less than the contract time. The new structure improves the appearance of Moody street to a considerable extent. "Contractor Bryne," says the Waltham Free Press-Tribune, "carefully arranged during the entire reconstruction work to make the greatest allowance possible for traffic. He was delayed at the start by slow arrival of material, but the job has been completed within the estimated period and the entire work is most satisfactory. The bridge rebuilding is a creditable piece of work and improves the appearance of Moody street to a considerable extent."

Four scholarships in the Massachusetts College of Osteopathy have been offered by the Massachusetts Osteopathic Society to the senior high school students submitting the best essay on osteopathy. A number of entries in the contest are expected from the Winchester High School. Information may be secured from any osteopathic physician.

A LECTURE ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Spiritual Regeneration"

By JOHN J. FLINN, C. S.

Member of the Board of Lecturers of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

and to find in the possession of both that ease, comfort, contentment and peace which are supposed to make up the sum of human happiness. But the prizes sought have been elusive; they have lost their value even with seeming attainment, for the struggle to capture them has, in the main, been carried along on the theory that happiness is something material and, therefore, to be pursued by indulging the material senses and turning loose upon the chase the sensual desires.

To judge by appearances, the world as a whole today is unhappy; never more so in all its history. If one were disposed to indulge in it, here would be an exceptionally tempting opportunity to satirize material prosperity. Prosperity and happiness, happiness and prosperity, as we all know, are almost invariably coupled in human thought and conversation. Humanity in general thinks of happiness as something largely if not wholly dependent upon, or certainly as a companion of, prosperity. In the opinion of the world, to be prosperous means to be happy.

In all the ages, so far as known, there was never before such widespread prosperity on this planet as that which prevailed during the twenty years preceding the first of August, 1914, and later developments seem to show that never in all the ages was discontentment so prevalent in the breasts and thoughts of men as during this period. Some of the nations were so rich that they could afford to apply almost unbelievable surpluses of revenue to a means of giving vent to their unrest. Freedom from indebtedness, phenomenal expansion of trade, luxury unrivaled in ancient or in modern times—individual fortunes swollen almost beyond calculation, individual extravagance carried on with a confidence and a boldness that could neither be reasoned with nor abashed—these were all present, and yet the nations and their populations were unhappy.

Time was, and that not so very long ago, when, comparatively speaking, a man's wants were little here below, and among the great majority of the people only moderate effort was required to supply them. But prosperity, legitimate and artificial, has multiplied men's seeming wants in our days many times over, and has made them so complex, that they have long since passed and distanced actual needs. To meet what have now come to be known as wants demands a constant strain; attainment only whets the appetite for more; emulation takes the joy out of accomplishment; possession disappoints rather than satisfies, and getting, gnaws at the heels of having.

MATERIALISM HAS ITS CHANCE

Never has materialism had its way more completely than in the last seven years. Never has its way been less obstructed. To have opposed its headlong career during the greater part of this time would have been to invite opprobrium and hostility. It dominated nearly everything and everybody. An opponent of its methods would be as one crying in the wilderness in the midst of a howling storm. Here was its chance and it made the most of it. For years it had been impatiently awaiting the day when it would prove itself the greatest force on the globe. The opportunity coming at last, it proved only one thing; its ability to destroy. It upset the world, it halted progress, it stopped production, it unsettled the thought of men, it wrought havoc and scattered wreckage wherever its power or influence was felt. The world is still staggering from its thunderous explosions. It counted upon its big loans, big profits, high wages, great bank accounts—the setting in of an era of inflation and artificial prosperity—for justification. All of these were realized to the satisfaction of human craving and with their realization came a period of luxury and extravagance such as history had never before recorded; but in conjunction with it all came experiences in popular disillusionment, popular disappointment, and worse than all, in widespread moral degeneracy, from which no permanent recovery is possible save that which shall be brought about through spiritual regeneration.

The ailment from which the world is suffering is mental and individual. All causation is mental. Society, taken either in its smaller or larger aspects, is primarily individualistic. That which deleteriously affects the individual deleteriously affects the mass; by healing the individual a great step is taken toward the healing of the community and the nation. Mary Baker Eddy, a solitary, but by no means a lonely figure in the world's history, thought all this out, and thought it out to a logical conclusion, over half a century ago, when as the herald of a new crusade she sounded the keynote of universal freedom, asking a fuller acknowledgment of the rights of man as a son of God, demanding that the fetters of sin, sickness and death be stricken from the human mind and that this freedom—a freedom immeasurably greater than anything in the nature of political liberty—be won through the abandonment of all barbarous and savage methods, and by resort to the spiritual healing of existing wrongs. How much the world—how much mankind—would have gained in the last fifty years had her doctrines been adopted by rulers and statesmen at the beginning of this period, and steadfastly adhered to, is beyond computation. The sorrow, the anguish, the bitter weeping upon human misery during the last eight years could have been, and would have been averted, if only her tribute to the First Commandment had been taken into the consciousness of men and nations.

LOOKING IN THE WRONG DIRECTION

Outside of Christian Science, practically all are looking in a wrong direction for an acceptable and satisfying arrangement of the differences that are disturbing the world. It is generally hoped that by appealing to the individual and collective selfishness of men a basis of settlement may be found through territorial gifts, through some amelioration of indemnities, through resumption of trade relations, through preferential tariffs, or, when these, or any of them, fail of effect, through some kind of pressure. The thought of bringing about an understanding on a basis of good will, of unselfishness, of forgiveness and forgetfulness, or brotherliness, of the Golden Rule, of the Christly injunction that "ye love one another," is submerged by the false and foolish belief that behind every international treaty all the ancient geographical, racial, tribal, political and religious bigotries, prejudices and bitternesses must be preserved to meet possible or impossible emergencies.

This is the bad old method of international intercourse from which advanced government has essayed from time to time, and struggled honestly and earnestly, to escape, by the adoption of an open and frank diplomacy.

The condition thus sought to be remedied, and which is still to be remedied, has prevailed from the earliest period. The Prophet Isaiah was

UNDER COVER

The Attraction at the St. James Theatre

Filled from start to finish with mystery, surprise following surprise, tense situations, and suspense that grips and holds to the end.

Delightful bits of humor sparkle through the piece while in contrast the sinister threats of the customs officers cast their dread shadows on the scene. Active thrilling and intense, carry the play to a powerful and unexpected climax.

The story of "Under Cover" concerns a certain lovely necklace, brought undeclared into the port of New York by one known as Steven Denby. Necklace and all he joins a small house party at the home of some friends on Long Island. There the officers from the Customs House close in about him, guided from time to time by the girl for whom Denby cares, and who in turn cares for Denby. The task is a bitter one for her, but the ruthless deputy collector forces her to aid him by threatening to expose her younger sister for a crime half-innocently committed. The crash comes when Denby traps her in his room, to which she has come to find the necklace, and when all unconsciously he gives the signal that brings the customs authorities to the room.

The part of Ethel Cartwright the girl torn between her love for Denby and her fear of Taylor the Customs official, will furnish Miss Leona Powers another of these tense, dramatic roles, which she plays with such power and splendid artistry.

The other parts demand the full strength of the Company, including Viola Roach, Florence Roberts, Frank Charlton, Mark Kent, Aubrey Bosworth, Ralph Remley, Harold Chase.

M. C. W. G. ITEMS

The waiting list of candidates for initiation into the Guild will be acted upon at the first business meeting in November. All members having candidates in view should have papers ready by then.

A Halloween Whist will be given on the next social night, Thursday evening, Oct. 27th. Among the many beautiful prizes for this affair is a boudoir lamp, donated by the committee in charge. The proceeds of all social nights go into the Charitable Fund of Winchester Branch and are afterwards distributed among the various institutions, benefited by the Massachusetts Guild. It is hoped that the Halloween Whist will be unusually successful as part of the proceeds will be set aside for local charity, after the annual donation towards gifts for the Christmas tree at the Home for Destitute Children, Harrison Ave., Boston.

November 8th is "Bundle Day" for the "Little Sisters of the Poor." Any of the members or their friends wishing to contribute individual gifts towards this cause may leave their bundles at the home of Mrs. Johanna Glendon, 17 Lake street or that of Mrs. Frances Sullivan, 23 Vine street where they will be collected by State officials.

WINCHESTER CHAPTER LAYMEN'S LEAGUE

The annual meeting of the league was held Friday evening, Oct. 14, in Metcalf Hall. Nash; secretary-treasurer, Howard W. Robbins; executive committee, the foregoing and Vincent Farnsworth, Clarence C. Miller, Stillman P. Williams.

The speaker of the evening was William L. Barnard, secretary of the Unitarian Laymen's League, who outlined the work to be done by the League during the current year, and gave many interesting and some amusing incidents which have come to his attention since the league was organized.

Rev. George Hale Heed also spoke, referring particularly to certain objects which the local chapter should consider.

Norman Harold won first prize; Philip Chitil, second prize, and Eddie Taylor, third prize at the swimming meet last Saturday.

The Board of Selectmen have agreed that during next winter when the skating ice is covered with snow and slush, Wedge Pond shall be scraped off, in part at least, so that the children of Winchester can have skating throughout the winter. The Boy Scouts desire to take this opportunity to most heartily thank the Board.

Mr. Callahan was the son of Rose and Timothy Callahan. He was born and educated in Winchester, and upon leaving school entered the employ of Mr. Henry B. Winn in his furnishings store. He worked there for eight years, afterwards entering the employ of the Whitney Machine Company, where he worked until his death.

Besides his parents he leaves six brothers, Edward L., Bernard F., Timothy H., John J., James and Joseph, and one sister, Mrs. John H. Styles, all of this town.

MRS. HODGSON'S DEATH FALSE

There was telephoned to the STAR office last Thursday afternoon by an unknown person an item announcing the funeral service of Mrs. Thomas Hodgson of Arlington, a former resident of this town. Mrs. Hodgson had not made her home here for several years and the authenticity of the notice was not questioned. It later appeared that the announcement was false, Mrs. Hodgson being alive and well.

SELF-RELIANCE GOES BANKRUPT

Thin Blood Saps Energy
Gude's Pepto-Mangan
Rebuilds the Blood

Wrestling with a weakened condition of the blood is a desperate struggle. Thin, watery blood deprives the body of energy and causes a played-out feeling not unlike utter exhaustion. A man with weak blood has not the full use of his powers. He lacks decision, and vacillates until he loses self-confidence.

Some men, and women too, go faltering along for months scarcely realizing that they need Gude's Pepto-Mangan, the blood-builder. But when they have taken it for a while, what a difference there is in the feelings! The old-time vigor and the red-blooded hue of good health return. The new rich blood gets to work, building, fortifying, lifting the spirit up to its normal standard. Physicians have prescribed Gude's Pepto-Mangan for years as a blood-builder. Druggists sell it in liquid and tablet form. Look for the name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" on the package.—Advertisement.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Mrs. Mary Harris Armor of Georgia, the most brilliant speaker in the ranks of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, according to many critics, is to speak in the Church of the New Jerusalem, Bowdoin street, between Beacon and Ashburton place, Sunday, Oct. 23 at 7:30 p. m., and every member of the Winchester Union is urged to go if possible. Wise and witty, with the inimitable Southern accent, Mrs. Armor always delights her audience and it is a rare privilege to hear her. She is to speak also at the State Convention in Worcester next week, but as comparatively few of our members can go there we hope they will avail themselves of this opportunity. Men as well as women are invited. A number from Winchester will go in town Sunday evening on the 6:29 p. m. train, which will give ample time to reach the church. Tell your friends and plan to go yourself.

October 25 to 27 will be the 48th annual convention of the Massachusetts W. C. T. U. and it is to be in Worcester where the first convention was held away back in the "seventies." Plymouth Congregational Church will be the place of meeting and an interesting program has been prepared. The Executive Committee, which consists of the general officers of the State, the county Presidents and the Superintendents of the various State departments, will also hold sessions, beginning on Monday, Oct. 24 and closing on Friday, October 28. Many important questions will come up for discussion and a full attendance should be had. Mrs. Ella A. Gleason of Winchester will preside.

constrained by the materialists about him to say: "The way of peace they know not, and there is no judgment in their goings; they have made them crooked paths; whosoever goeth therein shall not know peace. Therefore is judgment far from us; neither doth justice overtake us; we wait for light, but behold obscurity, for brightness but we walk in darkness. . . . And judgment is turned away backward, and justice standeth afar off, for truth is fallen in the street, and equity cannot enter."

Mary Baker Eddy, if the leaders of the peoples of the earth would see it, as some day they must and shall, has long since made clear the basis upon which world harmony can be secured; namely, through the understanding of the one great and only God, whereby the destruction of all false gods may be brought about.

RECOGNIZED EFFICACY OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

That Christian Science heals sin, sickness and disease and drives out all manner of evil in individual cases is a fact so often attested and so thoroughly established that it were a waste of time at this late day to undertake to offer further proof. The healing efficacy of Christian Science is now admitted by informed people everywhere. Ministers of the orthodox churches and even medical doctors very generally acknowledge it, although with certain reservations. They have not all yet been brought around to the point of seeing that there can be no reservations, limitations nor restrictions when we are dealing with the power and mercy and love of God. They might as well acknowledge the principle of mathematics, or recognize the law of gravitation, or the diurnal revolution of the earth, or the orderly motion of the planets, or the rise and fall of the tides, with certain reservations.

Truth admits of no variations, no modifications. The doctors of divinity and the doctors of medicine, than whom, as a rule, there are no more conscientious men in the world, feel free to say in these days that, no doubt, there are times when Christian Science does some good. When pressed they will even go so far as to recall instances that have come under their immediate observation where men and women have been greatly improved physically, mentally and morally by Christian Science, but often they will be quick to qualify this admission by saying that there are times, of course, when Christian Science goes too far. Here they are inconsistent and illogical again, for they are, perhaps inadvertently and unconsciously, but nevertheless surely, committing themselves to the position that right can be wrong, or that good can be bad, or that truth can be false, in certain circumstances. They would not think of saying that in their experience they had found addition, subtraction and multiplication to work out fairly well, but that the rules of arithmetic are sometimes carried too far.

Now, Christian Science is true from the first to the last word of our textbook, or it is not true at all. If it be false at any point, if it be faulty at any point, if it be not in absolute line with one invariable, changeless Principle at all points—then, to use the words of Paul, our preaching is vain; and moreover, to paraphrase slightly the language of that great Apostle, we who have accepted Christian Science are the most hopeless and most miserable of people. To go further, if further it would be possible to go, if Christian Science is not altogether true—if the healing power of the Christ be not present yesterday, today and forever—then we who have been proclaiming our healing through Christian Science from the very house-tops are false witnesses.

But we who have been healed in Christian Science, and we who have practiced it to the healing of others, know full well that when its Principle is intelligently, honestly and trustfully employed, it never fails. This Principle has always existed; it has been known to certain of God's people throughout all the ages, and it was understood by Jesus more clearly than by any of his predecessors.

MARY BAKER EDDY'S TASK

Apparently lost for centuries, the Science whereby it could be put into operation as a tangible, practical, usable, workable agency, was rediscovered by Mary Baker Eddy. Her great task, the greatest that woman has ever been called upon to perform, was to proclaim and demonstrate convincingly to a doubting world her marvelous revelation. In her own simple but beautiful language she tells us when and how each of her steps was taken. Those acquainted with her writings are familiar with the story. She left nothing to mere assertion. She proved by demonstration every declaration which she set down in writing. In the year 1866, she tells us, she discovered the Christ Science or divine laws of Life, Truth and Love, and named this discovery Christian Science; but her first pamphlet on the subject, although copyrighted in 1870, did not appear in print until 1876, or ten years after her divine revelation, "as she had learned," to use her own words, "that this Science must be demonstrated by healing, before a work on the subject could be profitably studied." She was in no hurry to launch her discovery upon a world slow to yield itself to consideration of a new philosophy of life, and one especially that undertook to refute or reverse practically all the theories of human existence handed down by the schools from time immemorial. She knew too much of the world to trust her revelation in its hands until she was prepared with such proof as it would demand to insure at least a respectful, if a skeptical, hearing. To obtain these proofs, and to render them convincing and irrefutable, she gave herself over to prayer and study.

When she sought authority she sought and found it in the Bible. When she sought guidance, she looked for it in the teachings of Christ Jesus and his apostles. All of her dependence for light was placed upon the Scriptures, and when she finally laid her thesis before a critical people it was fortified with spiritual truth in every line, sentence, paragraph and page.

Nothing has been more puzzling or more annoyingly baffling to her critics than the fact of her scrupulous, persistent, tenacious adherence to the Bible—to the book which Christians through centuries have regarded, or have professed to regard, as divinely inspired. She took it and employed it as the keystone of her philosophy. She took it, as it was intended plainly by its inspired writers to be taken, in spirit and in truth, neither deducting from it nor adding to it, but accepting it with open mind and interpreting it in accordance with its manifest design and meaning.

CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS AND THE BIBLE

Just as the discoverer and founder of Christian Science places the Bible first at all times; just as she looks to it and clings to it at all times for inspiration and for strength; just as she has given it first place in the religious tenets and services of the church she instituted and organized, so do all of her loyal followers accept its inspired Word as their sufficient guide to eternal life. It is entirely within reasonable bounds to say that in no other class or denomination of professed Christian religionists is the Bible esteemed more highly or studied more regularly, closely, earnestly or intelligently than it is among Christian Scientists. The Christian Science textbook, Science and Health, is an exposition of the Bible, a Key to the Scriptures, and, as such it has already unlocked for millions, as it is destined to unlock for countless multitudes to come, inexhaustible treasures of spiritual wisdom and understanding.

In the earlier days of her labor the critics were puzzled and baffled by the discovery that many statements in her works which they regarded as the most radical and the most startling—statements that challenged and sometimes flatly contradicted or positively controverted their time-honored and seemingly rock-rooted theological premises and conclusions—were based upon biblical passages which they had commonly and habitually used in services and sermons but which, in the light shed upon them by this woman—this presumptuous woman—presented a meaning altogether new to them—so surprisingly new, indeed, that when they came across them in Mary Baker Eddy's writings they questioned the correctness of her quotations and flew to their Bibles in the confident but vain hope of proving her inaccurate and unreliable.

Christian and orthodox in her environment through childhood, girlhood and young womanhood; Christian and orthodox in research and thought throughout her long years of study to fit herself for the work to which she had been called, she was moved by no impulse to overturn the faith to which her Puritan ancestral beliefs led her to subscribe, but, rather, to buttress it with the support which its foundations lacked—with the proofs, that is, which she intuitively felt were obtainable through a higher and holier understanding of the Bible.

A REMARKABLE RECORD

Unless one has made a study of her life-work, especially during the period of her greatest activity, the period in which she instituted and established a denomination which now spreads throughout the habitable globe, it will be difficult if not impossible for him to obtain a comprehensive understanding of this remarkable woman's achievements. Beginning while still an invalid, by delving into all the authorities she could lay her hands upon, questioning and scrutinizing the generally accepted premises and conclusions of theological disputants, continuing for years to dig among the theological debris of centuries in the confident hope of finding the lost key to the Scriptures; finding it, reburnishing it and unlocking the treasures which she sought, safeguarding them that they might not be dissipated among the ignorant, going on to the teaching of her first student, to the writing and distributing of her early pamphlets among a chosen few; preparing and publishing a book that has changed for the better the thought of millions, founding a College of Metaphysics, in which during seven years she personally taught over four thousand students; organizing the first established Church of Christ, Scientist, acting as its pastor, filling the presidency of the first Christian Science Association, revising her first work, writing other books, editing, alone and unaided, for a period, as well as publishing the Christian Science Journal, carrying on direct supervision over the whole Christian Science movement down to the smallest important detail—writing, traveling, dictating, preaching, founding a weekly publication and later on a daily, and through it all compiling a Manual containing by-laws for the government through all the years to come of the church organization which she had established. What a picture is this! What an exhibit is this of dedicated intellectual and moral effort of unselfish and unselfed devotion to an ideal, a conviction and an inspiration!

The preparation of the Manual would of itself constitute a monument to the inspired wisdom of Mary Baker Eddy, embracing, as it does, rules and laws for the government and perpetuation of the Christian Science organization that have withstood, and are destined to withstand, all the shafts of evil that may be directed against them by open or by hidden foes. It has taken centuries to bring about the separation of Church and State, even in the degree to which it is at present acknowledged and maintained. The Manual of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, is destined to be the model of legislation under which in all countries religious worship in the future will be assured of freedom from State regulation and political interference.

There is still existent a certain amount of irritation in some quarters because Christian Scientists, to use a common phrase, "make so much of Mrs. Eddy." Some of our critics express the opinion that the name of Mrs. Eddy occurs too often in Christian Science services, in Christian Science testimonials and in Christian Science writings. It will have to be admitted that, as a matter of fact, Christian Scientists do make much of Mrs. Eddy, but a very simple reason for it should be sufficient justification. They make so much of Mrs. Eddy, because Mrs. Eddy has made so much of them. But there is another, and a stronger reason: Christian Scientists make so much of Mrs. Eddy, because not to understand and appreciate her would mean failure to understand and appreciate the truth which God has revealed through her to the world.

I believe the lawyers in this audience will agree with me that there is nothing in the line of testimony that goes farther with court or jury than that which comes freely at first hand. This it was that gave immeasurable strength to the preaching of the Apostle Paul. This it was that dawned on our time gives so much weight to his epistles. Christian Scientists do not feel hurt nor offended when the right of their revered Leader to so much recognition and gratitude is questioned for they attribute such criticism to lack of understanding of the facts. Many, perhaps a very great many, who are today numbered among those who never miss an opportunity of expressing gratitude to her, were at one time numbered among the people who became impatient at the mere mention of her name. Neither do Christian Scientists feel hurt and offended when doubts of the healing power of the faith they hold is voiced in their presence, for, very likely, they have been at one time audible doubters themselves. They would rather, indeed, come into personal contact with the vigorous, robust, outspoken, honest doubter, than with one who is overready to accept superficially everything that is offered, without looking for proof and without proper consideration or investigation.

SCIENCE OPEN WIDE TO INQUIRY

The more questions an inquirer asks in Christian Science, the more proof he demands, the more determined he is to investigate for himself, the more promising convert and the better church member and worker he becomes eventually. It is safe to say that an overwhelming majority of those who accept Christian Science are persons who can give a reason for the faith that is in them. They are persons who have taken nothing on hearsay, who have not been swayed by the influence of others, who do not conjecture, who do not guess, who do not merely believe, but who have won understanding from experience, and who know.

Paul knew. He had had personal experience with the regenerative power of the Spirit. He drew and convinced great audiences everywhere because he was able to give testimony at first hand—because he could speak out of the fullness of personal, actual, human experience, because he could tell of a mental change that with the quickness of a lightning flash transformed his character and made him a new man. There are tens of thousands of Pauls in our day throughout the world—tens of thousands of persons, that is, who have been turned through Christian Science from wrong to right thinking, healed of sick and sinning beliefs, cured of pernicious tendencies, relieved of slavish habits, liberated from bondage and restored to the liberty which belongs to God's children; and these are ready and willing to give direct testimony to the healing power of Life, Truth and Love and to offer heartfelt gratitude to Mary Baker Eddy, who led them by her teachings from darkness into light.

We have from our revered Leader an unqualified indorsement of the axiom that the impossible never happens. We have learned from her that what blesses one, blesses all. Most of us realize from our own experience that good manifested radiates beyond the bounds of our vision, even beyond the bounds of our imagination. Our reasoning faculties teach us, even if our spiritual intuition be dull, that if Christian Science heals in one instance through the intelligent application of Principle, there can be no limitations placed upon its healing efficacy. It needs only to be applied to government, to politics, to economics, to finance, to commerce, to sociology, to education, to the morals of the people, in order that it shall work marvelous changes in that potential power of democracy known as popular opinion.

There is no more efficacious agency than Christian Science for the promotion of better taste, higher aspirations and good will among all people. It is the most tranquilizing influence operating throughout the world today. Its doctrines have already transformed for the better the aspiration and character of millions of people in all parts of the globe, and every one of these is spreading its truth, expressing his gratitude, not so much by word of mouth, nor by indulging in religious controversy, as by letting his light shine. Through the reflection of Life, Truth and Love, the omnipotent power of God is being more widely recognized now than ever before, and there is coming into the consciousness of the nations, slowly but surely, an attitude of thought which will eventually weld the hearts as well as the interests of men.

world the Word and perpetuating the works given and carried on by Christ Jesus, and that its grandest mission and its greatest joy is to restore primitive Christianity and to perpetuate these works as the Master himself, were he once more among us, would direct. He came with healing in his thought, with healing in his voice, with healing in his touch. He went about everywhere doing good. As in his day, the Word is healing all manner of disease, yet Christian Scientists know full well, for their teacher has so instructed them, that, as in Jesus' day, the healing of physical ailments is a means rather than an end. Because of the stiffness of their necks and the hardness of their hearts, in our times, as was the case nineteen hundred years ago, human beings must be impressed with some tangible evidence suitable to their understanding, of the love and mercy and power of God before they are brought to a realization of the fact that the paramount mission of Christian Science is the destruction of sin, the root of all human sorrow and suffering.

Christian Scientists make no stronger pretensions of belief in the Bible than do other professed Christians, but Christian Scientists go farther than mere belief—they trust, and strive to understand. And according to the measure of their understanding they make practical application of Bible truths and achieve demonstrations. One might believe in mathematics fervently, devotedly, unwaveringly, everlastingly, without ever getting further than belief. Mere belief would never solve a problem in figures. One must take chalk, or pencil or pen in hand and work the problem out in accordance with the principle of the science if anything is to be accomplished. Christian Scientists, following the instruction of Mary Baker Eddy, and adhering to the Principle which she discovered, prove the truths in the Bible through their understanding and their work as they go along, and bring realization of its prophecies and its promises into their daily experience.

Christian Science is not blind faith; it is an intelligent understanding of God and of man's relationship to the Supreme Being, the omnipresent, omniscient and omnipotent Creator. It is an understanding of God which admits of no limitation, question or doubt with regard to His all-seeing wisdom, His all-inclusive power, His all-embracing Love. It is complete acceptance of the Father-Motherhood of the Eternal. It is an absolute acknowledgment that the God of our Bible reigns, governs, controls the universe, and that there is none other beside Him.

AN UNDERSTANDING OF GOD

Christian Scientists have come to know and to measurably understand

God through the teachings and works of Christ Jesus, the Wayshower, and through the revelation which Mary Baker Eddy, God's inspired handmaid of these latter days, has given to the world—a revelation which, among other things, has re-established in the consciousness not only of her students but of vast numbers who may not as yet be included among her followers, the conviction that Jesus did not demonstrate the divine power to heal for any select number or for a limited period of time. We have the prophecy and the promise of Jesus: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do, because I go unto my father."

Mrs. Eddy looked forward implicitly likewise to the opportunities which would come to her followers for the accomplishment of greater demonstrations than any that were crowning their efforts in the first half century of mind-healing which her discovery had brought about.

Thus we see that demonstration of the almighty healing power of the divine mind is still in its infancy. Jesus saw and prophesied that not only such wonderful works as he performed would be continued after his earthly mission had been brought to a close, but that greater works would be accomplished by those accepting his teaching and following in his steps through the future. Mary Baker Eddy, in her self-abnegation was solicitous that she should be known only as one who had planted and watered his vineyard, leaving to the years to come, and to growth in understanding, the gathering of greater harvests than she had been privileged to see.

Doubtless, there are in this audience some who would like to know how even a slight understanding of Christian Science might be obtained. They need not be ashamed to confess their ignorance; rather should they be proud to entertain and to express a desire for the possession, even in a small degree, of that which cannot be gotten for all the riches contained in all the earth.

"Whence, then, cometh wisdom, and where is the place of understanding?" asks Job. And he replies: "God understandeth the way thereof, and he knoweth the place thereof, for he looketh to the ends of the earth, and seeth under the whole heaven. . . . And unto man he said, Behold, the fear of the Lord, that is wisdom, and to depart from evil, that is understanding." "Wisdom is the principal thing," said Solomon in his Proverbs. "therefore, get wisdom, and with all thy getting get understanding."

THE BEGINNER IN SCIENCE

To obtain an understanding of Christian Science, is to obtain an understanding of God and His relation to Man. If seekers are in earnest, I can promise that they will quickly find ready, kindly, patient and competent helpers, not only at the beginning of the journey, but all along the road. They come in the right attitude if they come as little children, with receptive minds, prepared to listen to the Truth. Only by putting away self—self-satisfaction, self-contentment, self-righteousness—all self-made, man-made, world-made opinions—and by consecrating themselves to the task of acquiring it, at any cost and at any sacrifice, can an understanding which will enable them to make progress in divine Science be attained. "When we wait patiently on God and seek Truth righteously, He directs our path," says the discoverer and founder of Christian Science (Science and Health, p. 254;10.) "Imperfect mortals grasp the ultimate of spiritual perfection slowly, but to begin aright and to continue the strife of demonstrating the great problem of being is doing much." To begin aright, is to provide oneself with a copy of the Bible and of the Christian Science textbook, and to zealously and religiously study their contents. All of Christian Science is contained in these two volumes.

To study the Bible and Science and Health intelligently and profitably demands constant recourse to prayer, that the eyes and the heart may be opened to understanding. "The prayer that reforms the sinner and heals the sick," says Mrs. Eddy, "is an absolute faith that all things are possible to God—a spiritual understanding of Him, an unselfed love." It is a fact, strange as it may appear to those of other religious denominations, that through Christian Science hundreds of thousands of Christian people have been instructed for the first time how to pray.

Great multitudes have come into Christian Science seeking health, seeking a larger share in the refinements and comforts of life, seeking domestic tranquility, business ease; great multitudes will continue to come into Christian Science in the hope of obtaining the peace they have sought elsewhere in vain, and they shall not be disappointed. But the vast majority advance in Christian Science because they have, in progressing step by step, made every other consideration secondary to that of rising in spiritual understanding and working out their own salvation. In no other way than by accepting Christ's many invitations to come unto him, to bring our troubles to him, to ask of him, believing, anything we may need—not something we simply want—may divine assistance be obtained along the rugged way to salvation. To obtain either healing or salvation, we must be ready to abandon self. Self is the great hindrance. Self blocks the way. Self submerges us in our own shadow. We must get rid of self by realizing the Allness of God, by throwing up our hands and declaring with all the earnestness and honesty we can command, "Thy will, O Lord, not mine, be done." When this point is reached, and we are trusting divine Love, not partly, but wholly; not conditionally, but absolutely, the point of healing is also reached, and salvation to crown the healing is close at hand.

AN UNWARRANTED INSINUATION

There are certain fundamentals to the discovery and philosophy of Mary Baker Eddy which when recognized and understood by the impartial student forever brush aside the utterly unwarranted and gratuitous insinuation—the utterly silly aspersion—that Christian Science is neither Christian nor scientific. The man who first said this apparently, was more concerned about the fashioning of a clever and catchy epigram than about the truth. The saying was picked up by a thousand preachers and repeated from a thousand pulpits, but from first to last it has impressed only the ignorant and the prejudiced. The term Christian Science, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science says (Science and Health, p. 123;16), was used to designate the scientific system of divine healing. Nothing could be more appropriate or more logical since she holds it to be basic that all Science is of God, not of man. (Science and Health, p. 551;16.) She holds that Jesus was the most scientific man that ever trod the globe—one who plunged beneath the material surface of things and found the spiritual cause. Again and again she pays him reverent tribute. She holds that he was inspired by God, by Truth and Love, in all that he said and did; that his spirituality separated him from sensuousness, and caused the selfish materialist to hate him; that Jesus established in the Christian era the precedent for all Christianity, theology and healing; that he read mortal mind on a scientific basis, and that Christians are under as direct orders now, as they were in Jesus' time, to be Christlike, to possess the Christ spirit, to follow the Christ example, and to heal the sick as well as the sinning.

With the clearness and keenness of spiritual vision which characterizes all the thinking and speaking and writing of Mary Baker Eddy, she is able to differentiate between the man Jesus and the Christ, and thus, to the satisfaction of Jew and Gentile alike, permanently has she bridged for millions a theological chasm that has yawned menacingly before the eyes of confused and bewildered humanity for centuries. Thus has she enabled her followers to acknowledge and adore one supreme and infinite God; to acknowledge His Son, one Christ; to understand what is meant by the Holy Ghost or divine Comforter; to recognize the real Man as God's image and likeness, and to subscribe, understandingly and whole-heartedly, to those tenets which fix Christ Jesus indelibly in the thought of Christian Scientists as the Wayshower, the Redeemer, the Savior of humanity.

Whether we seek understanding or healing in Christian Science, and it should be remembered that understanding is possible only through the healing of ignorance, self-opinion and prejudice, we must come in simplicity, trustfulness and confidence. We must have arrived at a decision to go the full length of the way. There must be no shifting, no hesitancy. Nothing short of an unconditional surrender will open the door that leads from captivity to freedom. The wavering, undecided and unready should blame themselves only if these proclivities obstruct the work of the practitioner or the teacher, defer healing or entirely prevent it.

A BLESSED ASSURANCE

Christian Science is rich in blessed assurances for the struggling heart, and generous in the granting of them, and one of the most beneficent and benevolent of these is the certainty that where there is an honest desire for understanding and healing, and a genuine willingness to be taught and lifted out of trouble, succor is close at hand. Those who seek understanding and help in Christian Science honestly, earnestly and confidently, do not fail to find it. Nobody need pause haltingly at the gate, fearing lest he is beneath consideration or beyond hope or help. Since God is Love and God is omnipotent, nothing that is good can be impossible.

Never has there been a time in all history when men were in greater need than now of that clearness of sight, that steadiness of purpose, that strength of character—that probity, perspicacity and unshakable moral stamina—which are imparted through spiritual discernment and spiritual understanding. It is the mission and purpose of Christian Science to bring the kingdom of God to earth, by dispelling the illusion that materialism, sensuality, money-grabbing, money-getting, money-spending, can satisfy the human desire for contentment, peace and happiness. The wreckage all about us of hopes, aspirations, ambitions based upon the attainment of mere worldly success, should constitute an impressive warning to the business and professional man as well as to the social striver of our day.

Wrong thinking is at the bottom not only of individual troubles and sorrows and sufferings, but it is the cause of all the harrowing evils that beset the family, the community, the nation and the world at large. Christian Science offers right-thinking as a corrective—as an obtainable, feasible, and, in fact, as the only possible cure for this stupendous evil. If the thoughts of humanity were in harmony with the divine Mind, with the Commandments, with the Beatitudes, with the Prophets, with the teachings of Christ Jesus and his disciples, with the Principle of Christian Science, as revealed through and expounded and taught by Mary Baker Eddy, the world would be freed from ferment, confusion and tumult. Christian Science corrects, exalts and strengthens the thought of the individual, and the thought of the community, the nation and the world will be straightened, elevated and strengthened proportionately with the increase in the number of individuals who shall claim, and win, their natural inheritance of light and who engage in the work of spreading it among their fellows.

FIRST GLIMPSE OF SALVATION

Christian Science has helped many hundreds of thousands of sick and sinning, sorrowing and suffering, disappointed, discouraged and despairing men and women to obtain their first glimpse of salvation, to get their first experience of heaven on earth; to realize fully for the first time that God is all-in-all, that He is Life, Truth and Love, that He is an ever-present help in trouble, their strong deliverer, their sure salvation. In Christian Science they learn more certainly than in any other way, because they learn it through their own demonstration, that while God is a righteous judge, He is also a kind, gentle, tender, compassionate, loving, merciful Father; that He is ever ready, has ever been ready, to hear the sigh and to dry the tear of the repentant, to soothe the hearts of those who come to Him in humility, with longing for forgiveness born of genuine regret for past shortcomings and backslidings.

The Christian Scientist, if he be faithful, prays without ceasing, but he prays to a God who is infinite intelligence, who does not need to be instructed, who lacks nothing in wisdom, who knows, without being told, what is best for His children, and who has provided for them out of the amplitude of His love everything they need. He prays for light, for wisdom and for understanding; he prays that the mind may be in him which was also in Christ Jesus; he prays that he may be honest, upright and true, that he may be a good man, a good friend, a good citizen, that he may not think or say or do anything contrary to God's commandments, and with all his praying, which is honest and pure desire, uttered or unexpressed, he yearns for righteousness, harmony and peace.

Christian Science is essentially a religion of Faith, Hope and Love, these three; to the Christian Scientist the greatest of these is Love, because it comprehends all—that Love which doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil; beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things—that Love which finds expression in the simple lines:

Let me be a little kinder, let me be a little blinder
To the faults of those about me; let me praise a little more;
Let me be, when I am weary, just a little bit more cheery;
Let me serve a little better those that I am striving for.
Let me be a little braver when temptation bids me waver;
Let me strive a little harder to be all that I should be;
Let me be a little meeker with the brother that is weaker;
Let me think more of my neighbor and a little less of me.

WINCHESTER MOTHERS' ASSN.

On Tuesday evening, Oct. 18th, approximately three hundred mothers, fathers and teachers, gathered at the High School Hall to listen to a remarkably clear exposition of the psychology of the boy.

The High School orchestra opened the program with two delightful selections.

Mrs. A. H. Higgins spoke for a few moments on the aims and ideas of the Mothers' Association and illustrated the many ways in which the association was able to be useful to the school, and how it tries to be an inspiration and guidance to the mother.

Mrs. Reeve Chipman vice president, then introduced Mr. H. W. Gibson, as the speaker of the evening, who spoke in a most inspiring manner on "Your Boy and Mine."

Mr. Gibson pointed out to the parents their responsibility in the character of the boy. In this busy world the boy is too often passed to the church, the school or the gymnasium, for the father is too busy trying to make his fortune, to think of the boy, and the great desire is for his father's companionship. Every boy's question is a father's opportunity.

The boy wants a home not a house and Mr. Gibson spoke with regret that we could not bring back into the modern home the old fashioned idea of hospitality. He urged the mothers to shut their eyes to some of the dirt and to remember that home-making was a better art than housekeeping.

In closing he spoke of the example which counts so much with the boy, for he is a born imitator. Upon that depends his life and character, and for that reason the ideal relation of the father to the son should be such, that as a boy grows up his guiding thought will be: "I want to be like my father."

At the close of the address the reception to the teachers was held in the gymnasium which had been decorated with autumn foliage and flowers by Mrs. Saunders of the Social Committee.

Refreshments were served by the girls of the Junior class, the hostesses being Mrs. Root, Mrs. Zueblin, Mrs. Henry Ordway and Mrs. Higgins.

The following Junior girls of the High School served: Misses Ruth Chamberlain, Martha Ginn, Dorothy and Peggy Maddocks, Madeline Eastwick, Marion Henderson, Barbara Pike and Marion Winn.

G. A. R. VETERAN DIES

Samuel H. Brookings Passed Away Friday

Mr. Samuel Henry Brookings, aged 76 years, a prominent G. A. R. veteran and commander of A. D. Weld Post 134, for the past ten years, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John S. Blank, Jr., on Highland avenue Friday. He had been ill for a considerable time and his death was not unexpected.

Mr. Brookings had made his home in this town for nearly seventy years. He was born in Boston in 1843, coming to Winchester when seven years old. At the age of 18 he enlisted in the 22d Mass. Inf. and served three years in the Civil War, being wounded in the battle of Antietam. He was with the Army of the Potomac and upon serving out his period of enlistment, joined the Navy where he saw several years service.

At the close of the War he returned to Winchester and took up the trade of painter, which he followed until his retirement fifteen years ago.

He was one of the early members of the First Baptist Church, which he joined in 1875, and was a charter member of A. D. Weld Post, G. A. R. He was one of the six known surviving members of the Post, the others being Senior Vice Commander Henry Smalley, aged 70 years; Henry J. Kichburg, aged 70, and Peter Walling, aged 75 of this town; and Harry Dummell of Melrose and Royal S. Carr of Medford.

The funeral services were held at the residence, 321 Highland avenue, on Monday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. Clifton H. Walcott, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiating. The services were attended by all three of the living members of A. D. Weld Post in Winchester, and during the services selections were rendered by Miss E. Lillian Evans of Arlington. There was a beautiful display of flowers.

The full bearers included Messrs. H. Wadsworth Hight, Alfred O. Weld, George Moore and George W. Potter, all members of the G. A. R. of Veterans. The interment was in Wildwood Cemetery, and at the grave taps were sounded by Mr. Potter.

BOY KILLED BY AUTO TUESDAY

Michael Colucci, a 12 year old boy residing on Summer street, was struck and killed Tuesday evening at about five o'clock by an automobile driven by Frank Carroll of 26 Swanton street. The accident occurred on Swanton street near the Chapin School. According to Carroll the boy ran in front of his car from behind a wagon. He was taken immediately to the Winchester Hospital, where it was found that his skull was fractured. Colucci was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raffaele Colucci. Carroll will appear in the Woburn court this morning on a manslaughter charge.

Among the approaching weddings is that of Mr. Harold Franklin Ogden, son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Ogden of Ridgefield road, and Miss Ruth Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Wright of Lawrence.

Work was commenced this week rebuilding High street, this way being now closed to travel owing to its narrow width. A steam shovel is being used in the work, which will occupy some time. Upon its completion, the road will be in fine shape, and the bad spots which impeded Spring travel will be eliminated.

Mrs. Rachel Richardson is visiting at Antrim N. H. where her son Harry is seriously ill.

LEGION PRESENTS "THE ROYAL MOUNTED"

The Winchester Post of the American Legion presents "The Royal Mounted" on Friday night, November 11th. This play deals with the adventures of the mounted police of the Canadian Northwest in running down a murderer in one of the lumber camps of that wild region. To those who set out on the trail, the command is "Bring back your man, dead or alive." The action which follows is natural and true to life, depicting the valor and heroism of those who made up The Canadian Northwest Mounted Police. A romance is started by Sergeant O'Brien of the mounted while he is out on the trail. The plot in connection with the search for the murderer and the love of Sergeant O'Brien for one of the girls of the camps, are closely connected—strange as this may seem. It is not until the last few lines of the play that the audience will realize what the outcome is to be.

The play is not melodramatic, but portrays life as it really is among the sparsely settled districts of Northwest Canada.

The committee in charge of the show felt that Armistice Day was the most appropriate time for the Legion to have its play, and hope that the townspeople—remembering the stirring times of November 11, 1918—will turn out on the third anniversary to support the boys as they did on that historic day three years ago.

Mr. T. P. Wilson of the Star has kindly consented to sell tickets at his store, starting Monday morning they will be on sale at 75c and $1.25.

Mr. MacDonnell had resided in this town for many years, making his home at 18 Oak street. He was a member of Winchester Council, K. of C., of the Catholic Order of Foresters and St. Mary's Holy Name Society. He leaves a wife, (Miss Margaret Fraser) and nine children, Hugh, Cameron, James, Maynard, Roderick, Albert, Mary, Monica and Margaret; he also leaves two brothers, Daniel of Beverly and Douglas of Charlestown, and three sisters, Miss Katherine MacDonnell of Woburn and Mrs. Frank McIntosh and Mrs. George Morse, both of Lynn.

THE POSTMASTER SAYS:

If you are mailing small articles such as jewelry, small pictures, etc., do them up in a good size package. The cost of mailing is small and the margin of safety is increased 50 percent. True, you can insure the package, but money will not replace the lost keepsake, family heirloom or picture of some departed friend or relative.

By doing as above you will help the postal employees and possibly save yourself a heartache.

No school today; Winchester teachers are attending the teachers' convention at Boston.

Mrs. Charles E. Corey of the Parkway was the hostess for the Western Missionary Society of the First Congregational Church Wednesday afternoon on the occasion of its silver tea. Mrs. Joshua Phippen assisted Mrs. Corey.

Will Irwin, Universally Acclaimed the "Ace of Correspondents" to Lecture Here

Will Discuss "The Next World War"—Is One of America's Most Popular Magazine Writers and Fictionists.

Newspapermen all over the United States acclaim Will Irwin as "The Ace of Correspondents" because of his splendid work during the late war. His remarkable story of the Ypres was read the world over, and because he told the truth about this part of the war he was literally blacklisted by the English and French Armies. In true American style he went right to Lloyd George about the matter and the Premier wiped out the journalistic blockade with a stroke of his pen. Following the war Irwin was in the Ruhr rebellion and later visited Russia and other countries of the world studying social, political and industrial conditions.

His new book "The Next War" has been highly commended all over the States. Dr. Frank Crane recently wrote in the Chicago Daily News pronouncing it the greatest book of the century and lamented the fact that it could not be placed in every church, school and home in the United States. His lecture subjects are "The Next World War," "Socialism, its Failure and Promise."

Mr. Irwin comes to the Winchester Town Hall, Nov. 4th. Tickets at $1.00, 50 cents and 25 cents, may be obtained from Mrs. W. A. Lefavour, tel. 663-W; Mrs. B. Bernard, 897; Miss A. N. Jewett, 827-W; Mrs. James Nowell, 811-W; Mrs. D. C. Dennett, 164 and Allen's Pharmacy.

RECITAL AND TEA

The recital and tea given at the home of Mrs. G. B. Kimball, 29 Wedgemore avenue, Wednesday afternoon, for the benefit of the Parish Extension Fund of the Church of the Epiphany, was a success in every way. Miss Nash and Miss Luetscher of The Players entertained with concert songs, readings, and songs of the past in costume. The program was a pleasing one both in length and variety and the audience was very appreciative of the high grade of work done. Warm personalities, excellent voices, and good interpretation made the recital one which was distinctly above the average. Especially noticeable was the quality and fine blending of the two voices. Miss Fernald's accompanying was excellent.

At the close of the program tea was served. Mrs. Murray W. Dewart and Mrs. Herbert S. Underwood poured.

The captains who are to work on the East Side of the town will meet with Mrs. Waldo Bond on Monday at eleven o'clock.

THE SCHOOL BUILDINGS PROGRAM COMMITTEE

The High School Situation.

The Winchester High School is over-crowded at the present time. The Freshman class is the largest in the history of the school numbering about 175 as compared with 145 a year ago and the total registration in the High School is about 435. As a result the Assembly Hall is filled to its capacity and the Study and Recitation Rooms are very much congested. If the present system is to be continued, it will only be a few years when an addition to the High School will be imperative.

All the seventh and eighth grade pupils of Winchester attend the Wadleigh School and these two grades are now being conducted on the general principle of a Junior High School. The ninth grade which should be included in a Junior High School is now housed in the Senior High School building and it is obvious that the Junior High School Plan cannot be efficiently and effectively carried out when the grades are divided as they are now in Winchester.

In the consideration of the Junior High School Plan, the Committee wishes to emphasize two points.

1. Winchester has already established the Junior High School principle at the Wadleigh School, and the erection of a Junior High School building to accommodate the seventh, eighth and ninth grade pupils would only be an extension of the present school policy.

2. The establishment of a Junior High School would relieve the present congestion at the Senior High School by taking away the Freshman class. This would leave only three classes in the Senior High School, and the present building should be adequate for these three classes for a considerable number of years.

The Committee has given careful consideration to the question of a Junior High School, or intermediate school, as it is sometimes called. This is called the 6-3-3 Plan, i. e. six years in the grade school, three years in the Junior High, or intermediate school, and three years in the Senior High. The Committee has conferred with Mr. Sturgis, Mr. Wood and Messrs. Kinsley and Jones of the State Board of Education, all of whom heartily endorse this Plan and the School Committee of Winchester which has urged the adoption of this Plan; it has been in use for about twenty years in some places, and is rapidly being adopted throughout the country, and is recommended by all leading educators.

The Committee has endeavored to formulate its opinion independently of the opinion of those whom it has consulted, and while it feels that the adoption of the Junior High School Plan is a wise one, it hopes that the residents of the town will also give this important matter thoughtful consideration. In a few weeks the Committee plans to hold public hearings in different parts of the town so that this subject as well as all others relating to the School Building Program may be thoroughly discussed.

The following is a brief statement of some of the reasons in favor of a Junior High School.

1. The high school organization, course of studies and system of work differs so widely from the elementary school as to render desirable an intermediate school between the two, embodying features of both.

2. The intermediate school covers a period when pupils should no longer be required to continue the pursuit of precisely the same course of instruction whatever their abilities, tastes or aptitudes.

3. The Junior High School enables the pupils to begin certain lines of work suited to their special attitudes and to advance as rapidly as their abilities and attainments will permit, and this plan tends to retain pupils longer in school than under the present system.

4. The training of this intermediate school, properly carried out, will fit the pupil better for high school and college, for commercial undertakings or for other activities of life.

Next week the Committee will deal with the question of the location of the new school buildings.

The Calumet Club holds a ladies' night this evening, a Halloween party, dancing and bowling outlining the entertainment for an informal occasion with plenty of the season's fun.

Mr. Edward R. Wait of Fellsdale will sail on Monday for a trip to England and the Continent. He expects to be away during the larger part of the winter and will give his attention chiefly to the various styles of English architecture in connection with his work of planning the development of Fellsdale. This development, on Highland avenue, will include the erection of some 100 residences, and is already well advanced. Mr. Wait sails of the ss Minnidos.

A memorial solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Mary's Church at 8 yesterday morning for the repose of the soul of Lord Mayor Terence MacSwiney of Cork, in connection with the first anniversary of his death at Brixton Prison. Rev. Fr. Nathaniel J. Merritt, pastor of St. Mary's Church, was the celebrant. Rev. Fr. Joseph M. Fitzgibbons was the deacon, and Rev. Fr. Joseph A. Quigley the subdeacon of the mass. The choir under the direction of organist Miss Margaret Merritt, rendered the Gregorian requiem, with Mrs. J. Roy McGrath as soloist. The mass was held especially at the request of the members of Canon Magner Council, A. A. R. I. R. of this town.

WINCHESTER PEOPLE IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Winchester people figured in two automobile accidents Wednesday. During the forenoon a Packard touring car driven by Mrs. A. Miles Holbrook and a Cole 8, driven by Mr. William H. Edwards, came together at the corner of Wildwood and Cambridge street and in the evening a car owned by Mr. Arthur E. French of Highland avenue was in a collision in Stoneham with a car owned by Grover Clarke of Haverhill.

The morning crash badly damaged both cars, the Holbrook auto losing a wheel and receiving a bent axle and the Edwards car having both front wheels smashed, a bent axle and damaged mudguard. Fortunately no one was hurt, both cars travelling slowly at the time.

Several were injured in the evening accident, two of the Haverhill party being taken to the Winchester Hospital. This accident occurred on the main road just north of Stoneham square. The French car was driven by John Price and contained Arthur E. French, Jr., Evander French and Mrs. W. C. Byam of Wilmington. The Haverhill car contained besides the driver Mrs. Angie Clarke and Mrs. Edgar Smith of Pembroke, Me., and Frank Channell of Haverhill. Mrs. Clarke and Mrs. Smith were taken to the Winchester Hospital and Price received three broken ribs, while Arthur French was badly cut on the head. Both cars were wrecked.

WINCHESTER LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

Under the auspices of the Winchester League of Women Voters, Will Irwin, far-famed writer, lecturer and war correspondent will speak on "Limitation of Armament" at the Town Hall, November 4, at 8 P. M.

This is a rare chance to hear the ways and wherefores of this all-absorbing topic of the present day told by one who knows.

DIPHTHERIA SCARE

The diphtheria scare last week proved wholly without foundation. It appears that two cases were found in the High School, and in order to care for any contagion and determine whether a diphtheria carrier was in the school, cultures were taken from the pupils. This led to many wild reports. As a matter of fact both cases were isolated and no further cases were found or have appeared.

BOARD OF TRADE MEETING

A "Get Together Meeting" is announced for the Winchester Board of Trade to be held in Lyceum Hall on Tuesday evening, Nov. 1st. At this meeting the winter's work will be planned. There will be no outside speakers and a light collation will be served. The meeting will open at 7:45 o'clock.

THE WINCHESTER LAUNDRIES, Inc.

GIFT TO THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY has recently received from Mrs. Georgianna Bangs, the gift of a large oil painting in memory of her father, the late Hon. David Nelson Skillings, who was one of the earliest donors of a fund for the PUBLIC LIBRARY.

The painting is by a Winchester artist, the late J. Foxcroft Cole, who resided on Everett avenue, some years ago, and who was in his day a celebrated artist. The picture is a Winchester scene, and will be placed on exhibition later. It will be a splendid companion to the "Coast of Normandy" by the same artist, purchased some years ago with the income of the Skillings Fund.

Mrs. Bangs included in her gift an engraving of early American Authors.

The Public Library would always be glad of any suitable gifts, either works of modern artists, good replicas of the old masters, or volumes of current fiction in good condition.

The Historical Society would welcome any objects of interest, either of local antiquity, or souvenirs of the World War. Pamphlets or programs of special interest, such as dedication of churches, celebration of important events would tend to make our collection more perfect.

WINCHESTER SMITH CLUB

On October the twentieth the Winchester Smith club held its first meeting of the fall at the home of Mrs. T. Grafton Abbott in Rangeley.

Mrs. Hutchinson, president of the Boston Smith Alumnae outlined the plans of the Boston club for the coming year.

Mrs. Whorf presented the question of a scholarship and it was voted to establish a partial scholarship commencing in the fall of 1922. Mrs. Whorf was appointed chairman of a committee to handle the matter and to present it to the High School, telling them exactly what such a scholarship means.

Mrs. Dennett spoke on the importance of joining the League of Woman Voters, urging those to join who had not already done so.

After the meeting was adjourned Mrs. Abbott invited the members to meet Mrs. Hutchinson at tea.

BAPTIST CHURCH BUYS PROPERTY

It is reported that the First Baptist Church has recently purchased the house and land adjoining its property at the corner of Mt. Vernon and Elm streets. This land is owned by Emily E. St. John of Cambridge. It includes a story and a half dwelling occupied by two families and about 5000 feet of land. It is said that the church does not contemplate any change or development of the property at this time.

Mr. Martin Gillespie was knocked down and trampled upon Friday afternoon by a horse on Cambridge street. He was taken to his home in the police car, where he is reported as recovering satisfactorily. Mr. Gillespie has been in the employ of C. H. Symmes for many years.

Calumet Bowling Figures Above Average to Date

Thus far in the bowling tournament at the Calumet Club the scores have averaged considerably above the usual figures, many of the bowlers having made some remarkably fine scores. On the other hand, some of the old-timers are still trailing along at figures considerably below what they are capable of making. This feature will be remedied at the first correction of ratings. Friday night's matches resulted in team 4 taking three from 16, 5 all four from 17 and 6 three from 18. None of the strings were particularly close. Paul Goddu was high man with a total of 321 and a single of 132. George Purrington made 320 with 110. Newt Purrington 308 with 114. Walter Purrington 305 with 114. Pilkington 303 with 105. Fenno 304 with 108. Aseltine a single of 117. Ralph Purrington 114. Keeney 110. Taylor 107 and Warren Goddu 106.

WINCHESTER HIGH LOST 41-0

With three of its best players out of the game and another disbarred from finishing the game for rough playing, the local High School lost its Mystic Valley League game with Woburn High by a score of 41-0 on Manchester Field Saturday afternoon before a large crowd of spectators from both schools. Winchester succeeded only in holding the visitors to a failure to score in the first period, they scoring freely in the remaining portions of play. Woburn scored three touchdowns in the second period, two in the third and one in the last.

The game was rough from the start, and Tansey, Winchester's fullback, was taken from the game in the first period for rough playing. He tried for field goals twice during the time he was in the game, but failed.

A GIFTED WOMAN PASSES

Mrs. Helen Pearson Barnard who died of pneumonia at her summer home Sharon, Mass., Oct. 23d, was one who not only made her mark as a writer but who as wife, mother and friend left a memory rich in years of example and helpfulness.

Mrs. Barnard made her home in Winchester for many years, residing first on Forest street in the house now occupied by Town Engineer Hinds, and later on Vine street in what is now the K. of C. club house. With her husband she was instrumental in the founding of the Second Congregational Church at the Highlands, then known as the Bethany Chapel.

Born in Hampton Falls, New Hampshire, in 1849, the daughter of a clergyman and of a then well-known writer, Emily Clemens Pearson, she early showed signs of literary ability. At the age of fourteen she wrote her first book "Roy's Search," a temperance story which was long one of the most sought in the Sunday School libraries. Later she took up short story writing and was a contributor to the "Youth's Companion" and other periodicals devoted to the young. Of her later Sunday School books, "Patty's Grand Uncle," "The Last of the Luscombs," "The Sheltered Stranger" and "The Boys of North Parish" were perhaps the best known.

As Secretary of the Woman's Board of Missions in Boston she came in touch with Congregational mission work the world over and in which she kept an active interest during her life.

In 1874 she was married to E. Lawrence Barnard of Andover, Mass., now assistant treasurer of the S. D. Warren Co., Boston.

She is survived by her husband, E. Lawrence Barnard, a brother, Henry Clemens Pearson, and seven children, well known in various walks of life.

The funeral services were held at the Barnard home in Sharon and were conducted by the Rev. D. A. Newton, formerly pastor of the First Congregational Church in Winchester, of which for many years she was a member. The interment was at Wildwood Cemetery, Winchester.

DOHERTY-HODGE

Miss Katherine L. Hodge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Hodge of 26 Pond street, and Charles E. Doherty, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Doherty of 32 Wright street, Woburn, were married Sunday afternoon at St. Mary's Church rectory. Rev. Fr. Nathaniel J. Merrill, pastor, performing the ceremony. John Doherty, brother of the groom, was best man, and Miss Alice F. Hodge, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. On their return from a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Doherty will reside at 35 Wright street, Woburn. The bride is a graduate of the Winchester High School, and was a member of the Winchester Sewing Circle. The groom is a graduate of Woburn High School and is a railroad man.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Ignorance often borrows a coat and then poses as wisdom. Isn't it a fact that some people we know want to make hay in February and cut ice in August.

What a lot of busy people there would be if doctors bills could be paid by returning their calls.

When a man becomes too lazy to stand up and tell the truth he is apt to lie about it.

The more men get the more they will be surprised if they get it.

During the year past the STAR has steadily grown with the town. Its issue today is the largest in its history outside special numbers, and at that there are times when all desiring copies are not supplied. Its endeavor is to print clean news and all the news—to make Winchester the best town in the State. You can gain your own idea of what Winchester people think of it by reading its columns. Of course you take it.

The STAR this week is reduced in price. We take this step in recognition of the country-wide effort on the part of all business to reduce the abnormal costs and return to normalcy. One year ago the price of the STAR was raised. At that time the high costs were at their peak and no one knew where they would end. During the past few months strong and determined efforts have been made to bring them back where they belong. Newspaper costs have probably shown the least reduction. Print paper alone is back to pre-war levels. Labor remains at war-time figures, ink is about double 1918 prices, rollers show but slight reduction over a year ago, and of all the necessities entering into newspaper production, prices are far in advance of the old figures. Believing, however, that every move that tends to put business back on a normal basis is of the greatest possible value at this time, we have made the subscription price $2.50 the year instead of $3.

The statement that town officials did not take the visiting planning boards over Wolcott terrace because of possible damage to the sewer manhole which obstructs this street is not wholly correct. Wolcott terrace is a dead-end street, and no conscientious planning board would countenance it, even though Winchester residents have the misfortune to reside on it. Furthermore, it being but 300 feet in length, only three of four cars could be accommodated on it at one time. It is, however, admitted that had the procession of 40 automobiles attempted to traverse the street, there is strong possibility that a big damage bill would have resulted. The Town was last reported as being willing to accept this old established way upon the payment of $900 by the abutters—$3 a foot. In this connection recent raises in valuation of the property on the street would seem justified, although residents there view the increases otherwise, and are demanding an abatement under the claim that they are not privileged to enjoy the benefits accorded other residents and should not therefore be increased in their taxes.

It is an interesting fact that many Winchester people who drove cars containing members of visiting planning boards about town last week have remarked that they visited many parts of Winchester they had never seen before. This is a well known human trait; a lifetime is spent near a local point of interest without one seeing it through its very nearness, while other points of interest, of much less importance from any angle, are visited time and again at remote distances. Winchester has an active and energetic planning board, probably as efficient in its work as any in the State, and as a suggestion we would recommend consideration of this feature as a means of holding public interest in our town; its beauties and its development. Would it not be a pleasing and profitable feature to hold one, or perhaps two, Winchester Days, routing out a trip around town which would bring home to our residents the advantages they enjoy and points for future development? How many at our annual town meeting were actually familiar with conditions on High street? Yet last week Wednesday our planning board attached enough importance to this section to carry our visitors there. How many have ridden along the roads bordering our Back Ball Pond development? Many did so for the first time last week. These are but two instances of a half a hundred which could be enumerated. To be sure, we are all free to visit such places as interest us, but to visit them in company with others; to take a specific time and set it apart for such visit, with the thought the trip carries with it, would, to our mind, be not only a unique scheme in better conveying the things our officials are ac-

Although a general invitation was extended last week to Winchester people to accompany the field session of the planning boards Federation, not everyone understood it was open to all, and many have expressed a wish that they could have joined in.

DANNY CALLAHAN

(An Appreciation)

It very seldom happens in any community that a young man passes from this life to the next, leaving such a host of sorrowing friends, as those left by Danny Callahan, when after a few day's illness with pneumonia, he departed this life last Wednesday morning at the Winchester Hospital. Danny, as he was known by all, ever had a cheery word and pleasant wave for every one. Always accommodating and always ready to do anything in his power as a favor to those who asked, with never a word of complaint, he endeared himself to every one who was fortunate enough to make his acquaintance. This, too, when the fact is known that for some time back Danny had been anything but a well boy and suffered in silence, except for a casual reference about his troubles to his most intimate friends,—from complications the aftermath of an operation for appendicitis eight or ten years ago. Suffering that would make the ordinary man turn against the world and his fellow men, seemed only to increase the pleasant disposition of Danny.

He worked for a number of years in the furnishing store of Henry Winn on Mt. Vernon street and the patronage enjoyed by the store attested to the popularity of the boy. The past three or four years he had been in the employ of the Whitney Machine Company, and that he was liked by every man in the shop was verified by the sincere expressions of sorrow from them all when they learned of his death.

When the late war started he tried six times, to my knowledge, to enlist in the various branches of the service, but not being strong enough, each time was passed up. Once he passed the examination in Boston and was sent to Fort S. C. Lomb, but after a more thorough examination there, they decided he was not strong enough to withstand the rigor of army life and he was sent home. The poor boy was broken hearted, as he earnestly wished to do his bit. Six times trying to get into that which almost all of us were willing to admit we hoped to keep out of, shows the courage that was in the heart of the boy. The room banked with beautiful floral expressions of sympathy and the numerous spiritual bouquets gave further evidence of the regard in which Danny was held by his legion of friends.

A faithful brother, a dutiful son, his loss will be felt in his home forever. His was a personality that one does not soon forget, and the only consolation thought to his family and friends is that he has now passed from this world of sorrow and suffering to enjoy his reward in the next.

Gone but in memory with us, still Danny Callahan.

BILL BOARDS

Editor of the Star:

On Friday, Oct. 7, hearings were held at the State House on petitions for granting permits for advertising signs within the limits of Winchester and of Milton. Previously there had been a similar hearing regarding permits in the city of Newton. The authorities of these towns and city objected to the permits asked for being granted and citizens both men and women strongly protested, usually taking the ground that they wished no bill boards at all within their several municipalities.

The bill-board owners were ably represented and the following seems to me to be a fair statement of the main reasons given by the attorneys in arguing for signs in Winchester.

First, Winchester must carry her share of out-door advertising, so that advertisers shall have the right to publish their wares to the people of this town.

Second, Winchester has very few signs compared with other towns and it is absurd that she should object to any and all signs in the town, no matter where located.

Third, The present day advertising signs are artistic and do not injuriously affect the appearance and value of the surroundings.

Fourth, The revenue derived by the owners of land upon which signs are erected is considerable and it would be a decided burden to these land owners to deprive them of this.

Following is the situation in Winchester at present.—Permits in nine different localities have been asked;

three permits along Cambridge street in the vicinity of or beyond Pond street, one on Pond street, two on North Main street and three location along the Boston and Maine Railroad north of the centre of the town. Each location is where there is much passing of through travel and with the exception of the North Main street location, seen by only a very few of the residents of the town. Consequently from the point of view presented by the bill board attorneys most of the signs practically fail in bringing the advertised wares to the attention of Winchester residents plausibly stated as a main reason for signs in our town.

At the meeting of the Massachusetts Federation of Planning Boards, Mr. Bryant the town counsel of Milton, stated that all the permits asked for in that town were for signs on land owned by people not resident in Milton. That not a resident of Milton had given the right to ask for a permit for a bill board on land owned by a resident.

New regardless of how the Board of Public Works may act upon the permits now before the Board, it seems to me that the chief remedy to be employed in Winchester will be to reach the owners of land and arouse in them the same pride that is true of Milton residents.

If our land owners realize that advertising signs along our highways are really considered by the towns people to detract from the beauty and charm of our town I am sure that they will all wish to do their part in maintaining the fine appearance.

It is difficult to tell at what great cost Winchester has become such a beautiful town though the efforts of the Town and State, and certainly the small amount of revenue derived from hiring out land for bill board purposes is not to be considered as of any weight if we believe that bill boards tend to destroy or nullify the appearance of the town. Certainly Winchester ought to be in Milton's class.

No decision has yet been given by the Board of Public Works on the application in Winchester. Why should not our citizens seek to kill these petitions by trying to persuade our land owners not to grant bill board privileges on their land in Winchester?

The fact that in such a few cases in our town has it been possible to gain permission of the resident owners of land for erection of bill boards should encourage us in thinking that within a short time civic pride in the appearance of the town will cause all residents to deny any bill board privileges.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER COMPANY
149 William Street, New York

How to make it

Use level measurements for all materials

1/2 cup shortening
1 1/2 cups sugar
Grated rind of 1/2 orange 1 egg and 1 yolk
2 1/2 cups flour
4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1 cup milk
1 1/2 squares (1 1/2 oz.) of unsweetened chocolate (melted)
1/4 teaspoon salt

Cream shortening. Add sugar and grated orange rind. Add beaten egg yolks. Sift together flour, salt and Royal Baking Powder and add alternately with the milk; lastly fold in one beaten egg white. Divide batter into two parts. To one part add the chocolate. Put by tablespoons, alternating dark and light batter, into three greased layer cake pans. Bake in moderate oven 20 minutes.

FILLING AND ICING

3 tablespoons melted butter 2 tablespoons orange juice
3 cups confectioner's sugar 1 egg white (powdered sugar may be used but does not make as smooth icing) 3 squares (3 oz.) unsweetened chocolate
Grated rind of 1/2 orange and pulp of 1 orange

Put butter, sugar, orange juice and rind into bowl. Cut pulp from orange, removing skin and seeds, and add. Beat all together until smooth. Fold in beaten egg white. Spread this icing on layer used for top of cake. While icing is soft, sprinkle with unsweetened chocolate shaved in fine pieces with sharp knife (use 1/2 square). To remaining icing add 2 1/2 squares unsweetened chocolate which has been melted. Spread this thickly between layers and on sides of cake.

LETTER FROM SCHUYLER F. HERRON

Former Superintendent of Schools Writes from Ica, Peru

Ica, Peru, October 1, 1921.

Mr. T. Price Wilson
The Star, Winchester, Mass.

Dear Mr. Wilson:—

The Star, which by the way seems to me, if you do not mind my saying so—an exceptionally good local paper, indicates that all is well in Winchester. And so it is in Ica though we are some distance from where the Pilgrims landed and the Hub.

As I write these words I am reminded that the first settlers in Ica had been here fifty eight years before the events which you have recently been celebrating occurred at Provincetown and Plymouth. Ica was settled in 1563 and is now a city with about as many people as Winchester though more closely built up. Lacking rain we do not have grassy plots around our dwellings here.

On your map, if your geography is good, as it probably is, you can find us on the fourteenth degree parallel south of the equator, about fifty miles inland from the port of Pisco. The ride from Pisco is made on a railway built in the seventies through a somewhat rolling sandy waste. Here and there one can see a palm tree or a patch of algarrobo—a hard fibred tree which needs little water, apparently—or a little green where there is a spring but on the whole it is just sand and it is a pleasant sight when the train comes down into this relatively green valley.

I say relatively because, as you will recall, the narrow coast strip in Peru west of the Andes has very little rain so little in fact that it is not welcome, the houses being constructed for dry weather and agriculture being carried on almost solely by irrigation. This coast strip is now the seat of the business of the country, except for the mines and some products of the sierra and the vast region east waiting for ready communication and consequent development. It is traversed by numerous short rivers, fed by the melting snows and the rains in the Andes, from which irrigation ditches lead the precious water sometimes many miles to fields thus made productive. Towns and cities are thus necessarily along the water courses though haciendas may, if the fairly level surface permits water to flow be fifteen miles away.

The view from my door looking west and window looking east may serve to give a fair idea of this part of the valley of the Ica. To the west are a few houses then fields of grapes and cotton with rows of willow along irrigation ditches, occasional palms and ferns—a tree somewhat like the beech to a line of sand hills which seems almost to swing around to meet the mountains to the east. On the east I can look over the city—the houses are mostly one story adobe or brick—to see again green fields and trees to the foot hills of the Andes, brown, barren, precipitous about ten miles away. It doesn't seem so far but apparent distances are very deceptive in this clear dry air.

The city itself is clean and paved has electric lights and seven or eight public squares. Of these the central one is really beautiful with its border of massive ficus trees perhaps 75 feet high with thick foliage and wide spreading branches which shade the surrounding streets and the central part. Just now the new green leaves are coming out and the contrasting shades of the leaves give a very pretty effect. That these and other trees grow so well is due to abundant water in the subsoil.

We also have the three dailies, the movies and taxis, the necessities and the luxuries and the trials of life—you may make your own combinations of the terms and a climate that is in a class by itself. About now you would like it and during the rest of the year so far as I have observed you would not feel any different.

Yours very truly,
Schuyler F. Herron

Each man is required to hand shake and reacquaint with each other; to do full justice to a whale of a good dinner; to join in the singing and the discussion of club affairs and plans for the coming season; to listen to a talk by the famous Capt. DONALD A. MacKAY of the Royal Northwest Police, a speaker for whom we were gunning all last season but couldn't date up till now, with a subject of tremendous interest.

V. Penalties. Those failing to come will be deprived of a fine dinner, the opportunity of hearing a wonderfully interesting speaker, and the chance to join in the benefits of a live wire organization.

VI. Members will not allow engagements of any sort to interfere, but will without exception report as ordered on Monday Evening, November 7, 6:30 p. m.

Per order, Men's Club.

E. B. Smalley, Secretary.

This trademark, stamped in red on the case, identifies the Willard Threaded Rubber Battery.

"What is Threaded Rubber?"

Threaded Rubber Insulation is made up of sheets of rubber, each pierced by 195,000 tiny threads. The rubber insulates each plate from its neighbor and the threads allow the battery solution to circulate freely.

Willard Threaded Rubber Insulation stays on the job month after month unaffected by acid and without a sign of splitting, cracking or perforation. It lasts as long as the battery plates and helps the battery give more miles of uninterrupted service per dollar.

You'll need a battery one of these days, so the time to get your battery information together is right now. We'll be glad to show you a Threaded Rubber Battery inside and outside and tell you why it saves you money.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The Rainbow Reception on Monday was certainly a great success. The tiny bright bows, brilliant Fall flowers, and the club colors in decoration, made a very festive appearance. The large audience greeted the artists who gave the program, and also one another in a very cordial manner. It proved to be a get-together good time. Miss Stackpole gave a number of short selections, and a scene from Tarkington's "Clarence" with much grace.

The well selected musical numbers by the Grace Dean Trio were greatly enjoyed by all. Interesting reports were given of the Annual Federation meeting at Plymouth in June. The first meeting of the Literature class will be held on Nov. 7th at 3 o'clock, in The Fortnightly Committee Room. A study of modern drama has been outlined for the year, taking a representative play from the literature of different nations. The first afternoon will be devoted to English drama, under the leadership of Miss Weeks and Miss Richmond. Subject: Pinner and his Plays. Tea will be served. All interested are cordially invited.

The date given in the year book for the first card party has been changed from Nov. 10th to Nov. 9th. Four parties will be given during the season for the benefit of the Committee Room, which is proving itself a success. Members of the Room Committee having tickets are Mrs. G. W. Apsey, Mrs. H. A. Goddard, Mrs. E. A. Tucker, Mrs. Wm. Edlestone, Mrs. Chas. Tarbell, Mrs. Lillian Mason and Mrs. Wm. Emerson.

Parties may be arranged for a walk to the Indian Bowl on Horn Pond Mountain, through the courtesy of Mr. Nath. M. Nichols who will conduct them. Tel. 658-M. A class in Aesthetic dancing will begin in about two weeks, under direction of a young lady who is a post graduate student of the Sargent School. Any person wishing to join this class phone Mrs. Bernard 807.

The class in Italian Lace Work will be formed, any member of the class interested in this class please notify Mrs. Deane, Tel. 697.

A bridge party will be given by the Room Committee at Lyceum Hall on Wednesday, Nov. 9th, at 2:30 p. m., for club members and their friends. Tickets at 55 cents, may be obtained from Mrs. Geo. W. Apsey or members of the Room Committee.

HOW THEY DO IT

Keeping the Home Fires Burning with More than 68,000 Miles of Gas Mains

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Keeping the fire going in the stoves that cook the daily food of 49,000,000 Americans—having fuel ready on tap for the touch of a match, day or night, 365 days a year—is no small job. It is one of the accepted marvels of the present age. Yet to the average gas user the story of how his fuel supply is made possible, is as much a mystery as the secret of the sphinx.

Charles A. Munroe, vice president of the Peoples Gas Light & Coke Co., of Chicago, who as president of the American Gas Association represents all artificial companies of the country, in an interview recently answering the question "how do you do it," gives some extraordinary information as to how "the seeing impossible" is accomplished.

"Well you take $1,000,000,000 worth of plants—that's about $100 of investment to every man, woman, and child that enjoys the benefits of gas—10,000,000 tons of coal, 1,500,000 tons of coke, and about 960,000,000 gallons of oil. You have a couple of hundred thousand employees who stand by loyally day and night, winter and summer. Through the cooperative effort of the investors, the big supplies of fuel and other commodities, and the faithful employees, the householders and industry get enough gas to last them a year," he answered with a smile.

"Some times when I haven't anything else to think about, I marvel at it myself," he continued. "It is a gigantic accomplishment that has put concentrated, economical, and clean fuel in a pipe in our homes, ready to cook, heat or illuminate at the mere turn of a faucet. And to think that this year it is going into 8,580,000 meters, through gas mains 68,300 miles long—enough to encircle the world three times—furnishing fuel to 7,000,000 cooking appliances, to over 1,500,000 gas water heaters and to over a million home heaters."

W. C. T. U. NOTES

With more than a score of busy workers keeping diligently at the task, the Winchester Union last week accomplished a full day's amount, making not only a goodly number of comfort bags to be sent, after filling, to the sailors for whom the Soldiers and Sailors department of the W. C. T. U. "carries on" its activities, but also considerable other work was done, including the tying of comforters, the benefit to accrue to the local Union's work. At two o'clock, after the social hour accompanying the luncheon, the meeting was called to order by the president and some necessary business was transacted, even while the needles kept flying.

There was a good delegation from Winchester to hear Mrs. Mary Harris Armour of Georgia speak on the enforcement of the prohibition laws throughout the country. Like all speakers who have seen the results of prohibition in other sections she is very optimistic of the result and proved that in this respect, at least, Massachusetts is far from being a leader. She quoted statements made by social workers, in various places, showing what a benefit prohibition has been during the serious unemployment crisis. Whenever the law is well enforced the difference is more marked but even partial enforcement brings good results. The great masses of voters are in favor of prohibition, who hope for future advancement, is willing to come out in the open in defense of the report. Those who heard Mrs. Armour felt well repaid for going. Mrs. Hamilton and Mrs. Gleason, members of the State W. C. T. U. Executive, are in Worcester for five days this week. The other delegates will spend the three convention days there. Business of vital importance will be before the gathering which has to face some serious questions.

"THE CHEMISTRY OF WAR"

A sermon preached in the First Congregational Church on Sunday morning, October 30, 1921, by Rev. Howard J. Chidley.

I am indebted for the data of this sermon to the following books: "Creative Chemistry" and "The Next War."

The story of Robinson Crusoe is an allegory of human history. Man is a castaway on a desert island, isolated from other inhabited worlds—if there be any—by millions and millions of miles of impenetrable space. He is absolutely dependent upon his own exertions, for this world of his, as H. G. Wells says, has no imports except meteorites and no exports of any kind. Man has no wrecked ship, like Crusoe, from a former civilization, to draw upon for tools and weapons, but must utilize, as best he may, such raw materials as he can find. In this utilization of raw materials, there are three stages. The savage takes what he finds, the barbarian improves on what he finds, the civilized man invents. Murder, for instance, has followed this line.

Cain, or whoever it was who first slew his brother man, used a stick or stone. Afterwards it was found that a better weapon could be made by tying the stone to the end of the stick, and as murder developed into a fine art, the stick was converted into the bow, and this into the catapult, and finally into the cannon, while the stone was developed into the high explosive shell.

Here we stumble on modern chemistry and its relation to war, for the last war was almost literally a war of chemists and mechanical inventors. In the eyes of the chemist, the great war was essentially a series of explosive reactions resulting in the liberation of nitrogen. Nothing like it has been seen in previous wars. The era of nitrogen in wars began when Friar Roger Bacon ground together in his mortar, saltpeter, charcoal and sulphur, making gunpowder. The Chinese had invented gunpowder long before, but the poor innocents did not know of anything worse to do with it than to make firecrackers. With the use of gunpowder, war ceased to be the business of a nobleman, for a bullet fired a mile away is no respecter of persons. It is just as likely to kill a knight as a peasant, and is not overawed by a plumed hat. The only thing to do is to hide and shoot back.

The next step in powder manufacture was the smokeless powder. This was made by combining the oxygen necessary for combustion so closely with the carbon and hydrogen that no particles got away unburnt as smoke. In smokeless powder no ashes are left and nothing to foul the gun-barrel. In all explosives from gunpowder down to nitrogen is the essential element. Nitrogen is hard to combine with other elements. It is a most unreliable and unsocial element. Like Kipling's cat, it walks by its wild lone. You all know people like that, good enough when by themselves, but sure to break up any church, club or society when they get with it.

The value of nitrogen in warfare is due to the fact that all the atoms desert in a body on the field of battle. Millions of them may be lying packed in a gun-carriage, as quiet as you please, but let a little disturbance start in the neighborhood and all the atoms of nitrogen get to trembling so violently they cannot be restrained, till finally they stampeed in what is known as an explosion.

But, as I said a moment ago, an effort was made to get rid of the potassium that fouled the guns after the explosion. So this explosive nitrogen was hitched unto other compounds giving explosive power. One of these nitrogen compounds is nitroglycerin—made of glycerin, nitric and sulphuric acids—easy to make, though don't try it unless your life is insured. But nitroglycerin is a liquid and hard to handle, so it is mixed with sawdust, porous earth or something that will soak it up. This, moulded into sticks, is ordinary dynamite.

Now another step is taken in the manufacture of explosives. If, instead of glycerin, we take cellulose in the form of wood-pulp or cotton, and treat this with nitric acid in the presence of sulphuric acid, we get gun-cotton. But gun-cotton is too bulky, so it is dissolved to make it a plastic mass that can be cut into rods, or granulated. And the final step is to dissolve the gun-cotton in the nitroglycerin, thereby getting a double explosive. This gave the British "lydite" and the French "meline" shells. It was Alfred Nobel, the Swedish chemist, who thought this combination out in 1878, and made millions out of it. Then apparently alarmed by the possible consequences of his invention, he bequeathed the fortune he had made by it to found international prizes for medical, chemical and physical discoveries, for idealists literature and the promotion of peace. But it was too late. His posthumous efforts for the advancement of civilization and the abolition of war amounted to little, while his high explosives were used to blow to pieces the doctors, authors and pacifists whom he wished to reward. What an irony of fate!

But there is still another combination of nitrogen for making high explosives. This is made from a coal-tar product by the name of toluol. When treated with nitric acid it becomes tri-nitro-toluol, or as the layman dubs it, T. N. T. T. N. T. can be readily liquefied and poured into shells. Quite contrary to common opinion, it does not explode easily. A rifle bullet can be fired through a case of it without setting it off, and if lighted with a match, it burns quietly. The girls working with cordite get to using it for chewing gum! But these

M. C. W. G. EVENTS

About thirty members of Winchester Branch have made arrangements to attend the annual banquet of the Massachusetts Catholic Woman's Guild which is to be held Saturday, Nov. 5, at 7 p. m., at the K. of C. Home, 199 Massachusetts Ave., Boston. Regent, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Blake, will assist on the reception committee; Vice-Regent, Mrs. Sarah J. Barrett and Monitor Mary J. Halwatz will act as ushers. State Regent, Mary F. Handschumacher will be chairman of the evening, and Mrs. Mary E. York, first vice-regent, will act as toast mistress. There will be community singing, with Mrs. Lillian McCarthy of the Waltham Branch as accompanist. Admission is by ticket only, and no more reservations will be made after Nov. 4th.

Over one hundred members and their friends attended the Halloween Whist Thursday evening, Oct. 27 at White's Hall. The decorations for the affair consisted of orange and black streamers, lanterns and autumn foliage. First prize a boudoir lamp donated by a K. of C. friend, was won by Mrs. Gertrude Nagle. Mrs. M. McNulty was the lucky winner of a chicken donated by Mrs. D. Readford, and Howard Ambrose won the jute bag presented by Mrs. William Coleman.

A very pleasing feature of the evening's entertainment was a group of songs by Mrs. Mary McGrath, with Miss Esther McCarthy as accompanist. Refreshments of ice-cream and cake were served.

At the last business meeting, Tuesday evening, Nov. 1st it was decided to give over the next social meeting, Nov. 10th, to the junior members who are now very busy on plans for a costume party and entertainment for that date. Each member may invite a guest, and all are requested to come in costume or disguise themselves in some manner. The grand march will be at 8:30 prompt; games and entertainment will follow. Amy Ledwidge, assisted by Miss Alice Foley will have charge of the committee.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE NEEDLE WORK GUILD

The Winchester Branch of this international organization is active and growing, as the attendance on Wednesday morning, at the Parish House of the church of the Epiphany proved. Not only did the presence of so many Directors and garment members show this, but even more the contributions of new garments and articles of household use which were spread upon the tables.

Five new Directors have been added to this Branch during the year. This means 55 garment members who are pledged to contribute two gifts each. Close to 500 warm and useful articles will be distributed this year—and certainly no less in 1922.

There is but one meeting a year—the first Wednesday in November—and very little money is spent for publicity. Faithful officers who have served for several years quietly do their work and the results are each year most gratifying.

Any one wishing to join in this non-sectarian welfare work, whose gifts are distributed in and about our own community, may do so by sending her name to Mrs. W. E. Wilde, Mrs. Anthony Kelley, Mrs. George Barta.

Most of the gifts are for children and they are given out at once before cold weather arrives.

MAN STRUCK IN FOG DIED

L. J. N. Jalbert of Worcester struck in the fog on Tuesday night at that city by an automobile owned by Mr. E. Arthur Tutein of this town, was fatally injured and died at the City hospital, to which he was taken immediately after the accident.

In the auto were Mr. and Mrs. Tutein and their daughter, Miss Phyllis Tutein. The car was driven by Joe Santon, the chauffeur who lives at 117 Nonantum street, Brighton. According to both Mr. Tutein and his chauffeur the man stepped out of the dark and fog directly in front of the machine. He received a fractured skull, fracture of both legs and of the ribs on the right side of the body.

Mr. Tutein and his family were on their way to New York and expected to stop on their way back at Princeton to witness the Princeton-Harvard game.

- Mr. Chidley will speak in the series of "Texts That Have Carved Empires," on the "Text That Transformed a Countryside." All seats free. The public is cordially invited.

WOMAN'S BENEVOLENT SOCIETY

The Woman's Benevolent Society of the First Baptist Church held its regular monthly meeting in the church on Thursday Nov. 3. A delicious luncheon was served by the committee in charge of Mrs. Frank McLean. After the business meeting Miss Fraser of the W. C. T. U. gave a very interesting talk on Christian Americanization. A special meeting will be held next Thursday, Nov. 10th from 10 to 4 with a basket luncheon.

THE SCHOOL BUILDING PROGRAM COMMITTEE

Location of School Buildings

The Junior High School Building should be located in proximity to the Senior High School. In fact the ideal arrangement would seem to be to have the Junior and Senior High Schools connected by a building which would house the Assembly Hall, the Gymnasium, and Work Shops all of which would be utilized by both schools. In Winchester this arrangement does not seem to be practicable as there is not sufficient area on the triangular lot upon which the Senior High School is located to erect a Junior High School, especially as an addition to the Senior High School will be required sometime in the future.

It is, however, possible to have the Junior High School Building erected near the Senior High School. It has been suggested that the Wadleigh School be utilized as a school of Manual Arts in connection with both Senior and Junior High Schools. The Wadleigh School Building is perhaps the best school building in Winchester at the present time, but it is not adapted for use as one of the Grade Schools on account of its location, and on account of its lack of playground space. It is, however, well adapted, both as to location and as to the building itself, for a Manual Arts School of both the High Schools. The erection of a Junior High School Building near both the Wadleigh School and the Senior High School would provide three buildings, the Wadleigh, Junior High and the Senior High, which would fully serve all the needs of both the Junior and the Senior High Schools. The use of the Wadleigh School in this manner would require a smaller number of rooms than would be required if the Wadleigh School were not so used and it would also further relieve the congestion in the Senior High School. It has been suggested that the new Junior High School Building might contain a War Memorial Room.

There are many reasons why it seems advantageous to have the Junior High School located near the Senior High School. The two chief reasons are:

1. One of the purposes of the Junior High School is to allow pupils to advance by subjects as rapidly as they are fitted to do so, and opportunity should be afforded for Junior High School pupils to take subjects in the Senior High School when they are prepared to do so, and unless these schools are near together this would be impossible.

2. There are several subjects such as the Manual arts which could be taught in both schools and one teacher in each of these subjects could teach classes from both schools, which would prevent duplication of rooms, equipment and teachers.

If this plan seems desirable there are sites which are near both the Wadleigh and the Senior High and which could be utilized for a Junior High School Building, and the consideration of these sites will be taken up at the hearings which will be held during the next few weeks.

As to the location of the Grade Schools the town of Winchester might be divided into five districts in each of which there should be located eventually a school which would house the kindergarten and grades one to six, and in all cases the school building should be located as near the center of the present and future development of the district as possible. The five districts which suggest themselves are as follows:

1. The Mystic-Gifford district with a six to eight room school building located on Main street about half way between the Gifford and the Mystic.
2. The Wyman district with an eight to ten room building, located further west than the present site of the Wyman School, so as to provide for the future growth of this district.
3. The Rumford district with a six to eight room school building located near the Rumford School.
4. The Washington district with a larger school on the same site when the conditions warrant.
5. The Chapin-Highland district with an eight to ten room school building located on Washington street near Swanton. It has been suggested this school might be called the "Hefflon School."

In determining the sites for these grade schools as well as for the Junior High School your Committee feels that there should be a reasonable amount of land for playground purposes in connection with each school building and that sufficient land should be purchased so as to provide for future additions to the schools when the growth of the district may require it. Your Committee also feels that the school buildings should be so located and should be of such a character as to preserve the natural beauty of Winchester, and with this end in view it has been in conference with the Planning Board which is specially interested in the future development of the town. Many of the present school building sites can be sold at prices which will offset, at least partially, the cost of the new sites.

This plan is a tentative one and the Committee desires to have this matter thoroughly discussed. It is planned to have hearings at each of the School Centers and at these hearings the Committee will have more detailed information as to the approximate cost of the buildings and sites.

VISITORS WEEK AT THE LAUNDRIES—A NATIONAL AFFAIR

National Laundry Week was observed throughout the United States week of October 24-29. This movement was launched by the National Laundrymen's Association whose headquarters are at Chicago. It met with gratifying success and doubtless will become a fixture from year to year.

The Winchester Laundries, Inc. of our town, with its Branch Plants at Waltham and Lowell, received a great many visitors during this laundry week. The main plant in Winchester entertained very nearly 1200 guests. Guides showed the visitors through the plant and before they left the guests were entertained in the large reception room where ice cream and cake was served and each lady was presented with a rose.

One of the most striking features was the uniform of the female employees in the mechanical department. This is a regulation costume, the gown being of white with cap to match. Those of the employees who had been with the company for ten years wore a gold stripe on the cap.

Visitors Week was in every way a pronounced success. We are given to understand by the management of The Winchester Laundries, Inc. that while Visitors Week was a national affair, all other days during business hours visitors are always welcome.

Fall Sale of Children's Smocked Dresses at Winchester Exchange on Nov. 7th, also on 8th and 9th if any dresses are left from first day's sale. Only two sales a year, so do not miss the chance to get unusual frocks in exquisite designs.

SUCCESSFUL HALLOWEEN PARTY

A very successful Halloween party was held last Friday evening at the Calumet Club, opening the season's festivities. The evening was informal, the usual attractions furnished by the club being indulged in. Many fine scores were made on the bowling alleys, while others enjoyed cards, billiards and pool. Dancing was a feature, the music being provided by an orchestra. During the evening refreshments in keeping with the season—doughnuts, cider and apples—were served. About 200 attended.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Last week's State Convention showed the Massachusetts W. C. T. U. in better condition, as regards material things, than it was the preceding year. Thanks to the efforts of some of the Unions the State Day last spring brought in considerable money to be used in current expenses which are now so heavy, and the campaign for new members brought in enough new recruits to offset last year's loss with some gain in addition. The Jubilee Fund amounts to more than two thirds of the quota for the State with a determination on the part of the workers to keep at it until the full amount, $37,000 is collected. The former officers were all re-elected by substantial majorities and there is now opportunity for some constructive work along the lines mapped out by the National at its convention last summer. Winchester was represented at the convention by Mrs. Hamilton, Miss Eugenia E. Elliott and Miss Maud McLellan as well as Mrs. Gleason. Mrs. Adams, one of the delegates, was unable to go because of the fire in her home a few days before.

Middlesex County was honored by receiving a ten dollar gold piece for having made the greatest gain in membership and Bedford received a five dollar gold piece for having doubled its membership during the year.

An interesting feature of the Convention was the closing luncheon at which representatives of various Worcester organizations were present. Miss Cora F. Stoddard of the Scientific Temperance Federation and Miss Golish, missionary from China, were also among the speakers. The temperance movement has gained great headway in China as well as in other foreign lands.

DISCHARGED IN DEATH OF BOY

Frank Carroll of Swanton street, driver of the automobile which killed Michael Colucci, the 12 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Raffael Colucci of Summer street, last Tuesday night, was found not guilty in connection with the charge of manslaughter brought against him and discharged in the Woburn court Friday. It was claimed that the boy ran directly in front of Carroll's machine from behind a wagon.

FALL BROKE NECK

Mrs. Catherine Sheehan, mother of the late Fr. John Sheehan, fell down a flight of steps at the rear of her home on Mt. Vernon street Saturday morning and suffered serious injury. She is 82 years of age and was taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital, where it was found that besides other serious injury she had a broken neck.

Many Winchester people visited the Winchester Laundry plant last week on the occasion of its observance of "Visitors' Week." This fine plant, one of the best in the State, not excepting Boston, accorded its visitors every courtesy in their inspection, and more than one housewife received a decided insight into the workings and detail of a modern laundry. When quality and service is considered, the Winchester Laundry stands alone.

Tuesday evening was 117 night, three rollers making that figure their high string. Incidentally, the leading team, No. 2, dropped three points, this being their first match to lose. They had previously only lost one point. Team 10 was the aggregation to turn the trick, while team 16 won a like number of points from team 21. Several of the strings were very close. Newman was high man with 321 for a total and 117 for a single. Other good scores were made as follows: Barr 310 with 119, Gendron 301 with 117, Higgins 301 with 103, Tredennick 117, Weed 112, Simonds and Miner 106 each, Corey and Carleton 104 each and Barron 103.

CLEVER CAPTURE BY LOCAL OFFICER

Sergt. Thomas F. McCauley of the local police force made an important capture Tuesday afternoon when he caught a man known as Arthur W. Locklin, charged with attempting to cash a forged check at the Tanners National Bank, Woburn. Although the man had changed his hat and overcoat from the description sent from Woburn, Sergt. McCauley spotted him.

It appeared upon questioning Locklin at the station that he was a much wanted man, being thought to be the same forger who has secured around $40,000 from banks in over 18 towns and cities of this State. He was held in $1000 upon his appearance in the Woburn court Wednesday morning.

Locklin went into the Tanners Bank and presented a check for $43, which he asked to have cashed. Not knowing the man, cashier Eames asked him if he carried an account with the bank, to which he replied that he did. When Eames went to look up his account, he left the bank. The Woburn police were notified and word was telephoned here, Chief McCauley of Woburn getting his brother, Sergt. McCauley, at our station. It was thought the man might have left Woburn on an electric car, and the Sergeant went out to intercept it.

The down electric stopped on the turnout north of the crossing, and while it waited a man left it, wearing a soft hat and a woolen overcoat. Although the description stated that he wore a cap and raincoat, Sergt. McCauley decided it was his man and stopped him at Hutchinson's Market. When questioned he evaded direct answers and was taken to the police station, where further questioning brought confession.

Representatives of detective agencies and police officials declare they have been scouring the country for two months for this man. He had secured money from banks in Waltham, Arlington, Newton, Somerville, Wakefield, Malden, Melrose, Lexington, Everett, Winthrop and many other places. His method was to present a check, usually for $43 and always numbered 8, with the request that it be cashed. So far as is known these checks were not certified, he posing as a friend of some depositor of the bank.

Investigation revealed that his wife at his home in Allston knew nothing of his methods of obtaining cash. For four years he had been employed by an adding machine company in Boston, leaving the firm recently to go into the moving picture business, so he said at his home, this explaining a recent trial of facial disguises. He is 27 years of age.

Sergt. McCauley is receiving many congratulations for his clever capture.

AN IMPORTANT RESOLUTION

This resolution will be passed by every leading woman's organization in the state:

"We, the women of Massachusetts, grievously concerned over the economic burdens under which all nations are staggering, brought about by the late war, and fearful for the future of our children, wish to express our deep satisfaction in the step you have taken to abolish war, by calling the great nations to confer upon the limitation of armaments, by an agreement among all nations, have adopted the following resolutions.

Resolved: That the women of Massachusetts, members of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs hereby declare themselves unreservedly in favor of the limitation of armaments by international agreement, and we pray that definite results may be accomplished.

Be it further resolved that we pledge our united support to our President in this effort, to secure the purposes for which the conference is called."

This resolution was passed at the Presidents' Conference held this week in Attleboro. When it has been passed upon by all the leading woman's organizations in Massachusetts, a copy signed by the presidents of these organizations, will be carried by special messenger to Washington, D. C. and there be delivered to the President of the United States.

MR. W. T. DOTTEN MAKES MERRY

A host of young people held a delightful Halloween Party at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Dotten, Reservoir street, Friday evening last. A big bonfire was the center of attraction. Long poles had been cut and slices of bacon, provided enough for all. Having received a drinking cup, a napkin and a plate filled with good things to eat, the company gathered about the big fire where each fried his bacon to a crisp and ate as much as he would. An interesting contest between the good and bad witches of the hills, represented by red and white lights was carefully planned and cleverly executed. The sudden appearance of a huge ghost startled the crowd but as soon as the mask and sheet parted and the face of a friend was revealed there was a sigh of relief. After many games and three times three cheers for Mr. Dotten whose hospitality made scores of young folks happy, the Epworth League left "Witch Hill," where the good spirit remains, Carolyn Breen and Elmer Knight, Claude Elden constituted the Halloween Committee.

Mrs. Gustave Felber of Bacon street entertained the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Baptist Church on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Richard S. Taylor was the leader of the meeting, her subject being "Personal Experiences of a Gospel Singer."

BARRETT NEW SECRETARY

At the regular meeting of the Winchester Board of Trade, held Tuesday night in Lyceum Hall, Mr. Loring P. Gleason tendered his resignation as secretary of the organization and Mr. Thomas H. Barrett was elected to fill the vacancy. There was a large attendance of members.

President George T. Davidson presided, and in outlining the plans for the winter stated that it was the intention of the directors to eliminate outside speakers and to turn to the hands of local town departments for monthly talks. This would bring the organization in closer touch with town affairs and afford the members opportunity to gain an insight into the actual working conditions of the various branches of the Town's management. He was supported in his contention that one member of the Board of Selectmen at least should be a Winchester business man with interests wholly within our borders.

The meeting voted to grant advertising courtesies to the Wadleigh Life, the publication issued by the scholars of the Wadleigh School, and to change the regular meeting night to the first Tuesday of each month.

An interesting discussion occupied much of the evening, the matter of our river pollution, with ways and means for remedying the condition, being considered, together with the method now followed by the Selectmen in the matter of street acceptances. In the latter consideration it was the general consensus of opinion that the Town should not class old and established streets under the same rules with new construction, and that the town has already too many private ways.

BOAT CLUB MEETS TONIGHT

The meeting of the Winchester Boat Club, called for Oct. 13th, lacking a quorum, was postponed to this Friday evening, Nov. 4, at 8 o'clock, at the offices of the Edward T. Harrington Co., corner of Church and Common streets.

In view of the important matter to come before the meeting the necessity of this second call has been somewhat discouraging to the officers, who request a full attendance at this time.

Several changes in the By-Laws are to be acted upon, including the addition of a "contributing" membership of 100, increasing the total limit of membership to 330 members. Contributing members are parent, active members of the Club, with dues of $5 a year.

In addition there are numerous other changes to be acted upon, and also the matter of purchasing additional land for the tennis court abutting club property.

BILLIARD AND POOL TOURNAMENTS START

Announcement is made this week of the opening of three tournaments in billiards and pool at the Calumet Club, all on a handicap basis. Entries are now open for all tournaments to club members. The committee in charge has listed a handicap doubles cowboy tournament, a three cushion billiard tournament and a straight handicap billiard tournament.

There has been much interest among the members this season on the tables and active tournaments are anticipated in all branches.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

It isn't half as hard to seem honest as it is to be so.

To be patient is not always easy. To be cheerful is much harder still. But at least we can always be pleasant. If we make up our minds that we will, and it pays every time to be kindly, although we feel worried and blue; if you smile at the world and look cheerful, the world will soon smile back at you. So try to brace up and look pleasant, no matter how low you are down: Good humor is always contagious. But you banish your friends when you frown.

Queen Josephine's earrings sold for $100,000 by a Russian Count in financial embarrassment! Let us hope he can now manage to live along.

Of course you have not hurried to send in your application for a 1922 registration for your car in anticipation of drawing a low number!

You folks who are interested in the development of Winchester, in keeping it healthy and beautiful, should take your car some fine day and follow up our river, which constitutes one of our chief foundations for our attractive setting. Have you ever realized how much this water adds to our beauty; how much we may do with this attraction, and how important it is to us all to keep the water clean and inviting? Think this all over—and then take the car and travel upstream. You will cross the upper course of the river on Washington street at the Highlands, and if you find the conditions the same as they were on Monday of this week, you will wonder how anyone living near the stream, or bathing in Mystic Lake, can ever survive such an experience. For beginning at the Highlands you will find—not a river, but a plain, everyday sewer. The water is so thick with white slime and oil that it might be without any bottom whatsoever, so far as the eye can discern. The shores and water growth are encrusted in a white filth, as offensive to the eye as to the smell. It is just a plain, open sewer. If you are still interested in your town, and do not object to a tramp over the fields, take a walk along the bank to the plant of the American Agricultural Chemical Co. You can not miss it. Look over the condition there and marvel that the river is as clean (?) as it is. The committee appointed by the Town to investigate and remedy our river conditions has had photographs of the river taken. These will be used at the March town meeting. If you wish to vote intelligently on this important matter when it comes up, take this suggested trip. Once you do so, you will second every recommendation this committee makes.

AIGREMONT

The musical and tea, candy and doll sale held at Aigremont, October 25th, was a great success both socially and financially. The program consisted of violin selections by Miss Charlotte Armstrong of Winter Hill and songs by Mrs. George Abbott of Lexington with Mrs. Pauline Riesser, organist of the Winter Hill Congregational Church, at the piano. Miss Armstrong, who is a niece of Mrs. Oren C. Sanborn, has studied with Anton Witte and is now a pupil of Loeffler, and seldom do we hear a young violinist of greater purity of tone and splendid technique, and her Kreisler selections were especially well given. Mrs. Abbott has a voice of rare sweetness, and a charming personality, and her groups of unusual songs were much enjoyed. Mrs. Riesser, accompanied most artistically. The ladies who presided at the tea-table were Mrs. Frank Wilde, Mrs. John MacAlman, Mrs. William Palmer and Mrs. Cotten of North Carolina. The young ladies who assisted in the dining room were Miss Helen MacGregor, Miss Annette Mason, Miss Constance Dow, Miss Dorothy Riddle, Miss Eleanor Greco, Mrs. Fairfax Proctor, Mrs. R. Wheeler of Lexington. The ladies in charge of the following tables were: French rag doll and baby caps, Mrs. Arthur Tozzer, Brookline; Mrs. Carl Wood, Winchester; candy table, Miss M. Alice Mason, Miss Orval Wheatley, Lexington; Miss Louise Condict, Brookline. The proceeds of the sale are to go to the Franco-American baby clinic in Paris, in which Miss Helen E. Sanborn is so much interested.

ALL DAY SEWING MEETING

There will be an all-day sewing meeting of the Winchester Circle of the Florence Crittenton League on Thursday, Nov. 10th in the Congregational Church, at 10 o'clock. All the members are urgently invited and a large attendance is desired. Coffee will be served. Members will provide their own box luncheon.

HONOR MEMORY OF TERRENCE MACSWINEY

Thrilling Speeches Stir Audience at Memorial Held by A. A. R. I. R.

If America recognizes the republic of Ireland, within thirty days the other nations will have recognized it and the martyrdom of Ireland will be over, declared Professor Walter Edgerton Holloway of Chicago, speaking last Thursday night at a memorial meeting for Terrence MacSwiney, late Lord Mayor of Cork, held in Town Hall, Winchester.

He declared further that the purpose of Lloyd George is to make the American people believe that he is going to settle the Irish question in order that he may come here and succeed in getting a cancellation of the war debt, when his real intent is not to settle the Irish question.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the local branch, Canon Magner Council, A. A. R. I. R., in charge of the following committee: Francis J. O'Hara, chairman; Mrs. Wm. E. McDonald, Jr., Patrick Noonan, Mrs. George Poland and Daniel Murphy. Mr. O'Hara called the meeting to order and introduced Mr. Francis E. Muller, prominent attorney of Boston and resident of Winchester, as permanent chairman. Reverend Father Joseph Fitzgibbons, recently assigned as an assistant at St. Mary's, Winchester, delivered a most eloquent opening address.

There was a fine attendance with many men and women prominent in the Irish cause seated on the stage, including: Francis J. O'Hara, Rev. N. J. Merritt, James J. Fitzgerald, James V. Haley, Rev. Joseph Fitzgibbons, Mrs. Thomas W. Conlon, vice president of the local branch, A. A. R. I. R. and Past Grand Regent of Santa Maria Court, C. D. of A., which organization she represented, Henry W. Longfield, president of Canon Magner Council, Patrick Noonan, John J. O'Brien, formerly of Chelsea, Daniel Murphy, Mrs. Edward Roessle, representing the local court, M. C. O. F. and Patrick T. Walsh. Several selections were sung by Mrs. Helen Studley of North Woburn, accompanied by Miss Margaret Cassidy, pianist.

Professor Holloway, the speaker of the evening, said that France is willing to recognize the Irish republic, but is not in a position to, and the same applies to Germany, Spain and Italy. He said further that Spain had promised the Irish republican leaders that she will recognize the Irish republic, if the other nations will join with her.

"There isn't a single government in Europe at the present time," said he, "that can take the initiative in this matter without danger from the British empire."

"There is one nation that doesn't need to be afraid of the British empire," he continued, "and that is the United States of America. If America recognizes the republic of Ireland, within 30 days the other nations will have recognized it and the long martyrdom of Ireland will be over. The United States can recognize the republic of Ireland and never be in danger of any warfare.

Professor Holloway is a well-known authority on International Law, and has taught his subject in many universities, as well as being known as an author of many books dealing with this subject. Dr. Holloway is also a minister of the Protestant gospel, and is descended from a long line of English Quaker ancestors, one of whom was killed at the battle of Bunker Hill.

At the close of Dr. Holloway's address the audience rose en masse and cheered for many minutes. Rev. Father Merritt then drew Professor Holloway to the footlights and in a most sincere and emotional manner thanked him in the name of the Winchester people present and begged God's blessing on this wonderful disciple of truth and justice, synonymous with Ireland's cause.

Everyone present, without exception signified intentions of joining the local council A. A. R. I. R. and it is to be hoped that everyone will be present at the next meeting on Friday evening, November 11th, Armistice night, in White's Hall, when a most interesting program will be rendered.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

From "Federation Topics" our club paper:

"November 11th is Armistice Day. Let us display Old Glory at half mast and bring forth our service flags, in honor of the boys who sought death rather than life, and that our hearts may be thrilled by the sight of hundreds of flags, the precious heritage of our great Democracy. Our President has requested in his proclamation that at 12 o'clock noon, every one offer a prayer of two minutes."

"I call upon every club woman in Massachusetts to answer this appeal."

Signed, Marian C. Baker,
Pres. of State Federation.

The next club meeting is on Nov. 14th, an interval of three weeks instead of two.

Meredith Nicholson in the September Scribner says, that if he were teaching English, he "would endeavor to make it appear that clean and accurate speech is a part of good manners, and an important item in the equipment of life." The State Federation will observe the week from Nov. 6th to Nov. 13th as a "Better Speech" week; let us try to do our part.

There is a demand for a Fortnightly cook book. Please write out your favorite recipe and bring it to the next club meeting, a place will be found for it there.

The home economics committee will hold a class in cooking and one in millinery if the members of the club so desire.

The demonstration class in cooking under Mrs. Bixby, chairman of the home economics department of the State Federation, must have at least 30 members. The millinery class with Miss Bunker, must have ten members. To do good work. Any one wishing to join either of these classes please notify Mrs. Simon as soon as possible, Telephone 40.

Among the names of the honorary members of our club, is that of Mrs. Judith Smith of Jamaica Plain. Mrs. Smith has reached her one hundred birthday, and to celebrate this event the New England Woman's Club of which she is a member, gave a reception in her honor on Monday of this week. Mrs. Nichols was one of the guests, and carried her a personal note of congratulation and an old fashioned formal bouquet from the Fortnightly.

Do not forget the literature class to be held in the committee room on Monday, Nov. 7 at 3 p. m., led by Miss Richmond and Miss Weeks of the High School staff.

Subject: "Pinero and His Plays." The first card party will be given in Lyceum Hall on Wednesday, Nov. 9th, at 2:30 p. m. Come and bring your friends.

Thieves entered the apartment of Mr. Francis A. Wyman at 7 Lewis road Wednesday afternoon between the hours of one and five and stole a small quantity of jewelry. Entrance was gained by forcing the door with a chisel during the absence of the family.

Arlington High School enthusiasts made themselves so objectionable after the Woburn game Saturday evening on an electric bound from Winchester to that town, that they one and all took a ride in the patrol wagon upon arriving at their destination, the motorman telephoning the police and keeping his car doors shut until the wagon was backed up to his steps. Pulling the trolley off and making unseemly noise is a popular diversion which will probably lag considerably in Arlington from now on.

Winchester escaped the Halloween "pranks" as they are termed much easier than other places. Eleven alarms of fire were rung in Medford, six in Woburn, seven or eight in Arlington and a like number in other places. We had but one here. Many blinds were removed from houses and numerous signs destroyed, especially those of physicians which were placed on lawns or houses. Otherwise no trouble was experienced and the "children" had a good time.

high explosive shells have revolutionized warfare. As soon as the first German shell packed with these new nitrates burst inside the Gruson cupola at Liege, and tore out its steel and concrete by the roots, the world knew that the day of stationary fortresses was gone. The garrison could be left bottled up until the time came to blow them and their fortresses to atoms. The armies deserted their expensive above-ground fortifications and took to the trenches. The British troops in France found their weapons futile and sent across the Channel the cry "Send us high explosives or we perish." The allies made no progress against Germany until they had means to blast them out of their trenches by shells loaded with 500 pounds of T. N. T.

But, as I said before, these high explosives depend upon nitrates. And nitrates are rarely found in large quantities. Napoleon and Lee had a hard time to scrape up enough saltpeter from the compost heaps, cellars and caves for their gunpowder and they did not use as much nitrogen in a whole campaign as was freed in a few days cannonading on the Somme. Now there is one place in the world, and so far as we know, only one—where nitrates are to be found abundantly. This is a desert on the western slope of the Andes. Here is a bed 2 miles wide, 200 miles long and 5 feet deep, yielding 20 to 50% of nitrate of soda. The deposit originally belonged to Peru, but Chile fought for it and got it in 1881. Here all the customers came to get their nitrates for fertilizers and powder. Germany took 750,000 tons of Chilean nitrate in 1913. By this means her old worn-out land was made more productive than our fresh soil. Germany and England were duellists buying powder at the same shop, while Chile pocketed export duty of a half billion dollars. When war broke out this supply was shut off, for Germany and England blockaded each other. England sent ships to keep the nitrate route open, but it was closed seven weeks till England smashed the German fleet off the Falkland islands. Germany was bottled up. She could not get the Chilean nitrates, while she was exploding 200,000 tons of nitric acid a year in war. What was she to do?

She turned to the air. Nitrogen is free in the air. That is the trouble: it is too free. It is nitrogen in combination with some other elements so that it can be released when needed, that makes it useful.

Fixed nitrogen, as in Chile, cost $250 per ton in war time. Free nitrogen costs nothing and is good for nothing. The air we breathe is four-fifths free nitrogen, and if we could absorb it into our lungs as we do the oxygen of the other one-fifth, a few minutes breathing would give us a full meal. But we let this free nitrogen all out through our nostrils, and then go and pay 60 cents a pound for steak and $1 a dozen for eggs to get enough combined nitrogen to live on! The bacteria that form the little warts at the roots of peas and beans have a power we lack, for they can take free nitrogen to fix it.

Now the Germans did this very thing during the war. They took free nitrogen out of the air, and by a process too long to describe, fixed it. One German electrical firm, with aid from the city of Berlin, contracted to provide 65,000,000 pounds of fixed nitrogen a year at a cost of three cents a pound for the next twenty-five years! In 1917 a professor at Boston University discovered another method for extracting nitrogen from the air. It was by means of a salt of what is familiarly known as Prussian acid, which is so violent a poison that, as a freshman said, "A single drop of it placed on the tongue of a dog will kill a man." I noticed in Saturday's Boston Herald that a Frenchman has now discovered a cheaper process even than the German for obtaining nitrogen from the air, so that France is free at last from the throttle-hold that Germany had on her food supply.

You see, then, something of what was meant by the phrase in war days—the rush for raw materials. And in this rush, fixed nitrogen was king. It is like Brahmin, who appears in two aspects, Vishnu the Preserver, and Siva the Destroyer.

The Chemistry of War presents a still more interesting side when we consider the food problem. The Great War not only starved the people—it starved the land. Enough nitrogen was thrown away in some indecisive battle on the Aisne to save India from famine. The soil of Europe has been partially robbed of its power to support the population. A ton of wheat takes out of the soil about 47 pounds of nitrogen, 18 pounds of phosphoric acid, 12 pounds of potash, besides many minor substances. It can easily be seen that the soil must be replenished, or the farmer will soon be bankrupt. The soil must be fed. To show what I mean take our wheat yield for instance as compared with Europe:

Bushels per acre
1880-90	1913
Germany	35
Belgium	30
United States	12

It is the same with potatoes. Germany had 223 bushels per acre against United States' 112 bushels. The reason is simple—the United States uses an average of 28 pounds of fertilizer per acre while Europe has 200 pounds. When the world cleft in twain in 1914, the allied Powers had the nitrates, and the Central Powers the potash. If Germany had not had up her sleeve some new process for making nitrates she could not have stayed in the war very long, and probably would not have declared war at all. But the allies had no substitute for German potash and have not yet discovered one. Potash in the United States rose from $40 to $400, and the cost of food went up with it. Where does Germany get her potash? It comes from Stassfurt. Germany, Aeons ago Northwestern Prussia was flooded annually by sea-water. As this slowly evaporated, the salts crystallized. Each year gave a deposit of three to five inches, counting those annual layers, like rings on a stump, we find the Stassfurt beds 10,000 years in the making. The beds were first worked for common salt, then the lower layer which consists of epsom salts which was thrown away, was purified for potash. In the year before the war the United States imported $20,000,000 worth of Stassfurt salts as fertilizer. In the days of our grandfathers each house had its own potash plant and soap factory. The housewife took maple-wood ashes which were put in the hollow log set on end in the backyard. She used water to bleach out the lye, which she tested with an egg. In meantime she saved greases accumulated from frying pan and pork rinds, etc. Finally she boiled the lye and grease together and "soft soap" or hard, as the case might be, was produced. But the housewife threw away in the waste water of hard soap the most valuable ingredients—potash and glycerin. We need 300,000 tons of potash a year in the United States. Our utmost production is 52,135 tons. This shortage led Prof. Ostwald, the Leipzig chemist to say of us during the war:

"America went into the war like a man with a rope around his neck which is in his enemy's hands and is pretty tightly drawn. With its tremendous deposits, Germany has a world monopoly in potash, a point of immense value which cannot be reckoned too highly when once this war is going to be settled. It is in Germany's power to dictate which of the nations shall have plenty of food and which shall starve."

But man proposes and God disposes. Germany could not eat her potash. She was the nearest to starvation of all the warring powers when the war ended. Where Germany made her mistake about us was in the fact that the bulk of our food crops are raised on comparatively new soil without any fertilizers whatever. But this cannot go on forever. For the last 300 years the American people have been living on the unearned increment of the unoccupied land. But now that all of our land is practically staked out in homesteads and we cannot turn to the new soil when we have used up the old, we must learn, as the older races have learned, to keep up our supply of plant food, and the question of an independent supply of cheap potash is still unsolved. I picked up an article in the New York Herald the other morning which said that a certain Maj. Popp and a Mr. Cox had discovered potash in Kentucky, and were trying to sell stock in their new concern, but the United States Government reports no such find, and the potash problem still remains unsolved.

If some chemist will cut the rope of which Ostwald spoke, by showing us a cheap supply of potash, we should erect him a monument higher than Washington's.

We come now to another plant food—phosphates, and here we are better placed as a nation. Whereas we imported formerly about 17 million dollars worth of potash annually from Germany, and 20 million dollars worth of nitrates from Chile, we exported annually 7 million dollars worth of phosphates. Whoever it was who first noticed that the grass grew greener and thicker around a buried bone, he lived so long ago that we cannot do honor to his powers of observation, but ever since, old bones have been used as a fertilizer. But we have long ago used up all the buffalo bones we could find on the prairies, and our packing houses could not give us enough bone meal to go round, so we have had to draw on the old bone-yards of prehistoric animals. Deposits of lime phosphates of this origin were found in Florida and South Carolina. Since then the industry has grown until in 1913 the United States produced over three million tons of phosphates, nearly half of which was sent abroad. The chief source at present is Florida pebbles, dredged up from the bottoms of lakes and rivers, or washed out from the banks of streams by hydraulic jets. The gravel is then washed free from sand and clay, is screened and dried and then ready for shipment. These deposits may run out in 25 or 30 years, but back of them we have Tennessee, Kentucky, Idaho, Wyoming and other western states. But even here we were dependent largely on Spain, needless to say, for sulphuric acid with which to treat the phosphates and make them available for plant food.

In all this investigation I have said nothing about the chemistry of war in relation to poison gas. The scientific investigation of the killing possibilities in gas is only six years old. Yet think what we may expect from it in the next war.

Here are the words of a few authorities: Brigadier General Mitchell of the United States army, pleading with the House Committee on appropriations for more defensive aeroplanes, said that "a few planes could visit New York as the central point of a territory 100 miles square every eight days and drop enough gas to keep the entire area inundated. 200 tons of phosgene gas could be laid every eight days and would be enough to kill every inhabitant."

Capt. Bradner, Chief of Research of the Chemical Warfare Service, said at a Congressional hearing: "One plane carrying two tons of the liquid (a certain gas-generating compound) could cover an area of 100 feet wide and 7 miles long, and could deposit enough material to kill every man in that area by action on his skin. It would be entirely possible for this country to manufacture several thousand tons a day, provided the necessary plants had been built. If Germany had had 4,000 tons of this material and 300 or 400 planes equipped in this way for its distribution, the entire first American Army would have been annihilated in 10 or 12 hours."

Brevet Col. J. F. C. Fuller this year won in England the Gold Medal of the Royal United Service Institution for his essay on the warfare of the future. All through, he avoids this topic of attacks on the civilian population; he is treating, like a true old-time military man, of armies alone. But he says concerning the general possibilities of gas, which he believes to be the weapon of the future: "It is quite conceivable that many gases may be discovered which will penetrate all known gas armor. As there is no reason why one man should not be able to release 100 cylinders simultaneously, there is no reason why he should not release several million; in fact, these might be released in England today electrically by a one-armed cripple, sitting in Petrograd directly his indicator denoted a favorable wind."

And Maj.-Gen. E. D. Swinton, of the British army, said in discussing Col. Fuller's paper:

"It has been rather our tendency up to the present to look upon warfare from the retail point of view—of killing men by fifties or hundreds or thousands. But when you speak of gas... you must remember that you are discussing a weapon which must be considered from the wholesale point of view and if you use it—and I do not know of any reason why you should not—you may kill hundreds of thousands of men, or at any rate, disable them."

Here, perhaps, is the place to say that Lewisite, and the gas beyond Lewisite, are probably no longer the exclusive secret of the U. S. Government. We had allies in this war; doubtless they learned the formula. Even if not, once science knows that a formula exists, its rediscovery is only a matter of patient research, not of genius. And gas investigation is quietly going on abroad. If they have not arrived at the same substances, the chemists of Europe have worked out others just as deadly. The scientific investigation of the killing possibilities in gas is only six years old.

Let us take testimony again from the public and official remarks of Gen. Swinton: "I imagine from the progress that has been made in the past that in the future we will not have recourse to gas alone, but will employ every force of nature that we can; and there is a tendency at present for progress in the development of the different forms of rays that can be turned to lethal purposes. We have X-rays, we have light rays, we have heat rays... we may not be so very far from the development of some kinds of lethal ray which will shrivel up or paralyze or poison human beings.... The final form of human strife, as I regard it, is germ warfare. I think it will come to that; and so far as I can see, there is no reason why it should not, if you mean to fight.... prepare now... we must envisage these new forms of warfare, and as far as possible expend energy, time and money in encouraging our inventors and scientists to study the waging of war on a wholesale scale instead of thinking so much about methods which will kill a few individuals only at a time."

In the war just finished—according to neutral and scientifically dispassionate Danish historians—nearly ten million soldiers died in battle or of wounds; probably two or three million soldiers were permanently disabled. Yet we were killing only by retail, where in "the next war" we shall kill by wholesale.

I have suggested the elimination of all life in such a city as Paris—or New York as a possible result. That could be accomplished by such a gas as Lewisite. Now Lewisite whirled in a lethal cloud over Paris would not greatly injure property. When at length the poison was dissipated, the Opera would still be there, and the Louvre and the great railway terminals and the factories—a little corroded perhaps, but still useful after you cleaned out the corpses and tidied up a bit. So perhaps a better way of breaking up the "resistance of the rear" would be to exterminate not the human Paris but the physical Paris. That could be done in one gigantic conflagration started by incendiary chemicals dropped from a few aircraft. The method is practicable even now, in the infancy of chemical warfare; and the military chemists of Europe are experimenting further along these lines. Such a campaign would of course not be confined to Paris; although Paris as a center for the brains of the war, as the most vital knot in the railway web and as a great factory city, is eminently important. It would be aimed also at Lyons and St. Etienne, great manufacturing cities, at Marseilles, Caenbourg, Havre and Bordeaux, the great ports, at a hundred little cities which do their part in making munitions.

In such a campaign of conflagrations, the loss of life would necessarily be less than in a killing attack with gas. But possibly not much. Imagine Paris suddenly become a superheated furnace in a hundred spots, imagine a swift rush of flame through every quarter; imagine the population struggling, piling up, shriveling with the heat; imagine the survivors ranging the open fields in the condition of starving animals.

Such a campaign could in a few weeks nearly equal the property-losses of the Great War; especially if the defenders, whom I have imagined to be the French, retailed on the attackers—say the Germans—and burned Berlin and the Rhine towns. So far as we can see now, gas will probably be the standard weapon of the next war. High explosive will still be used on an extensive scale; but it will be auxiliary to the new killing instrument. It is unlikely that there will be a locked trenchline and a steady bombardment lasting for years. Consequently—ignoring the possibility of great conflagrations—we may hope for a smaller loss in the item of buildings. On the other hand, the bill will probably show a larger item for destroyed fields—agricultural wealth. The struggle just finished was the first in history where any considerable area of land was ruined for cultivation. Now it is a property of the new poison gas that it sterilizes—not only kills cells, but prevents the growth of cells. Concerning one successor of Lewisite gas an expert has said: "You burst a container carrying a minute quantity of the substance which makes the gas, at the foot of a tree. You do not see the fumes rise. It is invisible. But within a few seconds you see the leaves begin to shrivel. While we are not quite certain, we estimate that land on which this gas has fallen will grow nothing for about seven years." In the next war—unless we discover meantime some still more effective method of killing—clouds of such gas will sweep over hundred of square miles, not only eliminating all unprotected life, animal and vegetable, but sterilizing the soil "for about seven years." What were farms, orchards and gardens will become in a breath deserts. The power of its soil to produce food is the first, vital item in the wealth of nations. It would seem that this increased loss of productive land should at least balance the decreased loss in buildings.

So modern warfare, in its economic aspect, follows the same rule as in its human aspect. Now that we have renounced all pretty rules of chivalry, now that we have put brains into the business, its destructiveness ever increases. There, perhaps, lies the best chance of eliminating it from the world. The desire to create and conserve wealth is deeply implanted in the bosom of man. Why not? The two primary forces by which a species lives are the desire for food, and the desire to reproduce. This desire springs from the primary desire for food. Someone has pointed out that the temperance reformers of the United States made little progress so long as they harped on the sin of drunkenness. Only when they touched the question on its economic side, showed that alcohol was a great enemy to wealth and production, did the prohibition movement go with a rush. In some fifty years of agitation, pacifists have dwelt on the cruelties and horrors of war—always the moral and sentimental side. Now we are learning that it does not pay. The victor may, relatively, lose less than the vanquished. But victor and vanquished both lose in the absolute. That may be the clinching argument.

As a matter of fact statistics have shown that out of every dollar paid in Federal taxes, ninety three cents goes for the payment of war, past, present and future. We pity the Bulgarians and the Mexicans, but it is an open question whether they in their ignorance of the latest killing devices are not better off than "more civilized nations."

There arises then out of this discussion, three facts: The interdependence of the nations of the world upon each other for the fundamental necessities of life; the terrific killing power of the new weapons which will probably be used in the next war and the economic disaster which shadows the world as the result of international strife. Surely we can find some other way out. I leave you to draw your own conclusions.

Battery Old?

Some men are young at eighty—others are old at forty. It's about the same way with batteries.

Their usefulness depends on the care they have had, the amount of work they have had to do, how they have been used, and most important of all—on the original quality of the battery.

There are many good reasons back of the decisions of the manufacturers of 173 cars and trucks to use Willard Threaded Rubber Batteries.

WINCHESTER GRANGE

The next regular meeting of the Grange will be held on next Tuesday evening, Nov. 8, at Lyceum Hall. As it is the occasion of election of officers for the year 1922, we hope for a large attendance to show a marked interest in the affairs of the lodge for the coming year. The grange in Winchester is now on solid ground and by election of officers Tuesday evening, who will further its interests, it is necessary to have the opinions and good will of each and every member.

There will be a regular grange supper served at 6:30 o'clock by an efficient corps of workers. Present indications are that there is much fun in store to be served with the supper. Our worthy lecturer, Sister Jennie Roberts, tenders this supper as a tribute complimentary to the officers for 1921 and a small fee of 35 cents will be charged lay members. Worthy Master Frank T. Marston will be toastmaster and as is his custom will hand out sallies to sharpen the wits of those responding.

GHOSTS REMEMBERED BIRTH-DAY

Besides commemorating other things, this Halloween season was the birthday anniversary of Mrs. H. C. Blood of Wedge Pond road. Nevertheless it was with great surprise that she answered the bell and admitted ten truly, live ghosts on that evening. The occasion was a surprise party by a number of her neighbors, and a very pleasant surprise it was, the unexpected guests being called upon to guess the individuality of each of her visitors before they assumed their natural garb. Refreshments and a social evening furnished thorough enjoyment, and Mrs. Blood was presented by her visitors with a beautiful house plant.

Feeble Blood Works Havoc

Gude's Pepto-Mangan Makes Red Blood; Liquid and Tablet Form

When blood becomes thin and weak it is due to a falling off in the number of red blood cells. It is easily recognized by pallid skin or a bleached complexion, loss of appetite or unnatural irritability and a sensation of weakness. It is not dangerous at first. In fact, many people scarcely notice it and go on for days, thinking they will be better the next day.

The great danger is in the possibility of becoming seriously ill from disease, which can work havoc in a body that lacks the endurance and resistance in rich, red blood.

Taken in time and steadily, a few bottles of Gude's Pepto-Mangan are a great help. It improves the quality of the blood by adding red blood cells. They check the weakness, improve the appetite, and clear the complexion.

You can get Gude's Pepto-Mangan in liquid and tablet form at your druggists. Get the genuine with the name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" on the package.—Advertisement.

FIELD HOCKEY SUMMARY

Winchester High Girls Made Good Showing This Season

Despite the handicap of entering the contest for honors in the Greater Boston High School Girls' Field Hockey League with practically an entirely new team, the Winchester High team has made a fairly good showing against veteran opponents in the league thus far this season.

Of the six games played the team has won two from the Woburn High girls' team, has lost one game to Lexington by a close score and was decisively beaten in the other three games, one with Arlington and two with Wintrop High. The Wintrop High team, the league leader, played its second game with Winchester at Wintrop Friday and won, 5 to 0.

The Winchester team has been coached by Miss Polly Weeden, a Sargent School graduate, and physical director and coach last year at the Lexington High School. The only veteran players on the team at the beginning of the season were Miss Ronald W. Locke, captain and left fullback, and Miss Evelyn Brown, the right inside. Both have displayed good judgment in training the green team with the supervision of Miss Weeden. Notable among the good new players developed this season are Miss Margaret Smart, goal tender; Miss Lucille Skillings, right wing; Miss Marion Smith, right fullback; and Miss Mary Cullen, left wing.

Misses Locke, Smith and Smart have made their opponents work to score against the team since the second game this season. On the offensive Miss Cullen has demonstrated her prowess by making long runs down the field with the ball and has scored practically all the goals registered by Winchester High. Miss Skillings has shown good judgment on offensive playing and on the defense has served the team well on many occasions. The defensive work of the team is a feature of its playing and can be matched by a strong offensive after the new players acquire more confidence from experience and coaching.

The scores of the games played were as follows: Arlington 4, Winchester 0; Wintrop 11, Winchester 0; Winchester 1, Woburn 0; Lexington 3, Winchester 1; Winchester 2, Woburn 1; Wintrop 5, Winchester 0. The home games are played on Manchester Field, where the team has not in a lot of hard practice during the past fortnight.

THE RAILWAY WAGE PROBLEM

On Thursday evening, November 11th, Prof. William J. Cunningham of Harvard will address the Men's Club of the First Congregational Church on "The Railway Wage Problem." Prof. Cunningham is a practical railroad man of many years' experience and is thoroughly versed in all the intricacies of railroad wages. In 1916, Prof. Cunningham was selected with the approval of the late James J. Hill for the professorship of transportation at Harvard University which Mr. Hill had endowed and which bears his name.

The subject is one on which all members should be thoroughly informed. It is generally conceded that the settlement of the recent threatened strike was merely a postponement of an issue which is bound to arise again in the near future.

Following the address of Prof. Cunningham there will be a social hour to give all members of the Club an opportunity to become acquainted. During this period smoking and refreshments will be the program.

Pres. Arthur S. Harris has selected the following men as Directors of the Men's Club: Harry G. Bigelow, Marshall J. England, Robert E. Fay, Treasurer, Albert K. Hucksins, C. Freeman Olsen, Kenneth P. Pond, George S. Tompkins.

In order to do full justice to the men who will address the Men's Club this year, the President and Directors have voted to limit smoking to the refreshment period immediately following the lecture.

ARMISTICE DAY OBSERVANCE IN THE SCHOOLS.

Schools will be closed on Armistice Day and the day will be appropriately observed by exercises today.

A circular sent out by the State Department of Education suggests a three-fold observance of Armistice Day. The Conference on Limitation of Armaments and the burial of the unknown soldiers. Interesting and instructive programs have been prepared for all the grades and the high school.

RECEPTION NOV. 16th

Invitations are being issued by the directors and members of the Home for Aged People for a reception to be held at the home on Wednesday, Nov. 16th, from 2:30 until 5:30 o'clock.

HOLIDAY TRAINS ARMISTICE DAY

Holiday schedules will be run on the steam railroad Armistice Day.

The Boston Metropolitan Chapter of the American Red Cross has announced that it will ask the people of Boston and surrounding cities to contribute for the support of its work, $200,000 to be raised during the annual roll call which begins on Armistice Day and lasts until Thanksgiving.

Organization for the roll call in Winchester was completed at a meeting of the Winchester Branch held Tuesday at the Health Center. Miss Natalie Jewett, President of the Winchester Branch presided. Mr. Charles Harris said that under the terms of its charter there were three things which the Red Cross must do.

1. To furnish volunteer aid to the sick and wounded of armies in time of war.

2. To act in matters of voluntary relief and in accord with the military and naval authorities as a medium of communication between the people of the United States of America and their Army and Navy.

3. To continue and carry on a system of national and international relief in time of peace and to apply the same in mitigating the suffering caused by pestilence, disease, famine, fire, floods, and other great national calamities and to devise and carry on measures for preventing the same. This last clause covers a measure of precautionary and preventive activity that is practically limitless.

Miss Rising of the Home Service Department told of her work for the debilitated ex-service men and their families—the men who having been discharged from the Army or the Navy, have found themselves unable to undertake the type of labor for which they were fitted and to which they were accustomed before the war; or who have, under the strain of resumed labor, broken down as the result of unsuspected weakness or suddenly developed debility.

There are now in the Federal Public Health and contract hospitals scattered through the United States, 26,300 of these men. The number is increasing constantly and the Surgeon-General of the Army has admonished us that it probably will not reach its peak before 1925.

The reason is not hard to find. Under the elation and the enthusiasm of their home-coming, thousands of men considered themselves capable, and seemed entirely fit to undertake the ordinary duties of life; but with the first approach of strenuous labor found themselves breaking down as a result of the exposure, nervous strain and physical exhaustion incident to their service in the war.

There has been a steady growth in the number of cases, resultant from shell shock and nervous strain, that have made men incapable of intelligent work, and in imminent danger of permanent mental derangement.

The effects of gassing have been slow but none-the-less malignant in their development. A large proportion of the debilitated service men have developed tuberculosis.

Miss Hall spoke about the new dental clinic which the branch has recently started and explained that a part of the Red Cross work was to educate the public to realize the need of prevention for the cure of diseases.

Mr. Pinkham told of the splendid work of the Junior Red Cross in the Wadleigh School under the direction of Miss O'Sullivan and in the Prince School under Miss Morgan.

The roll call in Winchester will be under the leadership of Mrs. Waldo Bond who will be assisted by Mrs. Sewall Newman, Mrs. Maurice Thompson and Mrs. John R. Faussey and numerous volunteer helpers.

Checks are made payable to the American Red Cross and supplies for captains may be obtained from Mrs. Faussey.

The Speakers' Bulletin, National Red Cross Headquarters, Washington, D. C.

Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston.

The American Red Cross is an organization of which our country is justly proud. It is dedicated to a noble purpose, the alleviation of suffering mankind, and the story of its achievements speaks for itself.

In order that this organization may continue faithful service and bring assistance to suffering humanity in the various crises which arise from time to time, it needs constant encouragement and support.

It has ever been the just and proud boast of America that she has never been wanting in generosity in any need, and I am confident that American citizens will not fail to respond as they have in the past to help the Red Cross to continue its ministrations to the unfortunate and suffering.

W. Card. O'Connell.

HILTON-DAVIDSON

Miss Ruth Elizabeth Davidson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Davidson of 19 Park avenue, and Mr. Carroll Stillman Hilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Hilton of 3 Stratford road, were quietly married on Saturday evening at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed at eight o'clock by Rev. Alliston B. Gifford, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Decorations of roses, carnations and chrysanthemums made an appropriate setting for the ceremony, which was witnessed by a group of intimate friends and relatives of the young people.

The double ring service was used. Miss Florence Murphy was maid of honor and Mr. John T. Salver was groomsmen, and Miss Virginia Danforth, little niece of the groom, acted as flower girl. The ushers were Mr. Alan Hovey and Mr. Robert Moffette. A stringed trio played the wedding march and later rendered a program of incidental music.

The bride wore a wedding dress of blue silk lace over blue georgette, and carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses. Her attendant was dressed in orchid taffeta and carried pink roses, with the flower girl in white organdy with a basket of rose petals.

A reception followed the ceremony, the parents of the couple assisting in receiving.

The bride is prominent among Winchester's young people. She is a graduate of the Winchester High School '19, and of the Katherine Gibbs School for Girls in Boston, and is an active member of the Sigma Beta Sorority. Mr. Hilton is a graduate of the Winchester High School '18, and is a member of the Gamma Eta Kappa.

Following a wedding trip by auto to Washington, D. C., and southern places of interest, Mr. and Mrs. Hilton will take up their residence in Winchester.

LAST NIGHT'S BOWLING

The second series since the shift in ratings was rolled at the Calumet Club last night, teams 11, 15 and 12 winning three points each from teams 8, 6 and 7. The most noticeable result of the new ratings appears to be the larger scores rolled by those men who have been lowered, several of whom have rolled their best figures since the change. Etheridge led in individual work, making a total of 325 with 131 for high single. Paul Goddu rolled 312 with 114, Davidson 308 with 116, Wilson 306 with 126, Blanchard 305 with 110, Fenno 107, Richardson and Pilkington 104 each, Dickson and Flanders 103 each, Stackpole 101 and Lane and Corey 100.

Do your Christmas mailing early! Packages may be marked "not to be opened until Christmas."

In normal times this office handles about 10,000 pieces of mail every day. For two or three weeks around Christmas time there will be more than double that amount, and it will be for your interest as well as ours to mail early.

Do not under any circumstances, mail a "flimsy" package. Wrap strongly and tie securely. Write address on the package, not on the tag, tags get pulled off leaving the package without identification marks; also, it is against the rules to address packages by tag.

If you are mailing small articles such as jewelry, strings of beads, etc., do them up in a good sized package—at least 3 inches by 5 inches—there is less liability of loss. This last applies also to small cards. Put them in a regular sized envelope.

A special delivery stamp on a parcel post package gives that package the same care and despatch as first class mail.

In directing letters be sure and place the stamp in the upper right hand corner, and address plainly, thus—

Mr. John Smith
1231 Main Street
Winchester, Mass.

any deviation from the proper and regular manner of directing causes delay. A delay of even two seconds on a thousand letters a day amounts to something—figure it out and see how much.

If you have a number of letters to mail, face them all in the same direction and put a band or string around them before you drop them in the box.

Mail for China and the far east should be mailed now.

Lets all do our part.

WINCHESTER HIGH TAKES THIRD PLACE

By defeating Watertown High 6 to 0 on Manchester Field Saturday afternoon the local boys went to third place in the Mystic Valley League. The game was witnessed by a big crowd, and the high wind, blowing across the field, kept the play largely down to line work. Winchester surprised many by her playing, being especially strong on the offensive, worrying the visitors from the start and reaching their 10-yard line in the first quarter. Tansey, playing fullback, made Winchester's touchdown, carrying the ball from the 20-yard line in the second quarter by a lone play on tackle.

NOTED ENGLISH PREACHER FOR WINCHESTER

The Fighting Parson of Denver—First Congregational Church, Sunday Morning

Dr. George S. Lackland, who is to preach next Sunday morning in the First Congregational Church is one of Great Britain's notable gifts to America. Though he was born in England his family moved to Canada when he was a child and he completed his education in Victoria University in Toronto. Entering the ministry he soon drifted out to Iowa where he served as pastor for eight years. Four years ago a call came to him to captain a forlorn ecclesiastical hope in Denver. The enterprise was the heaviest white elephant which that part of Methodism had to carry, but today Grace Community Church, its membership grown from 400 to 800, with a new $65,000 parish house to which 8000 young people per month resort, is one of Denver's marked institutions. So fair is the Grace Church pulpit in treatment of industrial questions that a year ago no less than 18 labor men including the president of the State Federation of Labor, the president, vice president and treasurer of the Central Labor Board of Denver and the editor of the Non Partisan Leader united with the church.

Dr. Lackland is a great speaker. Last June at the Denver convention of the American Federation of Labor the ovation which greeted his address was one of the greatest that body has ever given anyone. Winchester is very fortunate in securing him, a privilege possible only because he will be in Boston as Ford Hall forum speaker next Sunday evening. He will not only occupy the First Congregational Church pulpit as preacher at the 10:30 a. m. service, but will also address the forum at 12 o'clock. He will bring to Winchester from Boston the atmosphere of the conference on Christian ideals in industrial relations in session November 13 and 14.

WINCHESTER TEACHERS' CLUB

Tuesday evening, Nov. 15, in the Town Hall, the Scottish Musical Comedy Company will present "The Cotter's Saturday Night" under the auspices of the Winchester Teachers' Club. The purpose of the entertainment is to raise funds for later events of an educational nature which will be given in the High School Hall, to which the public will be invited.

The sketch is based on the poem by Robert Burns and gives opportunity for dialogue, stories, solos and quartet numbers. The company is composed of trained singers and is highly recommended.

The committee has placed the price of the tickets within reach of all so that a full house may greet the company when the curtain rises. Reserved seats may be secured at F. E. Barnes's store on Saturday Nov. 12, and at the box office on the evening of the entertainment.

LEGION NOTES

The next meeting of the local post is the annual meeting for the election of officers. It will take place next Tuesday night, November 15th, at the Legion House. The present officers have been nominated for re-election, with only one exception. Kenneth Caldwell declined re-election as Finance Officer and Arthur Harris was nominated in his place. Our Vice-Commander Marshall J. England who attended the National Convention at Kansas City will be present and give us a personal account of those eventful days in the Legion's history. At the time of this writing, the entertainment has not been definitely announced, but the entertainment committee promises us that it is to be "extra ordinary" and will be the feature of the evening.

The "Father and Son Night" which was to have been held last spring, but had to be postponed will be held in December. Mr. Feri Felix Weiss, author and lecturer, will relate his experiences in rounding up reds and spies during the war.

Next Monday afternoon, November 14th, Marshal Foch will visit Boston. It is planned by the American Legion to hold a monster parade in his honor. All the posts of greater Boston have been invited to participate. Winchester post should, and we trust will, be well represented.

Ex-service men, whether they served in the army or navy, should consider it a privilege and an honor to be able to take part in an event of this sort. It is impossible—owing to the short time before the parade to make a personal appeal for members to be present, so it is hoped that every ex-service man who reads this will consider it as a personal invitation for him to take part.

The day will not be a holiday to be sure. Neither was the day in 1915 when a parade was held in Boston in honor of the visiting governors; neither was the day in March 1919 when President Wilson first returned from Europe; nor the day in April 1919 when the Yankee Division paraded. Yet on each one of these occasions business practically stopped in the city, and thousands left their work to witness the celebrations. It is anticipated that it will be the same way next Monday, and men should have no difficulty in getting away from business to join in the parade.

At the time of this writing it is impossible to announce the details regarding time, place, and person to whom to report. That information will be given to-morrow night at the play in the Town Hall by Commander Ramsdell, or may be obtained by calling the post officers. Uniforms should be worn, if possible.

BIRTHS

A daughter was born Nov. 1st to Mr. and Mrs. William J. Ghirardini of 45 Wedgemere avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Bond are the parents of a son, George Hurlstone Bond, born at the Winchester Hospital.

Children's book week, November 13th to 19th. See exhibit at public library.

ANOTHER GIFT TO THE LEGION

Mr. Edward S. Foster of Grove street has presented to the local post of the American Legion a handsome player piano for use in its new quarters. His gift like those which have preceded it, is much appreciated by the men, and they extend to Mr. Foster their sincere thanks for his generosity and kindness.

LEGION PARADE PRIZES

The Lawn Carnival Committee of the local American Legion Post have on exhibition this week, at Allen's Drug Store, the prize cups awarded to the winners of first and second prizes in the parade on Columbus Day. First prize was awarded to George W. Blanchard & Co., and second prize to the Winchester Grange.

The postponed meeting of the Winchester Boat Club was held Friday evening at the office of the Edward T. Harrington Co. The meeting voted to make the proposed changes in the by-laws, providing for new classification of membership and to change the annual meeting from April to January. Several other matters were also acted upon.

"A DELIGHTFUL SONG RECITAL"

A large and enthusiastic audience greeted Miss Nathalie Bowman Gifford last Friday night at White's Hall, Winchester, Mass.

Her Irish and Norwegian Folk Songs in the costume of their respective countries brought forth repeated applause, and her naturalness in the acting of the past was very pleasing.

Special mention should be made of the number entitled "Shule Aghra" in the Irish Group and the "Echo Song" in the Norwegian Group. The "Jewel Song" from "Faust" was well rendered and received hearty recognition.

Miss Gertrude Hubbell's Musical Readings were of a high order, and her encores as well, were full of real life.

Mr. Earl Oliver, Baritone rendered some classical numbers, and his deep powerful voice would make it easy for him to fill a much larger hall.

Miss Gertrude Brailley of the New England Conservatory of Music, accompanied the singers and also the Reader most acceptably.

Miss Gifford was presented with a profusion of yellow chrysanthemums, roses, and pinks.

The ushers were Mr. Vincent Clark, Mr. Hamilton Gifford, Mr. Kenneth Caldwell and Mr. Henry Harris.

The high wind which struck town Saturday morning did considerable damage to trees about town, many large limbs being blown down. The clock on the Congregational Church was stopped and some wires were also blown down.

CALUMET TOURNAMENT

New Ratings Now Going Into Effect

The first period of re-rating the bowlers in the Calumet tournament has now been reached, the teams rapidly completing the first five matches of their schedule. Whether this will affect the bowling largely remains to be seen, but many changes are being made and the outcome will be interesting. The first matches to be rolled on this basis occurred Friday evening, there being some difficulty experienced where teams which are re-rated met teams standing on the old figures. As it was team 16 won three from 14, 2 three from 21, and 11 all four from 10. The 14 vs. 16 match was particularly close, 16 taking the first by four and the second by 10, while 14 got the third by 6, leaving eight pins difference on the totals. Ten and 11 rolled a tie in their second, 11 winning the roll-off. Higgins led in individual work, making 355 for a total and 138 for a single. Goldsmith rolled 327 with 120, Saabye 305 with 105, Demarest 115, Butler 109 and Crafts and Morton 105 each.

K. OF C. NOTES

At the last regular meeting of the Council, Monday evening, Nov. 7, the First Degree was conferred on a large class of candidates by the local degree staff.

The formal opening of the new home on Vine street, now nearing completion, will be celebrated on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the council, Feb. 28, 1922. The plans for this affair are said to include a banquet.

The annual Minstrel show will be staged at the Town Hall, Jan. 12, under the direction of George "Decker" Horton, who needs no introduction to the general public as his ability in this line is well known. Incidentally, the name "Decker" on the program spells success for any show in Winchester. Luke P. Glendon, chairman and manager, announces a first rehearsal to be held at White's Hall, Sunday, Nov. 13 at 2:30 p. m., and strongly urges all to attend. It is sincerely hoped that the Council, to a man will give Brother Glendon its whole-hearted support in his endeavor to make this affair a financial success as the proceeds will go towards furnishing the new home. Architecturally, the building is a credit to the Knights, an ornament to the town, and, when completed, will far surpass any enterprise of like nature in the State.

Under the auspices of the Minstrel Show committee, a social Whist will be held at White's Hall, Friday evening, Nov. 18. Many substantial prizes have been donated for this affair to make it attractive for whist lovers.

A card from Walter Shaughnessy, D. G. K., reports his condition improving. He has been ill for the past two weeks at a Boston hospital, and has been greatly missed by his associates around town.

MRS. FRANK H. ELLIOTT

Mrs. Jennie D. Elliott, wife of Mr. Frank H. Elliott, died at her home, 11 Herrick street, on Monday. She had not been in good health for a number of years, undergoing several operations, and her death followed a serious illness extending through the past two or three months. She was 58 years of age.

Mrs. Elliott was born in Almond, N.Y., and was the daughter of William W. and Dorcas (Newphew) Davis. She had made her home in Winchester for the past 22 years, being widely known to many residents. She was a member of the First Congregational Church, the Mission Union, the Fortnightly, Winchester Visiting Nurse Association and other organizations.

She leaves her husband and two sons, Mr. Theodore H. Elliott and Mr. Eugene D. Elliott, one sister in Brooklyn, N. Y., and a sister and two brothers residing in the West.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. S. Winchester Adrianne at the residence on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30. There was a profusion of beautiful flowers and during the service selections were sung by a quartette. The burial was in Wildwood cemetery.

Marriage intentions have been filed with the town clerk by Daniel Joseph Keane of 11 Linden street and Miss Vera Murray of 93 Salem street, Woburn.

TWO AUTOS BURNED ON MAIN STREET

Following the burning of a big, old fashioned touring car at the Oak Grove turnout on Main street early Sunday morning, another automobile was burned just this side of the Medford line Sunday night. Not much is known of either fire, both of which are reported as accidental. The Winchester fire department, word being telephoned later to the local department, Chief DeCoursey and officer Cassidy went to the scene and brought Herman Rosenthal and Daniel Patterson, both of Everett, to the station house. The men said the car was a Ford truck and was owned by Rosenthal's brother. It was insured for $300. Officer Farrell reported that just previous to the fire he saw the car turn onto Main street out of Prospect street. There was a quantity of women's hats in the car and the men explained that they were in town looking for a vacant store, desiring to open a place to sell the hats for Christmas. As the fire occurred at two o'clock in the morning, they evidently had little success in finding a store. The car was a total loss.

EPIPHANY MEN'S CLUB DINNER

The first meeting and dinner of the Epiphany Men's Club, held Monday evening at the parish house, brought out one of the largest gatherings in a long time, the affair proving exceptionally pleasant and entertaining to all. The attraction of the evening, outside a fine dinner served by the ladies of the parish, was a talk by Capt. Daniel A. MacKay of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. Capt. MacKay, who had previously visited Winchester and entertained some of our residents, gave a talk which, although occupying over an hour and a half, proved all too short for his audience. Interspersed with keen wit and humor, his remarks held his hearers closely from start to finish.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The Halloween Party, Oct. 31st, which was given under the direction of a committee of seniors was most successful. The Art classes had decorated every room with a Halloween frieze and Luna Putnam prepared the pupils by her talk in the assembly hall on Halloween. Each class furnished a part of the entertainment after which all went below for "eats" and dancing. The Freshmen boys showed a remarkable capacity for doughnuts, cookies and apples but no casualties have been reported. Now the Juniors are planning for a Christmas party.

The first quarter closes Nov. 10th and fear and trembling have seized those boys and girls who have been taking a chance on "getting by" with their work.

Armistice Day was observed with appropriate exercises in the Assembly Hall today.

The Winchester table of the Florence Crittenton League, at the sale to be held the last days of this month in Boston, will be called the "Christmas Table," and is to be under the direction of Mrs. Oren C. Sanborn, Mrs. William I. Palmer and Mrs. John H. MacAlman.

STATE ROAD OPEN

The newly built portion of Cambridge street, reaching from Church street in this town to the Burlington line, was opened to automobile travel for the first time since construction was commenced in the middle of the summer on last Sunday.

The work of construction at the big ledge opposite Pond street is still going on, a steam shovel aiding in the work. Autos are allowed through this point, but only one at a time. This portion will be the last to be finished, but will be completed within a few weeks.

The new road is a delight to those who had to travel over the old way. Many of the former curves have been eliminated by wholly new construction, and in driving over the new road one passes many places where the former road runs along the side. The grades have been cut down, fences and marking rocks erected, and the street is now one of the finest in this section.

The final finishing touches are still being put on, the edges being in some places yet to be finished and not all of the fences in place.

Tuesday morning was the coldest thus far this fall, the glass dropping to 22 in some parts of the town. Ice was

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Strange as it may seem, nothing will cool a wife's love as fast as having to tend the furnace.

Parents are continually telling their children to be quiet and yet if they were quiet you would send for the Doctor.

Humility is a virtue we all admire in others.

We cannot, of course, all be handsome, and it's hard for us all to be good; We are sure now and then to be lonesome, and we don't always do as we should.

It appears quite evident that one of the questions soon to come before the Town is the matter of street acceptances. The hearing before the Board of Selectmen Monday night, developed what has already been demonstrated on previous occasions: a decided opposition on the part of many residents to being the party on one side to an unknown assessment for the building of a street long in public use and unquestionably outside any development scheme. Since the Selectmen have laid down rules for street acceptances under the "Betterment Act," it is said Winchester has not added a street to its list of public ways. Many residents think we have too many private ways here already, but unquestionably if the present rule is to be continued there will be many more. Length of use and development are not taken in consideration, and our residents naturally resent being called upon to pay a sum, the exact amount of which is unknown even, to have their street accepted, when streets in use half the time of theirs have been accepted and rebuilt without assessment. Furthermore, increased valuations have been made without any consideration of these conditions. At night's hearing about 30 residents present from Pickering North and South Sheridan Circle and Watson place, and at this hearing several instances were cited where streets similar in every way had been previously accepted by the Town. Probably more publicity has been given to this matter through Walcott terrace, which has been before the Town for acceptance for many years, it being put up before any of the present rules were adopted.
The payment for the acceptance of this street has been tentatively put at $900, $3 a foot. The very next street adjoining it, not in use until many years later, has been accepted and twice built by the Town at no cost whatever to the abutments. Not only did Walcott terrace residents get no assistance from the Selectmen, but the Sewer Board refused to lower projecting manholes which, from their installation, made the way dangerous to travel. These residents have been obliged to build their street up to these sewer manholes, raising it a foot or more. In return they have their sidewalks plowed by the Town after snow storms, and use the sewer. To offset any increased cost of these conveniences they pay a somewhat (to say the least) increased tax assessment. There are many people who are rapidly arriving at the conclusion that a hard and fixed rule, used for the acceptance of any and every street by the Town, does not and will not work. There is no question but what every rule has to start somewhere; everyone must agree to that; but can one rule apply to every case, past and present? Either go back and clean up old and long standing acceptances, or make rules which will treat all fairly and alike.

PARENT TEACHERS MEETING

The Wadleigh-Prince Parent Teacher Association held a very enthusiastic meeting on Monday evening at High School Hall.

A Play given under the direction of Miss Barr, the Science Teacher at the Wadleigh School, demonstrating the kind of work done in the science class room daily, reflected credit on the pupils and teacher.

At the conclusion of the play the pupils retired to the gymnasium where they played games under the direction of Miss Pearson of the Wadleigh School.

Mr. Pinkham presented the following questions to the association for future discussion:

1. To what extent should individual differences be recognized in planning a course of study?

2. What are the proper limitations of control of a pupil's time by the school authorities?

3. Should the Wadleigh-Prince Teacher Association go on record as recommending a certain scheme of social activity for Winchester School children, and go on record as agreeing to scrupulously live up to the schedule with regard to their children? This means regulation of many of the present social activities such as Dances, Parties, Movies and au-toriding.

Notice of next meeting will be given in the Star and let every parent interested in the Wadleigh or Prince School be present to hear and take part in the discussion of one or all of these questions.

LAST WEEK we stated the risk of dying during the period of twenty years, to which men at ages 35 and

WINCHESTER LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

On Friday evening, November 11, the League of Women Voters held its second meeting of the season in the Town Hall. The program was arranged for by the Limitation of Armament Committee of the Winchester League and with Mr. Will Irwin as speaker on "The Next War" was one of great moments.

Mrs. Bertram Bernard, chairman of the League, presided.

The meeting opened with the singing of "America the Beautiful" by the audience led by Mr. I. Grafton Abbott. Mrs. Bernard announced that the Executive Board had recommended that the net proceeds of the lecture be given to the Parker
Hill Hospital for disabled veterans.
This was unanimously voted by the members present.

It was voted to suspend all further business until the December meeting.

Mrs. Lorence M. Woodside, chairman of the Limitation of Armament Committee, then presented the speaker. She said, in introduction, that it was the earnest desire of Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird that these disarmament meetings be held in a prayerful spirit and in concluding she read very beautifully Kipling's mighty "Recessional."

Mr. Irwin with characteristic directness and force told of the horrors which had been possible in the recent war and foretold the still more hideous horrors that would be possible in the next war. The audience of approximately 600 people was unusually silent and attentive.

Mr. Irwin was first arrested after the appearance of his story of the second battle of Ypres relating the valiant work of the Canadians when the French terrified and dying from the effects of the first poison-gas attack by the Germans had left the front line trenches practically empty.
This date, April 22, 1915, he regards as a significant one in the history of the war. Up to this time mankind during all its warfare of the ages had never conceived the idea of killing except by hitting with a hard substance.

In this war, warfare was brought up to the greatest mechanical and chemical perfection possible. After the battle of Ypres it became a race between gas and the gas mask. After the German mustard gas attack in 1918 it became necessary to invent a protection for the body, because of the burns which this gas inflicted.
America had perfected at the time of the Armistice a wonderful gas, incolorous, invisible and instantaneously deadly and with fifty-five times the spread of any other gas.

Acropiates, which at the beginning of the war were in their infancy, grew rapidly in size and power and in ability to carry bombs of great weight. They were developed to such a degree of perfection as instruments of war as to be finally guided by wireless to a large objective with great accuracy.

This was a war in which women played a conspicuous part, women in factories and munition plants; women behind the battle front serving in numerous capacities.

Taking us a step into the future,
Mr. Irwin pointed out that women as well as men would be under conscription. In the future an enemy's initial engagement would be an air raid by bombing planes carrying gas of so frightful a nature as to wipe out the population of an entire capital. "Science must be put to work in order to kill by wholesale." He declared that the next step, which was started even before the last conflict ended, would be bacterial warfare.

"We've got to stop it," he said.
"That silent sentimental pacifism, it's plain common sense. The only way out is for the nations to get together and knock out the nation with the club.
Disarmament will come from the people. Upon America rests the responsibility of leadership. America has a terrible choice. She could with her powerful resources possess vast territory or she could have her giant strength and not use it as a giant.
America must decide in this year of 1921 of what her greatness is to be and may she not prefer to dwell in the tawdry palaces of empire but rather in that spiritual house not built with hands."

There was little applause throughout the speech but at its close the audience gave Mr. Irwin a great ovation.

as a symbol of success and as a

With Mrs. Bernard presiding, Mrs.

solution to be taken to Washington by Mrs. Chas. Sumner Bird as follows:
"We, the citizens of Winchester, grievously concerned over the economic burdens brought about by the late war, under which all nations are staggering, and fearful for the future of our children, wishing to express our deep satisfaction in the step you have taken to abolish war by calling the great nations to confer upon limitations of armaments through an agreement among all nations, have adopted the following resolutions:—

Massachusetts, hereby declare ourselves unreservedly in favor of limitation of armaments by international agreement and pray that definite results may be accomplished, be it further

RESOLVED: that we pledge our united support to our President in this effort to secure the results for which the Conference is called.

Mrs. Bernard called for a rising vote of those in favor of the resolution. The vote was unanimous.

satisfaction that two of the four wo-benefit of the Church Service League.

Forty-five tables were filled with armuch femininity and fashion togethafter the game, made a festive and successful occasion, materially helping the great Cause, for which Mrs.

Hart and her efficient Committee are working.

Forceful Evidence.

A lawyer was once, at short notice, called upon to defend a horse thief. He did not know that the thief had pleaded guilty and made an impassioned speech in the man's defense. He believed he had made an impression and the man would be acquitted. But the judge's summing up disillusioned him. "Gentlemen," said the judge, "you have heard his counsel. Only, remember this—the prisoner was there when the horse was stolen and the learned counsel was not."

This matter of street acceptance was finally referred to the Town Engineer for report. RED CROSS OPENS ITS ANNUAL ROLL CALL FOR MEMBERS

Chapters of New England Continue Unabated Their Activities For Disabled Veterans

With its essential activities in behalf of the disabled veterans of the World War and their families unabated and its peace program firmly established by another year of service, the American Red Cross opens its nation-wide annual Roll Call on Armistice Day, November 11th.

During the two weeks following, through Thanksgiving Day, November 24th, the 3,648 Chapters of the organization in the United States, and their Branches, will ask the more than six million present members to re-enroll, and will seek additional members for 1922.

There will be no national appeal for funds to maintain the work, aside from the membership fees, but many of the Chapters will go to their communities for such amounts as are necessary to support their local activities.

Every One Asked To Join

The minimum quota of members for the country has been set at eight millions. The combined quota for the 129 Chapters and 1016 Branches in the five New England states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, is 720,000, or 200,000 more than the present New England Division membership.

purpose of every Red Cross action in the Roll Call is to give every man and woman in the community the opportunity to help continue the local, the national and the overseas service of this great organization, by becoming a member.

Because of the steady withdrawal of the American Red Cross forces from overseas, where the work is now largely concentrated on child welfare in the Central European countries, and the increasing importance of the service at home, a readjustment of the division of membership fees has been made.

To Maintain Local Work

Beginning with the present Roll, all but fifty cents of each membership fee will be retained by the local Chapter for the support of its work in and for its own community. In other words Chapters will keep fifty cents of every one dollar annual membership, $4.50 of every $5.00 contributing membership, and $9.50 of every $10.00 sustaining membership. The fifty cents that goes to National Headquarters helps maintain the child welfare service abroad and hospital work for the disabled former service men. In some instances the membership fees will not provide for the local activities of a Chapter and it will be necessary to ask for funds in addition to enrolling members.

Plan To Go "Over the Top"

The Red Cross organizations in all parts of New England are, with very few exceptions well prepared to go before their communities and ask for continued support of the Red Cross, and the prospects are much better this year than last for an enrollment that will carry the membership in this section of the country from a little over half a million, back towards the million mark.

The services of the American Red Cross to the sick and disabled of the World War and their families continue on a scale and in a variety of methods unsuspected by the public at large, and practically every Chapter in New England is doing its share of this work, which, it is estimated, will not reach its height before 1925 and possibly not for two or three years later.

Peace Time Services

In addition to this major obligation, the fulfillment of the promise of the American Red Cross to the people, the Chapters and Branches are each carrying on one or more of the established peace time services which include public health nursing, instruction in home hygiene and care of the sick, preparedness for relief in disaster, nutrition service, health service, volunteer service which includes the production of layettes and garments for children in foreign lands first aid and life saving.

These activities are expressed in one phrase: "The Union of all who Love in the Service of all who Suffer."

NEW GUINEA: LAND OF SEA-BATHING GHOSTS

The huge island of New Guinea is probably the most "unspoiled" savage country in existence today says a bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society in regard to the island the former German portion of which recently has been placed under the control of Australia by the League of Nations.

Holland, Great Britain and Germany, who divided the island among them—on paper—in 1885 have done little more than place a tenuous fringe of outposts and missions along the coast. The spacious interior has been left largely to the numerous wild tribes whose chief outdoor sport is collecting human heads and who not infrequently make cannibal feasts of the remainder of their enemies' anatomy.

This out-of-the-way island, with its thousands of square miles of unexplored territory, has been and continues to be an interesting field to the geographer, the naturalist and the anthropologist as well as to politicians, statesmen and traders. Counting Australia as a continent, New Guinea is exceeded in size among the islands only by icy Greenland; and it may therefore be said to be the largest island in the world which supports a considerable population. The number of the inhabitants is not definitely known but is believed to be close to one million. The island is 600 miles southwest of the Philippines and in the latitude of the eastern bulge of Brazil. The Equator lies only about twenty miles off its northernmost point.

Big As Half Dozen States

This huge island of the tropic seas covers a greater area than half a dozen or more commonwealths of the United States. If it could be laid down with its southeastern point at Norfolk, Va., it would extend across Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and most of North Dakota, its northwestern point resting near the Canadian border not far from the Montana line. And at its width it would extend from near the northern end of Lake Michigan to a point just south of Terre Haute, Ind. The area is close to 300,000 square miles.

Australia has a keen interest in New Guinea for it lies hardly a hundred miles to the north, and the strait separating the two lands is dotted with small islands. Since 1906 the southwestern quarter of the island has been a territory of the federal government of Australia, and the recent action of the League of Nations now gives the commonwealth jurisdiction over more than half the island.

The coastal regions of New Guinea—practically the only portions well known—are typical lands and, as might be expected, are not particularly healthful. The mountains of the interior reach a considerable height, one peak in the Dutch portion of the island being more than 500 feet higher than Mt. Whitney, the highest peak in the United States proper.

Must Live Off Ground

Where the Papuans, the natives of New Guinea, originated is an unsettled point among ethnologists. The inhabitants of most of the adjacent islands are relatively fair, straight-haired Malays, but the Papuans are black, woolly-haired negroes like those of the far-away Guinea coast of Africa. It was because of this similarity that the name, New Guinea, was given to the island. Some of the Papuans have become mixed with Malays so that numerous racial gradations exist.

The Papuan seems to demand an elevated home. Throughout the northern and eastern portion of the islands the houses—many of them vast communal dwellings—are erected on piles. In the southwestern section many of the native tribes live in rude huts built in trees.

Where Spirits Take A Plunge

Though on the whole as savage as any people in the world, the Papuans are not devoid of good traits. Some of the tribes have a passion for cleanliness and believe that the spirits of their departed tribesmen love to bathe. They therefore carefully construct paths leading from each grave to the sea. Some of the communities near the northeast coast are literally villages beautiful. They are clean-swept, with streets sanded and planted with ornamental shrubs. In the center are little plazas or palaver spots where conferences are held. These are paved with flat stones beside which are erected stone pillars to serve as back-rests.

The animal life of New Guinea, like that of Australia, is queer to Western eyes and represents the fauna of ancient geological ages. With the exception of the pig, which was probably introduced from Asia, all the beasts are either marsupials having pockets like the opossum, or else lay eggs like birds. But in the number and beauty of its birds New Guinea surpasses many other portions of the earth's surface. It is the home of the gorgeously colored bird-of-paradise and the ingenious and romantic bowerbird. Bird skins make up one of the important exports of the island.

About the Rich.

There are just two classes of rich men—those who claim they earned every dollar they possess, and the others who admit that while they may not have earned all they have they deserve it, none the less.

His Quaintness.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING, NOV. 2

The Board met at 7:30 P. M. Present, Messrs. Blackham, Bond, Bryne and Willey.

In the absence of Mr. Dolben, Mr. Willey was chosen chairman pro tempore. The records of the meeting of Oct. 23 were read and approved.

Street Lights 1921 Maxwell Road: Acting in accordance with the recommendation of the Street Light Committee, the Board voted to have installed one 60 candlepower incandescent street light on Maxwell road, the exact location to be given the Edison Company by the town engineer.

Street Lights 1921 Dix Terrace: A letter was received from the Edison Electric Illuminating Company acknowledging the Board's order to install one 60 candlepower incandescent street light on Dix terrace.

Accounts: The following vote authorizing the Overseers of the Poor to overdraw their account was lost in a yea and nay vote, Messrs. Blackham, Bond and Willey voting yea and Mr. Bryne voting nay. A two-thirds vote in the affirmative is necessary before the overdraft can be authorized. This matter was ordered placed on the docket again for the next meeting.

VOTED: Whereas, the Overseers of the Poor have represented to this Board that owing to business depression, the past three months have been a period of difficult adjustment for the dependent poor, and that the appropriation of $14,000 made at the last annual town meeting for the poor department is inadequate to enable the Overseers of the Poor to perform the duties with which they are by statute charged, and whereas, this Board is satisfied that the facts are as represented by said Overseers of the Poor and that a case of extreme emergency, involving the health of persons is thereby shown, now therefore, this Board acting under the provision of Section 31, of Chapter 4, of the General Laws, does hereby determine that the Overseers of the Poor may incur liabilities in excess of the appropriation made for their use during the current year to the extent of $5,000 and the auditor is hereby requested to approve and the treasurer to pay, bills incurred and approved by said Overseers of the Poor to an amount not exceeding $5,000 in excess of the appropriation made by the Town for that department.

Street Lights 1921 Oxford Street: A petition was received from T. S. Knight and several others asking for a street light at Oxford street on lamp post between 49 and 50. This matter was referred to the Street Light Committee for report.

Oxford Street: A petition was received from T. S. Knight and three others asking that some crushed stone be placed on the sidewalks on the right-hand side of Oxford street above Warren street, also that the upper end of this street be graded, so that there will be proper drains during the winter season. This matter was referred to the Supt. of Streets for report and also to the Highway Committee.

The meeting adjourned at 9:30 p. m. George F. Bartlett, Clerk of Selectmen.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

For a great many years there have been useful condensed text books for the new comer who wished to learn English or to become a citizen. In some of these the Constitution would be printed in the foreigner's tongue and in our own, the parallel column method here being beneficial rather than deadly. Vocabularies bearing on the needs of daily life, summaries of our history, short business talks, were prepared, and a new arrival fairly educated in his own language had a reasonable chance of purchasing at slight cost an entrance into our own language. Wherever the foreign-born citizen is unjustly treated or exposed to fraudulent practices there is and should be condemnation. But it is right that everybody should know that the "art preservative" has done a great deal to help the newcomer to make himself at home on our shores. An interpreter, in an American Court, born in a Spanish-speaking island, said that on his arrival here he was almost captured by the helpfulness of the manual to which he for several months devoted all the time he could spare from his necessary toil. Years later he was again reminded of its merits for he lent it to a neighbor who wished to learn Spanish, and, like the good rule of the proverb, it worked both ways.

A Winchester gentleman does well to emphasize that the assistance rendered by women in art, science and literature is never duly estimated, and there is a reason for this which may fail to set it in its true light. Even if all scholars and writers were grateful to their mothers, wives, their sisters and their daughters, powerful restraints would hold back the full acknowledgment of the services rendered every day and hour. Generally speaking, man wants due credit for the work he does. It may be that he will act as junior counsel for less able than himself, but this is because he needs money or because some indirect benefit is anticipated, rarely does he wish to hide his light under a bushel. When he seems to do so it is because he shrinks from responsibility or wants leisure for his private studies. The normal experience is that the man who can paint the best picture, make the best speech, render Greek into perfect English, or find a new senior planet wants to be known as having reached the goal. Many women have like ambitions but this line must always be drawn. There are women here in Winchester and elsewhere who are daughters of their father, and women who are daughters of their mother—possibly more like their grandmothers. A woman may wish to keep out of the circle of fame, to see her husband or son crowned with laurels. She may be willing to help in all his work, and yet unwilling to be known as having any hand in it. Her personal ambition may be to lead a social philanthropic movement, and she may regard other distinctions as harmful rather than helpful. For generations the fear of being counted "a blue stocking" has been weakening, but it is not dead and it is doubtful if it ever will die.

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

While other merchants may not care what you do with an article after you buy it—whether you put it to a wasteful use or not—we are greatly interested. We want you to get the most for your money out of the gas you use. We want you to make your gas bills thrive bills.

The reason we desire this is because we know from business experience that waste of gas means big bills, complaints, investigations, re-checking, letter writing, delayed payments and other expenses which, when taken together, mean dissatisfied customers.

Satisfied customers are worth more to us than any revenue derived from wasted gas. We want no money we do not earn.

We live up to this policy every day and are glad to aid you in choosing the most economical gas appliances and tell you how to avoid waste by using them intelligently.

"Code of Hammurabi."
The "Code of Hammurabi," a set of laws made by King Hammurabi of Babylon, 1858-1816 B. C., was found in 1891 A. D. in a stone eight feet high. The code contains 280 sections dealing with all sorts of questions. The law of bribery was stated thus: "If a man bear witness in a case for gain or money he shall himself bear the penalty imposed in the case." Breaking into mud brick houses was punishable by death. The old law of "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth" was enunciated by him long before the same law was stated by the Hebrews in the old Mosaic law.

WOMEN RAISED $30,000

To the Editor of the Star:

The press yesterday printed an account of the alleged proceedings of the Republican State Committee meeting at which the resignation of Francis R. Bangs as Treasurer was accepted. Mr. Bangs has been, and is, a decided asset to the party organization and his insistence upon his resignation is deplored by all members of the committee. The idea might count that the Women's Division was drawn from the press according to too much money; indeed one account used the word "extravagance." The thought is so far from the truth that the erroneous idea, if it exists, should be corrected. I was Chairman of the Committee in 1919, 1920, and had some slight part, I believe, in assisting in organizing the Women's Division. As now completed it ranks not only first, compared with other states, but, as former Chairman Hays once said to me—"in a class all by itself."

The women of Massachusetts contributed approximately $30,000 to the Republican Party last year. It cost a little over $23,000 to build the Republican women's organization from the ground up. This included a State Committee of 40 and a complete organization in every city and town throughout the Commonwealth, with the exception of five small towns which were so strongly Republican that a committee was deemed unnecessary. This splendid organization is largely the result of the work of Mrs. James D. Tillinghast, the present Executive Chairman of the Women's Division. The women have spent since January 1, 1921 a little over $7000. As a matter of fact, therefore, the Republican women of Massachusetts have financed themselves since their entrance into politics. They are now arranging for a bazaar from which they hope to realize enough to carry their work through the campaign of 1922 and to 1923.

The thinking men of our party earnestly desire to deal generously with the women. Constant organization, meetings, lectures, literature and similar activities are very necessary. To curtail now is suicidal. The men have been organized and voting for 135 years, the women only 13 months. Their vote will equal and probably surpass the men at the next election.

My experiences of 12 years as a member of the Republican State Committee show me that for earnestness of purpose, sacrifice, vision and careful expenditure of funds, the men must bend the knee and doff the hat to the women. Our desire is of course to deal with them justly, and by so doing clinch Republican success at the ballot box.

Forms of Insanity.

The Art alliance, at a meeting in Philadelphia, took uncommon steps to diagnose and classify "modernist art." The alliance called in two specialists, Dr. W. S. Wadsworth and Dr. Charles W. Burr, who are by profession alienists. They examined all the symptoms and their decision was "insane." Now, if the same test could be applied to vers librists we might get some valuable information as to the mental state of some of our poets.—Philadelphia Record.

Old Progress is Running in High. Hereafter, instead of leaving our "footprints on the sands of time," all we'll have to do is leave our fingerprints on the police blotter.—New York Telegraph.

LOOKING BACKWARD

I'm the chap that got high wages; now I get it in the neck!
I'm the chump that bought potatoes at a dollar ten a peck;
I indulged in rump of sirloin, say at ninety cents a pound,
And I paid a half a dollar for the bottom of the round.

I blew in about three dollars for a simple cotton sheet.
And I have paid eighteen-fifty just to decorate my feet;
I recall I had to dig up seven dollars for a hat.
And I paid the darned old landlord forty dollars for the flat!

I've had money, seeds of money, and I tell you it seemed good,
And I flung it out regardless, as a drunken sailor would.
Just how long 'twould keep on coming—hugh! I didn't know or care,
All I knew was I was living like a blooming millionaire.

But to-day I need a dollar, and I haven't got a dime,
And the boss has told me coldly there'll be no more overtime.
I've had money, and I've spent it, and I don't know where it went;
All I know is I've been wealthy, and I haven't saved a cent.

Weak Blood Is A Real Barrier

Growing Children Often Need Gude's Pepto-Mangan

Some children grow too quickly—it saps their strength. They lapse into careless, desultory habits, or develop a shrinking attitude. Their faces look pinched.

The blood becomes overtaxed by too rapid growth; and poisons from the system take the place of strengthening red corpuscles in the blood. Red corpuscles are those little red particles that swim in blood and give it its color. Gradually that child loses interest in its play.

Poor blood needs the building that the iron in Gude's Pepto-Mangan gives to weakened blood. Gude's Pepto-Mangan enriches the blood by increasing the number of red corpuscles, and restores the blood by driving out the poisons. When the revived blood gets to work, the appetite becomes what a growing child's should be. Your druggist has Gude's Pepto-Mangan in liquid or tablet form. The name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" is on every package.—Advertisement.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING

A great deal of interest is being expressed at the present time in the vocational training carried on in the hospitals among convalescent ex-service men.

With this training they are able to make many desirable articles in silver and copper, beads, wicker, raffa, and interesting dainty things in weaving.

These articles are now being assembled at the various hospitals, for sale to be held on Nov. 16th, Woman's Day at the Copley Plaza, in charge of Mrs. Clarence Edwards. Also for a sale to be held in December at the club house of the YD men in Boston.

In February a similar sale will be held in Winchester under patronage of The Fortnightly. The men of The Legion in Winchester, have very courteously offered the use of their house for this event, the date to be announced later.

THE SCHOOL BUILDING PROGRAM COMMITTEE

The Financial Situation

The erection of new school buildings and the purchase of sites therefor to increase the bonded indebtedness of the town of Winchester and every citizen is vitally interested in this problem. The Committee presents the following facts:

The total valuation of the town of Winchester for the year 1921 is $23,188,700 which is an increase of about $800,000 over the valuation of 1920. The town debt on December 31, 1920 was $351,500 of which amount $149,500 was for loans outside the debt limit consisting of $75,000 water loan, $42,000 high school loan and $32,500 playground loan. As no loans have been issued by the town since December 31, 1920, the present indebtedness is considerably less on account of payments made during the current year. Of the $42,000 high school loan, $4,000 has been paid off this year so that there now remains only $38,000 school bonds outstanding.

Under the general law the borrowing capacity of the town is 3 per cent of the average of the total valuation for the three preceding years less abatements and on January 1, 1922 there will be an available borrowing capacity of about $450,000. It would seem wise to retain this amount for the general purposes of the town and to borrow outside the debt limit for new school buildings and sites. For this purpose an Act of the Legislature will be necessary, but it is reasonable to suppose that the necessary authority to borrow outside the debt limit for whatever amount the town may decide can be secured without difficulty.

Under the general law school bonds may be issued for a period not exceeding twenty years. If issued for twenty years the town must raise each year out of the current tax levy the interest on the bonds and one-twentieth of the amount of the bond issue. The amount of the interest would, of course, decrease each year. At the present time such bonds would probably be issued at about five percent interest. Accordingly, if the town should issue $400,000 worth of twenty-year school bonds, it would be required the first year to raise $40,000 out of the current tax levy, $20,000 being one-twentieth of the bond issue and $20,000 interest, and each year thereafter the interest item would be smaller.

On the assessed valuation of 1921 a bond issue of $400,000 would mean an increase of about $1.75 on the tax rate for the first year, decreasing each year thereafter; a bond issue for $600,000 would mean an increase of about $2.60; and a bond issue of $800,000 an increase of about $3.50. In this connection it may be pointed out that the increase of $1.15 in this year's tax bill to cover the cost of the erection of fire escapes, etc., will not be required next year.

Your Committee feels that the citizens should know the cost of new school buildings in relation to the tax rate so that they may consider carefully all the advantages and disadvantages of any school building program.

As set forth elsewhere in the Star the Committee is planning to hold hearings in the different school centers and all citizens are urged to attend at least one of these hearings. The Committee will be glad to present this matter to any organization if requested to do so.

CLERK AND CARRIER

The U. S. Civil Service Commission will hold a competitive examination at Winchester, Mass., on December 3, 1921 for the positions of clerk and carrier in the post office at Winchester, Mass. Compensation during disability for injuries received in the service is allowed and annuities are given to dependents in case of death as a result of such injury.

Aspey is chairman of the bazaar. Luncheon will be served from 12 to 2 o'clock, in charge of Mrs. C. H. Symmes, Mrs. A. D. Rogers and Mrs. W. E. Beggs.

THE CAMEO GIRL

Musical Comedy, Town Hall, Dec. 3

A great deal of interest has been aroused in the announcement that the Young People's Society of the Congregational Church will put on a musical comedy entitled "The Cameo Girl" at the Town Hall, December 3. Matinee at the afternoon. Rehearsals for the production started last Monday, and are being held daily. The "Cameo Girl" promises to be one of the most spectacular gorgeous productions ever staged locally or in this town. The costumes are all designed by Penny, Ross & Company, and the scenery executed by the Fabric Studios of Chicago. The story of the play deals with the search for the lost heir to the throne of Morovia. The wanderings of chancellors from that distant land bring them to Greenwich Village, New York, where the first act is laid in a Bohemian studio where revelry and gay repartee holds forth. From there the scene shifts to aboard a Morovian bound vessel, where various dancers and singers entertain the passengers on board ship. The last scene is laid in a palace on grounds of Morovia on the day of the coronation, where the quaint court customs of royalty hold sway. The most interesting features of the "Cameo Girl" are the various dance numbers, ranging from the old-fashioned minuet steps of long ago to the modern syncopated stepping of the present generation. The cast is composed of a hundred and fifty of the best dancing and singing talent in Winchester, who are rehearsing under a professional director. From all indications, the "Cameo Girl" is going to equal any production of its kind ever seen here. Many of the cast who took part in "Mamselle Taps" which made such a hit last winter, are also playing in the "Cameo Girl." Tickets for this play will be on sale Saturday at the Star office.

MISS WINIFRED BENT

"THE ROYAL MOUNTED"

Legion Played to Crowded House Armistice Night

Winchester Post, American Legion, played to another crowded house on Armistice night when it presented its second dramatic effort, "The Royal Mounted" before an audience of nearly a thousand enthusiastic friends.

The drama, by Cecil DeMille, and under the direction of coach Charles J. Harrold, was excellently given, and evoked spontaneous applause and much favorable comment. Unlike the previous production, which was along comedy lines, this show was of a different quality and carried much difficult work as well as a new cast.

The scenes were laid in northwest Canada, and the stage settings brought immediate admiration for their artistic layout. The costumes too, were exceptional and true to life. Mr. Goddu's work as warlike and property man being most efficient.

The leading feminine part was taken by Miss Winifred Bent, already seen on the local stage to advantage and admiration. Her work was far the most difficult in the cast, and she carried off her part to perfection. Playing opposite her was Mr. Caldwell, another player who has become a favorite with Winchester audiences, and from start to finish nothing but compliments followed him in his newest endeavor.

In fact the whole cast was exceptional and the only choice one could make of the work presented was through the prominence of the part portrayed. Mr. Saltmarsh, the French Canadian, brought without question a true breath of the north winds, while Miss Hodge, a French Canadian maid, was equally good with her broken accent and quaint phrases.

Mr. Henton was a smooth and oily villain and Mr. Clarke, although charged with the crime which furnished the plot, was so open and sunny that no doubt his audience would have protected him en-mass had he not finally stepped clear of the meshes of the law.

Musical incidental to the show was rendered by Cullen's orchestra, with "Terry" Cullen himself at the drums.

KENNETH CALDWELL

The ushers included members of the Post as follows: Comm. William Ransdell, head usher; Louis E. Goddu, William Hevey, Daniel Lynch, Selectman James Blackham, Vincent Farnsworth, Franklin Lane, Douglas Case, George Joyce, Arthur Mullen, Allen White and Maurice Reebnack.

ARITHMETIC TESTS IN THE SCHOOLS

To the Editor of the Star:

On connection with a course which is being given at Boston University, under the leadership of Mr. Walter Downey, 3574 pupils in and around Boston were given an examination designed to test their skill in arithmetic at the end of their sixth years of school life.

This examination was given to seventh grade, eighth grade and ninth grade Winchester children. In every case our median was higher than that obtained by the pupils of the same grade, taken all together. Medians were as follows:

Grades	Winchester Median	Boston Median
VII	75	101
VIII	100	130
IX	130	137

All members of the first year algebra classes in the High School took this test. A separate record was made of an algebra class which is composed of pupils who are not planning to go to college, and which contains a good proportion of children who find mathematics difficult. The fact that this class obtained a median of 120 would appear to indicate some very effective teaching in the grades. I should like to see these facts made public.

GOING INTO THE UPPER ROOM

A Sermon Suggested by the World Conference at Washington

The following sermon was delivered by Rev. George Hale Reed on Sunday morning last at the Unitarian Church. At this time, with the meeting of the great nations at Washington in the endeavor to limit armaments and to inaugurate plans for the future peace of the world, this sermon holds especial significance. We print it upon the request of many who heard it and who feel that it holds interest to other readers of the STAR.

"They went up into an upper room at Jerusalem. Now there were dwelling at Jerusalem devout men out of every nation who heard it and who feel that it holds interest to other readers of the STAR."

Acts 1:13—2:5,6

Paris must have been a wonder city in those post-war days, when all the world met there to try to arrange the peace. Men of all colors and races touched shoulders in the streets. Strange, weird costumes flashed there. All sorts of tongues chattered on the street corners. The battle line had brought men together from the ends of the earth and now the peace line was more vivid and picturesque than the pageant of the circus. It was a scene from the Arabian Nights, which the lovers of the picturesque will describe through the years. "Paris, said a writer who watched the kaleidoscope of those historic days, 'became a vast cosmopolitan caravansary... strange visitants from Tartary, Corea, Armenia, Persia, men with patriarchal beards and scimitar shaped noses, and others from desert and oasis, Chinamen, Japanese, Coresans, Malays... were among the tribes and tongues foregathered in Paris.'"

And what came out of this wondrous assembling of the nations? Firm, stable conditions of peace? It is too early to estimate the value of the conference, of course. Peace does not come as the result of a single meeting however representative and high purposed. It took ten minutes for the representatives of America and Germany to sign the treaty the other day, but the preparation for the signing was crowded years of struggle. We expect too much of a single conference; but on the whole, the results of the Paris conference were disappointing. Historians do not sum up its achievements with great satisfaction. The nations go home to resume their warlike preparations, increase their armaments, build their battleships.

ARMISTICE DAY OBSERVANCES AT POST

Armistice Day was fittingly observed at Winchester Post, American Legion in common with other posts all over the country. At 11:55 a. m. bugler Harry Dotten sounded reveille from the balcony of the Post headquarters, the members assembling in squad formation, with a firing squad, color guard and colors. Guard was posted at each end of Washington street at the corners of Mt. Vernon street and the Parkway, and all traffic was stopped. At 12 bugler Dotten sounded attention and the squads stood at parade rest until 12:02, when taps were sounded and the colors dipped.

BUGLER AT COUNTRY CLUB

Henry Chapman was the bugler at the Winchester Country Club Armistice Day, the feature of the observance at noon being the sounding of the calls warning the players of the time for silent observance of the day. The club members were out for a round of golf for the sick soldiers' benefit fund. Promptly at 11:58 the mellow notes of the bugle sounded over the course in the still air at call "attention." This was followed by "taps," and then "carry on." More than $150 was received in entry fees and subscriptions for the fund.

BRIDGE AND DANCING

Bridge and dancing was the program of the ladies' night observed at the Calumet Club on Friday evening. There was an attendance of about 200 and besides the cards, bowling, billiards and pool was enjoyed. The card winners were Mrs. William Davis, Miss Louise Giles, Mrs. William J. Breen, Mr. Sewall E. Newman, Mr. William L. Parsons and Mr. Ernest D. Chase. The committee of ladies in charge of the evening included Mrs. Rufus Clark, Mrs. George E. Willey and Mrs. Ernest D. Chase. A collation was served at the close of the whist and the dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

GOULD AND BOND TOOK SATURDAY'S MATCH

Saturday's match at the Winchester Country Club consisted of a four ball handicap, one-quarter added handicap. Alfred M. Bond and Charles W. Gould were the winners with 80 gross and 72 net. Second place was taken by Walter O'Hara and R. S. Dunbar with 92 gross and 85 net.

TURKEY ROLL AT CALUMET

A turkey roll opened at the Calumet Club Saturday, continuing until Nov. 22d. Three turkeys will be awarded the winners of the high three consecutive strings with handicap in each of the three classes.

Frederick W. Young of Woburn passed away last week at his home on Fairmount street at the age of 49 years and 9 months. He was at one time a resident of this town, and leaves a widow and seven children. The burial was at Forest Hills cemetery, Fitchburg.

WHY GIVE TO RED CROSS THIS YEAR

"The war is over," said a Winchester man the other day as he stepped from his automobile to get a pocketful of cigars. "I don't see any reason why we should be asked to give money to the Red Cross. Of course the Red Cross did good work during the war but why should we be asked to give money to it now?"

His friend with whom he was carrying on a conversation seemed to be willing to change the subject. At any rate he asked a question which apparently had nothing whatever to do with the Red Cross.

"This is a nice car of yours," he said, "but I don't suppose you pour out any of your money for an insurance policy covering it?"

"Why of course I do."

"Do you also carry insurance on your house and your manufacturing plant?"

"Sure thing. What are you asking me those fool questions for? Every sane man carries insurance. Do you mean to tell me that you don't?"

"I was talking in terms of insurance," went on this friend, "because I wanted to lead up to the fact that the Red Cross organization provides insurance to this country of such a quality that we simply cannot afford to be without it."

"You would rather pay your insurance premiums on the policy covering your house year after year without having either fire or a burglary, that to have your house burned or burglarized. With exactly the same thought in mind you should be eager to contribute to the Red Cross."

"Winchester may never be destroyed by fire as Chelsea and Salem were. Neither are we likely to be visited by floods. There's no telling, though, when Winchester as a community will need the services of the Red Cross organization."

"We may never suffer from a flood as Pueblo did. There is some satisfaction, though, in knowing that our contributions have helped our fellow citizens in different parts of the country when visited by great trouble."

"Here at home we have the advantage of the Red Cross health center which is designed to acquaint masses of citizens with proper methods of living. In the United States during the past year, for instance, 73,592 certificates were issued to women and girls who completed the Red Cross course in home hygiene and care of the sick. Think what a help these trained workers will be during a big epidemic or an epidemic of any other kind."

"There is comfort in the thought, too, that through its 260 health centers the Red Cross reached 90,252 persons with health information last year and that in these health centers 4015 health lectures were given and 780 health exhibits held. I'm just giving you a few reasons why you can contribute to the Red Cross this year with a clear conscience."

OFFICER O'CONNELL INJURED

Police officer James V. O'Connell, one of the older members of the force, was struck by a motorcycle Saturday night and received three broken ribs. The officer was about to board an electric car at the corner of Church and Bacon streets at 10:50. He was struck by Arthur W. Day of 25 Ridgefield road, riding a Harley-Davidson motorcycle. The injured officer was taken to the emergency room at the police station and treated by a physician and later taken to his home on Oak street.

AUTO BROKE FIRE ALARM BOX

As Benjamin Drisko of 28 Lloyd street was backing his father's Cadillac car on Herriek street Saturday evening shortly before eight o'clock, he struck a fire alarm box on a telegraph pole, breaking it off. Sunday noon, during the replacing of the box, the fire whistle and bell sounded several times, giving the impression that there was a fire.

Friday evening about 5:20, a horse attached to a carriage driven by George A. Murphy of Charlestown was struck by an automobile on the Parkway. The horse was slightly injured and the right shaft was broken. The auto did not stop and the identity of the driver was not learned.

COMPLIMENTS OUR PLANNING BOARD

Following the recent meeting of Massachusetts Planning Boards here, we took occasion to state that our Planning Board in Winchester was probably as efficient in its duties as any in the State. The following letter, received this week, needs no other comment.

Editor of the Star:

As editor of the Massachusetts Federation of Planning Boards' Bulletin, I want to write you a word in regard to the conference at Winchester. It marks the turning point in town planning in Massachusetts. It ends the period of discouraging struggle to awaken the people to the value of planning their community affairs ahead, and begins an era of accomplishment in town planning, in which the people will be in advance of law and public authority, demanding more of their planning board than can be realized.

There is a great role to be played by the kind of planning board that accepts a town as it is, with the view to making the best out of existing characteristics. There is a fall coming to the planning board that would destroy everything and begin anew.

The proper work of the planning board is not to destroy but to fulfill, and we out-of-towners, who have been shown what Winchester has done want to congratulate her, and speak a word of encouragement to the men in the pilot house—the planning board.

Very truly yours,

W. R. Greeley.

Selectmen George M. Byrne was a guest of Governor Cox at the celebration and reception for Marshall Foch on Monday.

CALUMET BOWLING TOURNA- MENT

Monday night's matches in the Calumet winter bowling tournament saw some fine strings rolled and at least two very close strings. Team 1 taking a point by four pins and Team 2 a point by the scant margin of one pin. The games resulted in Team 1 winning all four from 4, Team 3 all four from 5 and Team 2 taking three from 16. Individual scores were headed by Stephenson's total of 352 on a single of 123. Following were Newman with 335 on 117, Sanford 329 with 113, Higgins 326 with 121, Aseltine 318 with 109, R. L. LEGION MEETING

At the annual meeting of the local post of the American Legion held last Tuesday evening it was unanimously voted to set apart $500 from the proceeds realized at the Legion Carnival. This fund is to be known as the Permanent Welfare Fund and is to be placed in a savings bank, the interest to be used in addition to their regular appropriation by the welfare committee in aiding sick and disabled ex-service men of Winchester. Neither principal nor interest of this fund is to be used for any other purpose, except upon definite instruction of two thirds at a duly called meeting of the Post.

It was also voted to purchase Post colors, the need of which has been felt at times of ceremony and parade. The cash funds which were donated by individuals at the time of the carnival will be used for this purpose.

For one month starting next Sunday the Legion house will be open on Sunday afternoons. This will be tried as an experiment, and if conditions warrant will be continued.

The annual election resulted in the following officers being chosen to carry on the work for the coming year. Commander—Wm. Eben Ramsdell. Vice Commander—Marshall J. England.

Adjutant—Louis E. Goddu. Finance Officer—Arthur S. Harris. Historian—Miss Dorothy Wellington.

Executive Committee—The above named officers and the following: George J. Barbaro, Harry G. Bigelow, Edward J. Boyle, Charles D. Case, Harry J. Donovan, James M. Flinn, Robert M. Hamilton, Dan Hamilton, Henry B. Harris, William H. Hevey, Guy H. Messenger, William S. Phippen, Dr. Richard W. Sheehy, Wm. Allan Wilde and George F. Young.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

Through the courtesy of Superintendent Fausey, Troop 1 is meeting in the kindergarten room of the Prince School. Among the recent activities of the troop, is a food sale which was held in the kitchen of their Captain, Mrs. Mann. The net proceeds of this sale was $12. Part of this money will be used to purchase a Thanksgiving dinner for a needy family. A short time ago, the girls of this troop, with their captain, went on a hike in which they learned the use of the compass. Going deep into the woods and marking their starting point, they walked due north by the compass for 10 minutes. They then turned and walked due east for ten minutes. Turning again, they were able to complete the triangle and return to their exact starting point.

November 8th, under the supervision of Captain Downer, Patrol 1 of Troop 4 served as bundle girls at a bazaar for the South End Day Nursery held at the Copley Plaza. There are two new girls reported in this troop who are preparing for the Tenderfoot test that they may be enrolled as scouts.

RECEPTION AT HOME

The annual reception and donation day at the Home for Aged People was held on Wednesday, the reception being from two-thirty to five-thirty and attended by the largest visitation of friends of the Home yet experienced. The affair was, in fact, by far the most successful yet held.

Many donations were received, including money to the amount of about $150, quantities of preserves, vegetables, pickles, jelly and other contributions together with a fine gift of household articles from the Winchester Branch of the Needlework Guild. In addition many wonderful flowers were given to beautify the rooms.

The Home at present has ten inmates and a household of thirteen. The inmates received their visitors this year in their rooms, to relieve congestion, and tea was served there by a number of young ladies. Mrs. Anthony Kelley was in charge of the arrangements, assisted by Mrs. Stanley Fitch and Mrs. Joshua C. Kelley, who poured at the tables. The young ladies who assisted included the Misses Katherine Fitch, Nathalie Thumim, Charlotte Healey, Marion Green, Eleanor Hollins, Cornelia Smith, Martha Ginn and Jennie Burnham.

MRS. MARY A. HAGGERTY

Mrs. Mary A. Haggerty, well-known as a resident for many years on Baldwin street, died on Monday morning. She was the wife of Mr. Charles Haggerty, and but two weeks ago the couple celebrated the 42d anniversary of their marriage. Besides her husband she leaves two sons, Charles and James, and four daughters, Mrs. George Styles, Mrs. William J. Blake, Mrs. Mary Molloy and Mrs. Elizabeth Mahoney.

High mass of requiem was celebrated on Wednesday morning at St. Mary's Church, the interment being in Calvary Cemetery.

AFTERNOON BRIDGE

There were eighteen tables at the Calumet afternoon bridge on Wednesday, a most entertaining afternoon being spent by the ladies of the members. The afternoon was in charge of a committee composed of Mrs. Fred E. Hollins, Mrs. Waldo L. Hart and Mrs. Ralph T. Damon. Prizes were won by Mrs. Phillips C. Simonds, Mrs. John C. DAILY PHILOSOPHY

More men might get to the front if they didn't stop to talk.

There are no tomorrows on the calendar of the man who does things.

Charity covers a multitude of sins—but they are usually our own sins.

It is almost as easy to grow old as it is to grow fat.

To get through your days work as soon as possible—start as early in the day as is possible.

Impatience is the father of inefficiency.

In connection with viewing our town, a word regarding our town officials is not amiss. Those who serve and have served, know the volume and weight of the work our public servants are called upon to perform; not our planning board alone, but in almost every department. It is said that a public job is a thankless job, and this is, perhaps, generally true, for one seldom hears commendation for our public officials—quite the contrary. But just between us all, Winchester has been particularly fortunate in its public servants—and it shows it, from the time one enters our borders until he leaves. Don't forget that the things you enjoy and the things which make you proud of Winchester are due to your neighbor's planning and forethought. We need not tell you to criticize him when he is wrong—but do not forget a little appreciation when he is right.

Proverbially an inhuman man "plays with his victim as a cat with a mouse." It may be that if a Winchesterite had to write a ten line composition on a feline forty-nine out of fifty would refer to the cat's instinct for hunting. A close observer of feline life told the Spectator however that the number of cats that care nothing for sport, and will let mice run safely by them is larger than is generally known. Whether the cat is well or ill fed has, the Spectator informant argued, little to do with it. A wealthy man who likes gunning will go out on a cold morning and walk thirty miles because the Nimrod instinct is strong within him. The man without hunting blood in him may live on bread and cheese rather than eat meat at the price of going forth and shooting it. While the desire for food is in all men the desire to hunt is only in a portion of the human race. So, the Spectator was told, it is true with the feline tribe, and while the man-hunters are only a minority the minority is large enough to invite the study of naturalists.

Excessive indulgence in speculative thought, and over-concern in regard to reform schemes to be put into effect through legislation are dangerous because they tend to distract the attention from the main business of man on this planet, that is the business of living. Not only so, but they seem actually to weaken the capacity to meet and deal with the serious problems which man faces every day of the year, and almost every hour of the day. Speculators and reformers that have of course seen who lived triumphant lives. There have been others whose lives were failures, and yet who have left behind them thoughts that have inspired and stimulated millions of minds. To both the world owes a heavy debt of gratitude, and they should always be held in reverence. But it is of the average man that we are now thinking. He needs to learn, as was pointed out in an admirable sermon recently preached in Winchester, that he can serve God and set forward the great cause of Righteousness without traveling beyond the frontiers of his calling. There is no man who has not "within his power" more things than he is usually able to manage. The business of life has been defined as "being just the terrible choice." The words spoken centuries ago still throb with meaning. "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve." It is through right choices that character is developed, and out of fine characters that a fine social order must be built up. Seventy-five years ago Lowell spoke to the American people thus:

Hast thou chosen, O my people, on whose party thou shalt stand.
Ere the Doom from its worn sandals shakes the dust against our land!
Though the cause of Evil prosper, yet 'tis Truth alone is strong.
And, albeit she wander outcast now, free around her throng
Proofs of beautiful, tall angels to enshroud her from all wrong.

As it is with the nation, so it is with the citizen. Always the question is "hast thou chosen"—and chosen aright? The just step, I am master not to take, or take, as the case may be.

The Spectator.

LETTER FROM PERU

Former Supt. of School Writes of South American City

Ica, Oct. 16, 1921.

Editor of the Star:

Within one to five miles of this city are a number of small lakes which are noted for their curative properties. That they are here at all, seeing that they have no visible water supply and that evaporation might be expected to dry them up in a few months at most, is due to the fact that this valley underground has a rock or other formation which serves as an enormous basin to retain the waters coming down from the interior.

Their medicinal qualities are due to various salts, with which they are heavily impregnated. These vary, one having considerable iodine, another bromide, one potassium, and other salts. In all cases they have a distinct color—dark brown or dark green, and a pronounced odor.

When the world was in the making it appears that conditions along the west coast of Peru and Chile favored the deposit of various salts not often found elsewhere, and perhaps nowhere in equal quantities. The extensive nitrat region, formerly in the possession of Peru, but taken by Chile after the war in 1880, is the most striking illustration. (Incidentally the maps on the walls of the school rooms of Peru today have the provinces of Arica, Tacna, Iquique and Tarapaca labelled "en posesion de Chile" and the Peruvian view of their rightful ownership is taught). Traces of the salt nitrate can be seen in patches of ground with a whitish appearance like frost.

The lakes probably owe their mineral content to the same geologic period and the variations in the salts to special conditions.

If you wish to go to Huaca-China, the most popular, though each has its bathers, a taxi from the Plaza de Armas will take you there in twenty minutes; but once at least you ought to walk or go on horseback to see the country a little better.

The road is fairly hard sand, not equal to the Parkway, but better than some others. On the sides, walls of abode, barbed wire fences and thorny hedges protect the adjoining fields of cotton and grapes from the casual intruder. You head straight up a long, sandy hill, and then as the road enters a slight depression at its summit, you look down upon a body of water about as large as Manchester Field.

Imagine a short row of one story houses at one end and partly along two sides, a small chapel, four or five trees, a number of autos, a lot of people bathing in dark green water smelling like a doctor's laboratory, a high ridge of sand sloping to the water on all sides. That is Huacachina in the summer season, November to April.

If you have time and strength, it will be well to climb the 250 feet or so to the top of the encircling sand, but do not think that it can be done in a hurry because soft sand as steep as it can lie is not easy climbing. However, if you stop every ten steps—or what you attempt to make steps, though they will be very short—to permit your heart and lungs to quiet down a little, you will reach the top in an hour, to look off to the western horizon across a sand desert with here and there a hill top marked by a cross. To the east the valley of the Ica looks green and beyond the foothills of the Andes lie like an impassable barrier of rough storm mountains piled from north to south.

Coming down will be easy—almost too easy. Then you will have dinner at one of the hotels (very good they are) and come back in the moonlight.

I have been and am going again tomorrow.

Yours very truly,
Schuyler F. Herron.

Two Winchester boys are on the Dartmouth Freshman football squad, which comes to Boston for their game with Dean Academy Friday: Steve Ryan, first-string guard; Roy Brown, second-string center. Ryan was football captain at Winchester High School last year and Brown made an unusual record on the Huntington School track team. The Dartmouth 1925 team has been recognized as one of the best freshman outfits in the East since its victories over Exeter and Syracuse and Penn. State Freshman. If they can beat the strong Dean team at Fenway Park Friday they will finish their season without a defeat.

And now Washington is the city set on a hill for all the world to see. Here is now the great conference. Hither will flock all nations and colors, races, creeds, tongues. Here will meet the wise men from the east and the west, the dreamer from the Orient, and the man from the new world. They will all meet. They will turn the streets of Washington into such a pageant as no motion picture has filmed, and they will try to agree together to lay down at least some of their arms.

Will the conference for the limitation of armaments bring real results? Will the nations really get together, understand one another? Or will there come again the sense of disappointment and disillusion that seemed to follow the conference at Versailles? What is the first requirement of a conference in which the nations understand one another, a coming together in which they really meet?

I read to you this morning the story of a meeting of men from every nation under heaven who really got together, who really understood one another. It happened, we are told, in Jerusalem nineteen centuries ago.

Here in Jerusalem was the color and flavor of all the world. At the time of Jesus, it was the city through which passed the trade routes from Europe to Egypt; through it lumbered the camels carrying the treasures into Egypt and out of Egypt to the north. It was the city of the temple. To it came the worshippers for the music of the festival, and the pomp and pageantry of sacrifice. All sorts of men came to Jerusalem when they traded, opened their windows toward Jerusalem when they prayed, moved in pilgrimage procession to Jerusalem at the high tide of the festival, until the city flashed with color, murmured with strange tongues, overflowed with shining streams of human life, poured into it from all the world. It became a rainbow of human interest. "There were dwelling at Jerusalem devout men out of every nation under heaven."

Parthians and Medes and Elamites, and the dwellers in Mesopotamia, in Judea, and Cappadocia, in Pontus, and Asia, in Phrygia, Pamphilia, in Egypt, sojourners from Rome. . . . What a babel of languages! What a tangle of interests! And yet we are told that when the apostles spoke to them they understood one another. Whatever language the sojourners in Jerusalem happened to speak, it seemed to them, that the friends of Jesus were speaking in their languages. There were dwelling at Jerusalem devout men out of every nation under heaven and every man heard them speaking in his own language.

How was this understanding possible? What happened on this distant day of Pentecost? How did men learn the universal language which the linguists of the years have been unable to invent? Just what happened in these dim, distant days of the early church we cannot fully tell. We cannot fully tell just what is poetry and what part of it is fact. But there is one little sentence in the story that might explain the seeming miracle. "They went up into an upper chamber and every man heard them speaking in his own language." For this is the fact of our lives—that as men go up into the upper chamber, into the region of the high sweeping human ends and aspirations, they speak the same language, they understand one another, they work together. The higher interests unite us. Men part in the valleys, and meet only on the heights of life.

The trouble with the Versailles Conference we are told was just this—the nations did not "go up into the upper chambers" where they could really meet; they lost sight of the high, broad, human interests where they are one in consideration of which they could understand one another.

They had talked before the conference of "making the world safe for democracy," and safeguarding the interests of humanity, but when the conference actually assembled, those upper chambers were untenanted. The discussions did not reach farther than the lowlands of national ambitions and sectional interest. Instead of making the world safe for democracy, the aims were to make the world safe for France or England or America; and instead of serving humanity the delegates were heart and soul for serving the Tricolor or the Stars and Stripes. Clemenceau, laughing, at President Wilson's idealism is quoted as having said "The man talks like Jesus Christ!" Well, the national leaders must learn to talk like Jesus Christ. They must learn to speak in terms of broad, human interest, if they expect to learn the Esperanto of the soul, if they expect to speak the universal language, if they expect ever to have a conference where they really meet together and understand one another.

When men of widely differing realms of experience, interest, and education go up into the upper chambers of life's aspirations and purposes they find—often to their utter surprise—that they speak the same language.

Charles Kingsley has told of this experience in democracy that came to him one day in the streets of London. He was walking with the crowds through the gray and noisy street, when he stopped in wonder before a shop window. In the window was a case of stuffed humming birds so delicate in their exquisite architecture, that Kingsley, scientist, naturalist, poet, stood in awe before them. As he gazed he was conscious that another man was standing beside him under the same spell, a huge brawny coal heaver. Suddenly the men turned, looked into each others eyes and burst out together with—"Isn't that beautiful!" "Well that is!" And Kingsley said afterward "I never felt more thoroughly than at that moment, though, thank God, I had often felt it before, that all men were brothers, that fraternity and equality were not mere political doctrines, but blessed God-ordained facts." These two men, so different in interest, in education, in all the superficial things of life, met in the high places, scientist and unlettered worker were one in their adoration of supreme beauty. They went up into an upper chamber, and they spoke the same language.

In the World War I was serving as a registrar for the last draft that seemed to promise to march all our remaining able-bodied men into the far places. As the morning wore on, the rush of the enrollment was over, and many of the registrars had gone home for luncheon. I was suddenly conscious that only two of us were still working there; and my colleague looked up from his desk and said "This seems to be a ministers' meeting." He was a Catholic priest, leader of the largest Catholic church in Fairhaven. I had worked in Fairhaven more than three years and never even seen him. His ideals of religion were antipodal to mine. He would not have permitted me to speak in his pulpit. He would not himself have entered my church, or have permitted any of his people to listen to my preaching—but here we were together, at the same work, side by side, speaking the same language. In working for our country, for democracy, for humanity, we were fellow ministers, Christians, Americans, men. We had gone into the upper chamber, and we were not divided.

But the trouble is we so rarely go up to the upper chamber as Christians. We live in the smaller ambitions, that mean division and contention. That is why we are divided into sects and factions. The Catholic Church divided into two divisions centuries ago over a phrase. The Protestant sects are divided by a rite, a form of worship, a way of speech. Here in every little New England town around the green, face the competing churches, struggling, discouraged fellowships instead of one strong united community temple; because the people still want to be hyphenated Christians they still insist on meeting in the atmosphere of petty difference, instead of going up to that high chamber of human purpose and aspiration.

In the church of the Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem all the different churches, Greek, Latin, Armenian, have doors opening into a central temple. People came by different ways, but are one in the most holy place. There are different ways of approaching the high and holy place, but when men reach it they stand face to face, they speak the same language. There are broad, human aims and purposes and when nations, churches and men are brave enough and steadfast enough to go up to them, then they are together. They meet on the heights of manhood and womanhood.

"There is neither East nor West, Boundary, breed or birth, Men two strong men stand Face to face Though they come from the ends of the earth."

Democracy, church unity, international unity, all come not by leveling, but by lifing. If men go up to the high places they find that they speak the same language. And oh, what might they not do if they spoke the same language! In the old Tower of Babel story we are told

ELECTROLYTE TRADE MARK
SEPARATORLESS STORAGE BATTERY

Elimination of separators from the ELECTROLYTE means greater battery efficiency. It means a battery free from ruinous sulphation, free from constant care and attention. This wonderful new invention means longer life for your battery, makes frequent recharging unnecessary, presents loss of capacity, insures maximum efficiency of the plates. The ELECTROLYTE Separatorless Storage Battery means not only 100 per cent in results, but requires a minimum of cost, care and attention.

The ELECTROLYTE Battery does away with periodic recharging and overcharging to prevent and reduce sulphation. There is no need to limit the discharge to a certain voltage per cell or to take apart and wash plates when not in use for an extended period. It cannot be injured by buckling of plates on heavy discharges and is not harmed if left uncharged for any length of time. When not in use, no special attention is required, except that it be kept filled with distilled water.

that when God discovered that men were climbing to heaven in the tower, he "confounded their language." That kept them in their places. That kept them from any really great attainment which would make them rivals of God himself. It is an ancient legend, the early explanation of the origin of language, but it has this deep truth. If men really speak the same language, if they understand one another, they can do infinite things. And the way to the great understanding is through the upper room. Let them go up to the higher places of purpose and they will stand together.

Pepto-Mangan Keeps Blood Pure

Growing Children Need Plenty of Red Cells in Blood

When the young body is growing, children frequently experience weakness. Girls and boys sometimes play too hard and over-tax their systems. They become pale, weak, and sickly. They lose their appetites, become languid, and not able to make progress in school work. "Growing too fast" is often true. It is most important to keep the blood of growing girls and boys in a healthy state.

Pepto-Mangan keeps the blood pure. The red cells in the blood are increased. They carry life-giving oxygen to all parts of the body, and wholesome youthfulness blooms again in clear complexions, bright eyes and buoyant spirits. Sold both in liquid and tablet form by druggists everywhere. The name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" is on the package.—Adv.

YOUR Gas Man

The other day a friend said to us: "Why should you advertise? You get all the gas business there is."

We are glad he asked this question. Perhaps you, too, would like to know why. Here is our answer:

It is not sufficient that we merely give good service, be courteous and make friends. We want to dispel prejudice and misunderstanding from the minds of the public by continually stating the facts about our business.

We believe it our duty to let the public know the real nature of our business and the aims and ideals of the men engaged in that business. There is no mystery about it, nothing that we would wish to cover up. Then who not advertise it?

Like the man on the witness stand we can say: "It's the easiest thing in the world to tell the truth when there is nothing but the truth to tell."

ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATED BY MISS EMERSON'S SCHOOL

Armistice Day was celebrated by the pupils of Miss Emerson's school with a representation of the Disarmament Conference. It was planned and written by the members of the seventh and eighth classes, and then presented by them with an interest and zeal not unworthy of the important folk now meeting at Washington.

Miss Emerson's pupils made up their minds that the smaller nations ought to be consulted, as well as the four great ones invited by the President, and that if we were so much concerned over the treatment of China in the League of Nations, we must surely hear what China has to say. Therefore their delightful scene was made vivid by the presence, side by side, of a Japanese and a Chinese envoy, properly costumed. Switzerland was with Italy, Holland had her say about the mastery of the seas, sitting close to John Bull, while France and Belgium, as the supreme sufferers from war, had places of honor. President Harding and Secretary Hughes had dignified representatives from among the younger boys, while the Red Cross, the American Army and Navy were also at hand. America was hostess.

A striking feature of the morning was the introduction of Mille, Alsace-Lorraine, Madame Lazelle, in the costume of her native country. She told the children about the ceremonial of burial for the unknown soldier at the great Arc de Triomphe in Paris, and assured them that France never wants any more war. It is impossible for Americans to realize what the war has meant to suffering Europe. An amusing note was struck by one of the envoys who read a paper purporting to come from the former Kaiser, describing his meeting with Julius Caesar and Napoleon, and affirming that he had quite enough of trying to conquer the world. The younger children marched and sang as French and Belgians, glad that war was done. Patriotic songs were sung, including the Marseillaise, in French. Of the wholly original poems read by several pupils, we site a few verses.

The war is over
The fighting has ceased,
And we hope forever
There will be peace.

And that is why we have to-day
The army and navy march in array.
The guns have stopped booming,
The wounded stopped sighing,
And flowers are blooming
Where soldiers were lying.

—Betty Willett.

Now the booming of guns is silenced,
It is Armistice Day, the day peace was signed,
The day of the great American meeting;
Ah, let us pray that it will turn out well.

—Adele Webre.

Hero of the late world war,
We honor now thy name,
With hearts in prayer uplifted,
We glory in thy name.

The old great curse of war
Shall yield to wondrous peace,
To all the struggling nations,
Henceforth a new release.

Arms from the wicked we shall take
By force if need there be,
May blessed peace forever reign
In air, on earth, on sea.

—Virginia Milbury.

The guns have ceased
Bells of peace loudly ring
Liberty is increased Loudly the bells of peace will ring.

Proudly name the ships will come
With stories of the victory;
Gaily the people throng to meet them,
Arms are laid down for peace.

—Mollie Wright.

THE COTTER'S SATURDAY NIGHT

Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Winchester Teachers' Club, the Scottish Musical Comedy Company of Boston, presented, in the Town Hall, the "Cotter's Saturday Night" to a large and appreciative audience. The sketch which was written by Mr. John Daniels, one of the company, gave opportunity for a most varied program and served as a vehicle for introducing many of the old Scotch songs. A number of our Winchester people had heard the entertainment at the Boston City Club and not only heartily recommended it, but were eager to hear it again.

The scene was set in a peasant's kitchen in the later part of the eighteenth century. It presented the simple pleasures of a "Saturday night" among the plain, country folk of Scotland. The family circle was complete. Jeanne Hunter Tanner was the Cotter's wife, with her whole souled motherliness, was a "mither" after the heart of any home lover. Her rich contralto voice was well adapted to the old Scotch songs. John E. Daniels, who took the part of the master of the house, was a most realistic cotter. He added much to the variety of the evening in its humor as well as in its more serious elements. His interpretation of the Twenty-third Psalm in "The Lord is my Shepherd" was one of many artistically executed parts of the sketch. Margaret Alexander, the daughter, and Victor Gilbert, the laird's son, as the lover charmed their hearers both in their manner and with their music. Daniel Ross, as Tammas the neighbor, created much merriment with his bad bargains, his eccentricities, and zest for checkers. His spirited music on his "fiddle" made the Scottish reel effective.

The old Scotch songs were most enjoyable. Many in the audience would have been glad of an entire program of them as they were so pleasingly given by the well trained voices. Mrs. Alice Pillsbury Gilbert, accompanist, interpreted skillfully the Scottish spirit in her rendering. The sketch as a whole represented successfully the spirit of Robert Burns' famous poem from which it takes its name. The simplicity, the kindness, the light in the humorous, the appreciation of those basic principles, work, thrift, godliness, and contentment with simple things, which have made Scotland the staunch and enduring nation she has always been, were evident throughout.

NOVEMBER

Stopped is the growth which caused Earth's living pictures fleet,
As though the heart within it paused Before another beat.

Wild geese the skies are winging
In arrow-like array
With honks instead of singing,
Like calls for right of way.

To summer lands they're gliding,
Unerring course they make,
As tho a home-star guiding,
Showed them the way to take.

K. OF C. NOTES

At the regular meeting of Winchester Council Monday evening District Deputy Henchy was present and gave a very interesting exposition of parliamentary ruling. A first degree is scheduled for the next meeting, Dec. 5, at White's Hall.

The following committee on athletics was appointed: James Valley, Frank Valley, Rev. Joseph Quigley, Walter Shaughnessy, Jackie Hevey, John McKenzie and Gus McFeeley. It is hoped that every member will aid this committee in an effort to revive the basketball games that went into the discard sometime ago for lack of a place to practice in. A bowling team would also be a great addition to the council. Other sports such as baseball, football, etc., will be taken up in their seasons.

According to the report of Chairman Edmund Goggin of the Building Association, the work of plastering has been somewhat delayed in the new building on account of the slow work of installing a new heater. Undoubtedly a few more weeks will see the finish as the carpenters started in this week to lay the floors.

A strenuous campaign to make every member a stockholder in the enterprise is being undertaken by a committee of three very energetic workers: James Valley, Henry Longfield and John S. O'Leary, P. G. K. Now is the time for each and every member to demonstrate his loyalty to his home council as he has in the past to all national K. of C. drives.

The committee in charge of subscription books on the cane presented to this council by King Albert of Belgium expect to have all books on this article turned in at the minstrel show Jan. 12, 1922 for a drawing to take place after the show.

Mr. Luke P. Glendon, manager of the minstrel show, gave a very encouraging report of the progress made by his committee. The show is shaping up well under the direction of "Decker" Thornton, who is especially pleased with the well attended rehearsals and the talent displayed by the younger stars. Many of our old-time favorites are in the cast: Jack Fitzgerald, Clarence Dunbury, Charley O'Connell and others. The management hopes to secure the services of Mr. Harry Cox in one of his original specialty acts, and also expects to get in touch with the popular soloist, Mr. William Coty. No effort is being spared to make this show a good clean exhibition of the best talent in town, and also a tremendous financial success.

To offset the great expense necessary to stage such a large affair, a series of whists will be run during the coming month. The final one will be a turkey whist shortly before Christmas. Announcement of dates will be made by the committee as soon as possible.

NO MEN WANTED

At the Frank Club entertainment held in Waterfield Hall Friday evening, Nov. 18, three young ladies gave an interesting play, with the above title. The three bachelor maid's were Miss Elizabeth Armstrong, Miss Winifred Bent and Miss Mary Hodge, who cleverly acted their parts trying to convince each other and themselves that no men were wanted. They proved to be hopeless cases and finally gave up to the inevitable. During the play there were saxophone solos by Miss Armstrong and singing by the three.

Previous to the play a supper was served, under the direction of Mrs. A. L. Brown and Mrs. A. P. Helburn. This was the first attempt by the Methodists since occupying the hall, to have anything of this nature, but it proved a success in every way. The tables were arranged in a wheel design and tastefully decorated with candles and bouquets. A bountiful supply of good things pleased everybody. During the supper a trio, consisting of Messrs. Gigliotti, Wildberger and Arnold rendered music which was much appreciated.

FOR JUNIOR ATHLETICS

A citizens' committee for Junior Athletics in Winchester schools was formed at a meeting held in the Wadleigh School on Tuesday evening.

The object of the committee is to support properly supervised athletics for the boys and girls of the 6th, 7th and 8th grades in the schools of Winchester, so that the boys and girls may have opportunities similar to those offered by the larger private day and boarding schools of New England.

For several weeks Mr. James F. Miller of Harvard University has been coming to Winchester at the close of school in the afternoons and instructing the boys in soccer football on Ginn's Field. The students are divided into four athletic clubs and eight soccer football teams have been formed with the following captains and managers: 6th Grade Teams, Blacks, Mgr. Gordon Smith, Capt. Latham Owens; Blues, Mgr. Herbert A. Wadleigh, Jr., Capt. Charles Easton; Reds, Mgr. Flavel Shurtleff, Capt. Frank Parsons; Orange, Mgr. Donald Pynn, Capt. Henry Knowlton. 7th and 8th Grade Teams, Blacks, Mgr. Wm. Martin, Capt. Gordon Tobey; Blues, Mgr. Geo. Corey, Capt. Granberry Lewis; Reds, Mgr. Raymond Bartlett, Capt. John Pace; Orange, Mgr. Richard Dow, Capt. Louis Rondina.

This is only the beginning. The plan is to have skating and ice hockey in the winter and baseball, track sports and tennis in the Spring.

The expenses of this enterprise are to be met by subscriptions from the citizens.

The committee is as follows: William S. Packer, Chairman, Herbert A. Wadleigh, Treasurer, Clarence P. Whorf, Josef Sanberg, James W. Russell, Jr., Executive Committee.

Present at the meeting for organization were Walter H. Bentley, Charles H. Eastwick, Charles A. Gleason, Norman Hunnewell, Harry S. Parsons, Bowen Tufts, William Wyman and Carl A. Woods. James F. Fitzgerald was prevented from attending but sent a message promising his support to the movement.

Mr. Raymond A. Pinkham, Master of the Wadleigh School, explained to the gentlemen present the great need which will be met by the work of this committee. It will mean a finer all round education for our boys and girls.

The expense of the committee will be for athletic directors and for athletic equipment. Subscriptions should be sent to Mr. Herbert A. Wadleigh, treasurer, Sheffield road, Winchester.

WINCHESTER BOARD OF TRADE

At the regular monthly meeting of the Directors of the Winchester Board of Trade, held in Lyceum Hall, Tuesday, Nov. 22 it was voted that the attention of the members be called to a change in the By-Laws, making the date of members' meetings the first Tuesday of every calendar month.

Arrangements were made for the next members' meeting, to be held on Tuesday, December 6th, in Lyceum Hall. There will be an informal talk on the fundamentals of Town Government; the meeting is to be open for general discussion of town affairs. There will be a discussion also of change of name of the organization, and the campaign for a membership drive by the present members will be announced. A large attendance is looked for. Light refreshments will be served.

"THE LION AND THE MOUSE"

"The Lion and the Mouse," a play in four acts, was presented by the Brookline players under the direction of coach Charles J. Harrold and under the auspices of St. Mary's Catholic Society in the Town Hall on Wednesday night before an audience which taxed the capacity of the hall.

This organization of players has previously been seen to advantage here in excellent productions, and their visit at this season was welcomed by a large number of residents who were eager to again witness their work. Under Mr. Harrold's able direction their performance was better than ever.

The cast was as follows:

THE SCHOOL BUILDING PROGRAM COMMITTEE

The Committee is holding series of public hearings in the different school centers. These hearings are planned to bring out a full discussion of all matters relating to a school building program. The program which is suggested at these hearings is a tentative one and your Committee wishes it clearly understood that it has adopted no definite program, but wishes to obtain the views of all those who are interested so that the best possible plan may be adopted by the town.

There are two phases of this subject which the Committee is considering, first, a comprehensive school building program for the present and future needs of the town, second, the consideration of what buildings should be constructed at the present time. On both of these matters the Committee desires the opinions of all interested.

On the question as to the number of buildings which should be constructed there are certain advantages in constructing three or four buildings at one time rather than one or two. The construction of three or four buildings would eliminate three or four of the old wooden school houses; this would provide in different sections of the town a kindergarten and elementary school building so that nearly all the children through the sixth grade would have a school house within one-half or three-quarters of a mile of their homes; this would enable the school department to reorganize the elementary schools and build up a constructive educational program; and there would be no doubt a substantial saving in the construction of a larger number of buildings. Of course the expense of constructing a larger number of buildings would be somewhat greater but before deciding on a school building program, the town should consider carefully all the advantages and all the disadvantages.

Another question which the Committee is considering is whether it would not be wiser to have this matter presented for action at a special town meeting, perhaps the latter part of January, rather than at the annual meeting in March. There are reasons why it might seem desirable to have a special meeting. First, this is the most important matter which has come up for consideration for many years and it should be discussed and decided upon its merits at a special meeting without any connection with all the matters which come up at the annual meeting. Second, whatever buildings the town may decide to erect at this time, it seems desirable that plans should be made and contracts let early in the Spring as this would be a more favorable time than later on in the Spring. Third, if the contracts were let by early Spring the new buildings would probably be ready in the Fall of 1923, whereas if the contracts were not let until late in the Spring or Summer it would materially delay the completion of the buildings.

The Committee desires to have all these matters discussed at the hearings which are now being held.

CAR OFF TRACK IN CENTRE

One again the centre crossing was fortunate in not being blocked by a freight wreck, when a car jumped the track just north of the gates and came to a stop at the foot path Saturday noon. The car was about in the centre of a string being hauled down the Woburn branch by the shifter. Just after it passed the switch tower in some way the forward trucks left the rails and it ran along over the ties until it reached the switch at the path. Here the train was stopped with the wheels of the car tightly wedged in the switch. Had the train continued the car would have piled the train up on the crossing.

The accident occurred around quarter before twelve, just before the northern express passed. Fortunately the car did not block the outward track. The engineer was not aware that the car was off the track, but a brakeman at the end of the train noticed it bumping over the ties and applied the air brakes.

The car was empty and might have been easily replaced, but for the fact that the truck was badly damaged. The inward track was tied up for some time until a wrecking train from Boston arrived and took the car away. During the tie-up, inward trains were sent through over the outward tracks.

This is the second time within a few weeks that a wreck has occurred at the centre crossing, it being fortunate in both instances that the crossing was left clear.

REGAN—CARROLL

John J. Regan of the Winchester police force and Miss Margaret H. Carroll, were married at St. Mary's rectory Monday evening at 5 o'clock by the Rev. Father Fitzgibbon. Mr. James F. Regan of Cambridge, a brother of the groom was best man and Miss Mary McCarron of Woburn was bridesmaid. The young couple were the recipients of many gifts including a beautiful cut glass set from Mr. Regan's brother officers of the Winchester department. After a short wedding trip they will reside in Winchester.

KEAN—MURRAY

A very pretty autumnal wedding took place Sunday evening, when Vera Murray, daughter of Mrs. Delia Murray of 93 Salem street, Woburn, became the bride of Daniel J. Kean, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kean of 11 Linden street. The ceremony was performed at St. Charles Rectory, Woburn, at 4:00 p. m., the Rev. John P. Gorham officiating. The double ring ceremony was used.

The couple were attended by Miss May Murray, a sister of the bride, and Lawrence Kean, a brother of the groom. The bride was attractively attired in white satin canton crepe, wore a veil caught up with orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet. The bridesmaid was gowned in gray canton crepe and wore a silver hat. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride, which was attended by one hundred guests from Wakefield, Malden, Lynn, Somerville, Cambridge, Quincy, Winchester, Lowell and Woburn. Mrs. Murray and Mr. and Mrs. Kean assisted in the receiving. The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion, and the young couple were the recipients of many useful gifts.

After the ceremony the couple left on a wedding tour to New York and Atlantic City. Upon their return they will take up residence at 93 Salem street, and will be home to their friends after Nov. 28th.

The bride is a graduate of Woburn High School Class of 1915 and of Burdett's College. She was employed as a stenographer in the office of the Quaker Leather Co. of Boston. The groom was an overseas veteran and one of the first 50,000 to land on foreign soil. He is a member of the Winchester Council K. of C., Winchester Post of the American Legion, Woburn Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Crescent Social Club.

TEAM WORK and COOPERATION are the great essentials necessary for 100% efficiency. The Postal Service cannot be made 100% efficient unless it has the cooperation of the public.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

At the all day sewing meeting of the Winchester Union last week the bags for the sailors were finished and a comforter tied. At noon the usual halt for luncheon was made and at 2 p. m. the business session was held. At this the chief feature was the giving of reports of the State W. C. T. U. convention at Worcester by the delegates, Miss Eugenia E. Elliott and Miss Maud McLellan. The latter spoke from the standpoint of a first timer, as this was her first state convention and her report was very interesting. Miss Elliott was able to give a comparative view and together they gave a good idea of some of the happenings of the meeting.

At the recent meeting of the State Executive it was voted to ask the various Unions of the state to transfer the names of former Life Members, whom they especially desire to honor, to the list of Memorial Members. In accordance with this suggestion the Winchester Union voted to place the name of Mrs. Almira A. Rowe on the Memorial list, as to her more than any other woman, was due the success of the Winchester Union in its earlier days.

The Winchester Union has recently lost two of its members by death, one of them, Mrs. Jennie Elliott, a long time active and interested member whose ill health of late years had prevented her taking an active part. She will be well remembered by many of the members. The other, Mrs. Page, of the Home for the Aged, had been a member since she became a resident at the Home and is known to those who have visited there or attended the spring meetings held at that place.

The passage of the Anti-Beer Bill at last is a cause for rejoicing. The large majority in its favor showed the weakness of the rules that permit the filibustering that has delayed its passage.

Many contributions of fruit and canned goods, including jellies and "sich" were received and sent to the Flower Mission for its Thanksgiving celebration, carrying cheer and comfort to the sick and poor of the city.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Justice is sometimes blind and is so slow in arriving that we suspect it is also lame.

The trouble with men who try to do a lot of things at once is that they never do anything at once.

Some of our modern girls do not believe in putting off until tomorrow any paint and rouge that she can put on today.

Some men never pass a dog without patting it, but seldom say an encouraging word to their wives.

CAVE MAN LAUGHS AT RENT MAN

Cave houses are coming in style again. Scarcity of housing accommodations in the district along Lakes Maggiore and Como, Italy, has driven many peasants to dig houses for themselves in the hillsides where they live in primitive simplicity, newspaper dispatches say.

The inhabitants of most of the countries of the world have at some stage in their development lived in cave dwellings. A belt of such dwellings extends from China across India to Asia Minor and Arabia, thence along the shores of the Mediterranean to the Canary Islands, the West Indies, Mexico, and North and South America. In a few places today mankind lives in this simple and inexpensive fashion, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Have a Cave, Welcome to Traveler

On Easter Island, in the Pacific, where innumerable caves and grottoes have been formed by the washing away of soft deposits which lie beneath the hard volcanic strata, housing accommodations present no problem. Many of the natives sleep in the open or in these caves and cheerfully point them out to the traveler as the logical shelter for him during the night.

In one of the wildest portions of northern Africa, near Guermessa, on the top of a sugar-loaf mountain whose sides rise precipitously for hundreds of feet a fierce and warlike race now live for three months in the year in stone caves hollowed out in the mountain sides. The trail to the dwellings has been worn as smooth as glass by centuries of constant use, which makes an approach difficult for man and beast. These mountain men have cut separate establishments for themselves, their wives and their children, and have furnished them with rugs from Kairowan and Persia and numerous leather cushions stuffed with sheep's wool.

Troglodyte "Trusties" Guard Homes

Suspicious of other cave-dwelling people near them and hating the stranger, they spend the remaining nine months in the year wandering with their flocks of long-haired goats, broad-tailed sheep and camels on the borders of the Sahara. Down in the valleys too there are plantations of superb olive and fig trees which they protect from the other troglodytes during this season, while their houses in the mountains are being guarded by a few trusty men.

At Matmata and Medinine in Tunisia are extraordinary underground pit dwellings. When he is told that he is approaching one of these villages the traveler experiences a queer sensation at seeing nothing on the landscape except crater-like holes in the earth which look like they might have been caused by the explosion of enormous shells. As he peeps over the rim of these holes in the earth he sees below him the intimate life of the family, their dogs and camels.
This is their common living room, which is entered from above by a slanting subterranean channel. Other rooms enter into it by means of lateral passageways and are sometimes excavated one above the other for two or three stories. It is said that as many as 1200 people live in these pits.

Cave Dwellers Have Sky Scrapers

There have been cave dwellers in Asia Minor since long before the time of Xenophon, who says that their houses were underground with entrances like wells, and that in them the members of the household lived with goats, cows and chickens. Here too they stored the hay for their animals and their own supplies of wheat, barley and vegetables. In the region around Mount Argaeus in Cappadocia, southern Turkey, there are cone dwellers living today whose habitations perhaps more nearly resemble the American cliff houses to be found in Arizona and New Mexico than any others in existence, and were used as habitations as far back as 2000 B. C.

The chambers of these dwellings hollowed out in the solid stone are spacious, and the stairways resemble round tunnels leading from each floor to that above it. Houses have been in some instances made nine stories high, but usually they are not so pretentious.

The country of the troglodytes of Asia Minor is inaccessible, and the visitor must make his way over mountains and past rivers when his path is discernible only a few feet in front of him.

Perhaps the greatest and most beautiful of the cliff cities built since the beginning of time is Petra, on the old caravan route from Damascus to Mecca. Though it is unoccupied today, Edomites, Phoenicians, Egyptians, and Romans have carved in artistic designs on the rose-red walls of its temples, amphitheatres, shrines, and houses records of their successive occupations.

French Cave Houses Now Store Rooms

Europe too has her cave dwellers.
Near Tours, France, there are a few caves that are inhabited, but for the most part the older cave rooms, possibly used by the Aquitani of Caesar's time, are used as storage rooms with the dwellings built out in front of them. In Spain there are many artificial caves, formerly inhabited, which are now used by Spanish gypsies.

In the interior mountainous region of Gran Canaria in the Canary Islands there are numbers of the natives in cave houses whose doorways stare out like huge black eyes on the face of the cliffs. These mountain shepherds have built little terraces in front of their dwellings and hedged them about with cactus and yucca to keep the children from tumbling down the side of the mountain. On the terraces they have set up primitive ovens and here for the most part the family lives.

Many of the American Indians lived in natural caves and excavated dwellings in cliffs, some of the most noteworthy being those of the Chaco Canyon and Mesa Verde regions. Columbus found cave dwellers in certain portions of the West Indies, and even today on King Island in the Aleutians a colony of hardy Eskimo fishermen live in a settlement of about forty dwellings out in the cliffs overlooking the sea.

Right Giving.

but he gives most who gives best. If will give freely; and what I want in my hand, supply by my heart. He gives well that gives willingly.—Arthur Warwick.

hara desert into the Mediterranean sea and was lined with prosperous communities.

FROM TIPS, U. S. A. TO CUM- SHAW, CHINA

"The tip has its geography no less than the coin with which it is paid.
Extending it may be a graceful courtesy in one part of the world and a matter of a forced assessment in another; a virtue on one side of a political boundary and a crime on the other," according to a bulletin on the tipping customs in various countries issued by the National Geographic Society.

In 1917, a few weeks after the long awaited Russian Revolution had started, the bulletin continues, American travelers in Petrograd cheerfully paid a percentage of their bills for service and were spared the necessity of buying their hats several times over as modern man does if he frequents some restaurants in America.
It was almost impossible to give tips in Russia then. One man was questioned regarding the matter and his reply was that if he took a tip, he could not call the giver "tovarische"— he could not exact a gratuity from a "comrade." During eleven months in Russia, the tipping bill of one traveler would not have satisfied a metropolitan bell boy for showing a guest to a "free" check room.

Adding a Service Charge

Last summer, in Prague, a charge of 20 per cent for service was added to hotel bills. This high rate was due to the fact that the price of rooms was strictly regulated but the price of wages was not. In Carlsbad, now called, but little known as Karlovy Vary, at one of the best restaurants the Czechoslovakian waiters also refused to accept tips. The 15 per cent added to the bill satisfied them and they seemed glad to be able to look one in the eye instead of in the palm. The 15 per cent was as much a part of the bill as a cover charge or the cost of bread and butter, and could be counted on in advance.

Such self discipline on the part of those whose fingers have had fly-paper qualities in former years may be a monopoly of the Slavs, for there are few places where a servant places self respect ahead of his financial interests. And there are few expense-account travelers, or others who do not have to count the cost of the added 10 per cent but like the sensation of doing out largesse.

In West China a few years ago chair coolies, after many days of hard toil, were delighted to receive a little present to be used in providing a pork feast. Throughout remote regions of the world, the gratitude that is evoked by a small present gratuitously given is very charming to one whose pocketbook is the subject of siege every time he makes a move in civilized zones.

Tipping One's Way in Trieste

Last summer a traveler arrived at Trieste at midnight to find the city in darkness and without trams because of a strike in the electrical plant. Another strike had wiped the carriages and taxicabs off the streets.
For a tip, the custodian of the baggage room opened his storage chamber, for another tip a porter carried the checked baggage from the train.
The only consolation left to the midnight arrival was that the money was cheap.

At two thirty a. m. the traveler was in bed and out a fifty lire tip although the price of the room was only 18 lire a day. A week later this traveler was in the prize hostelry of Venice blessing the Italian race and the founders of the city because the porter at the desk allowed him to pay for a room without forcing him to pay for the privilege.

Throughout the East, tipping is so general and so moderate in the scale of donations that it seldom causes embarrassment or hard feelings. But the outgoing guest sees more servants that the incoming traveler dreams of. Speeding the parting guest is Asia's one best bet. The most satisfactory plan for the traveler is to hire a bearer, tell him in advance how much he will allow for tips and then let the tactful employee gamble his desire for gold against his willingness to have his ancestry cursed unto the dawn of time. On one Indian railway, a servant recently offered to have a special car added to the train for the accommodation of a single traveler for a consideration of one rupee. The traveler refused the offer indignantly and suffered much inconvenience because of changes which he would have avoided by accepting the princely gift of a private car. Later he found that as a holder of a through ticket he was entitled to the car anyway.

Where Hotel Rooms are Scarce

In Central Europe, a hotel room is a prize to be won by painstaking effort. In Bucharest one may have to visit so many hotels that his carriage bill will make other expenses seem impossible. After such a fruitless search for quarters a traveler recently obtained a letter from a cabinet minister to the Chief of Police. After that worthy had risen from his noonday nap, he sent a police sergeant with the searcher demanding in

One sometimes has pleasant memories of gratuities given. A tourist fresh from college, was "doing" Europe cheaply some years ago. In Liverpool, he sought a modest hotel and was given a very satisfactory room. In the morning he was so impressed with the way the maid looked out for his every want and with her general eagerness to please that he tipped her a shilling.

"You will pardon my saying so," she said on receiving it, "but in moderate priced hotels like this one, a three penny bit to the maid would be quite enough."

Probably First Lottery.

The first lottery of which there is any authentic record was one held at Bruges in 1446 by some Italian merchants, who, possibly suffering from depression in trade and being ignorant of modern clearance sales and "bargain basements," endeavored to dispose of their wares in this novel way.

Notwithstanding the disagreeable weather yesterday, with a heavy fall of sleet, rain and snow, many people were out to witness the sports scheduled nearby. The Malden-Medford football game attracted the largest number, and Winchester did much to swell the large attendance. The first real snow fall brought the children out in numbers with their sleds, the icy streets furnishing good—and very dangerous—coasting.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE

NEW JERSEY became the third state just six days after Pennsylvania had formally adopted the Constitution. This territory, which covers 8,224 square miles, originally was a part of the province of New Netherlands. In 1664, after the English conquest of New Netherlands, the duke of York sold the southern portion to Lord Berkeley and Sir George Carteret. The latter had won some distinction as governor of the little island of Jersey in the English channel, and it was in his honor that the new province came to be called New Jersey. The eastern portion, that about Newark, was settled by Carteret and the territory to the southwest, where Burlington and Trenton now stand, fell to Berkeley. After a few years Berkeley sold his share to a party of Quakers and two distinct provinces were formed, called East and West Jersey. They were reunited, however, in 1702, and became a single province under the direct rule of the English crown.

First Tannery in America.

In 1630 the first tannery in America was built in Virginia. A second one was established a few years later at Lynn, Mass. The tanning industry was well represented among the early settlers of Massachusetts for it is recorded that no fewer than 51 tanners had come over to the new colony before 1650. Their labors were in great demand. Skins accumulated so rapidly that in 1640 it was found necessary to pass a law "that every hide and skin should be dried before it corrupts, and sent where they may be tanned and dressed." The tanning industry also received encouragement throughout the colonies by many laws forbidding the exportation of untanned leather. Tanneries flourished everywhere and by 1810 their annual output was $20,000,000.

A Ball of Water.
A soap bubble is merely a hollow ball of water containing air. The soap, partly dissolved, forms a very thin film or skin over the air which is endeavoring to force its way through it. This air exerts an equal pressure in all directions, and forces the soap-film out an equal distance from the center of the compressed air, thus forming a perfect sphere or ball. After the bubble has been floating about for a few moments, the water drips toward the bottom of the ball and collects there in drops. The weight of these drops pulls the bubble out of shape and increases the pressure of the air inside to such an extent that it breaks through the film and the bubble bursts.

AN INTERESTING TRIP ON OAHU'S SCENIC RAILWAY
HAWAIIAN ISLANDSHonolulu, Hawaii,
November 5, 1921.

Editor of the Star:

On the Northwest coast of Oahu at Waialua is located "Haleiwa," (Hale-house, and iwa-beautiful) the best hotel outside of Honolulu. It is reached by two routes—by automobile as described in my letter of September 14, and by the Oahu narrow-gauge Railroad which skirts the sea-coast for almost the entire distance of 55 miles; from Waialua the railway continues for 15 miles further to Kahuku, where the line terminates.

We left Honolulu at 9:15 in an observation car for one of the most delightful sight-seeing trips in the Islands, not only in point of spectacular scenery, but in the extent and variety of the agricultural industries to be seen along the route. Seated in comfortably cushioned wicker chairs on the open rear end of the car, which was protected from sun, or rain, by a canvas canopy, we had an unobstructed view of everything; of mountain, valley, plain and the blue Pacific. Within a short distance of the Railway station we passed the largest pineapple canneries in the Islands and probably in the world—next came the new Oahu Prison, a large, fine looking cement building; crossing a long bridge which spans Kalihi Bay we saw Japanese men who were fishing with long bamboo rods; this immense bay presents such good possibilities that a project is under consideration for eventually connecting it with the present harbor of Honolulu, which is becoming too small for the increasing commercial activities of the Island.

Now on the mountain side of the track and stretching along for miles is the extensive and beautiful country estate of Mr. S. M. Damon, known as Moanalua (it is sometimes facetiously referred to as "Sam Damon's back yard"). He is one of the wealthiest of Honolulu's citizens and for years was the head of Bishop & Co., the bankers, but failing mental faculties have caused retirement from all activities, and I am told that he does not now even write his name.

The first stop was made at Puuloa, which is the entrance to Pearl Harbor Naval Base, the largest under the American flag. The dry dock here which was formally opened by Secretary Daniels in August, 1919, is said to be the only one ever built on coral and was considered at the time of its completion to be one of America's greatest engineering achievements. Other features of this immense naval reservation are the Submarine Base, Aviation Island, Floating Crane, Marine Barracks, Fort Kamehameha, and the big Wireless Station which converses daily with Washington, D. C., and Tokio, Japan. As the railroad describes a semi-circle about this land-locked naval station, one has a fine view of it from a variety of angles.

Leaving Puuloa we passed thru Aiea, which has several thousand acres of sugar cane that yielded 17,350 tons of sugar in 1920. From Aiea to Kalaheo is only a mile, and here a change is abruptly made from sugar to rice cultivation, and for the next four or five miles the low, flooded lands presented a veritable sea of yellow-green fields of waving grain about three-fourths matured. As is generally known, rice is planted in soft, muddy soil under water and grows to maturity in that environment; the growers are both Chinese and Japanese, and they experience much annoyance and loss from the birds as the grains approach maturity, and in addition to the ordinary scarecrows and bits of white cloth waving in the wind, they have a very crude, though rather ingenious, scheme to keep the birds away—a rough little tower is erected in the center of the rice-patch and from this outlook radiates numerous cords, which extend to posts on the outer margins of the field, from which are suspended, at intervals, old tin cans so arranged that when a person stationed in the tower jerks the string, these tins swing and rattle against each other for the entire length of that particular line, which of course frightens away any birds nearby; as the process is repeated from cord to cord the field is kept clear of the robbers so long as the operator is active; the women are usually detailed for this work, and the sight is rather amusing.

At Wainahu, about four miles distant from Kalaheo, we came again to the cane fields and a very large plantation, mill, and quite a village settlement of white-washed huts housing the laborers and their families. From statistical sources which are reliable it is evident that this plantation, The Oahu Sugar Co., is the largest on the Island, as its production in 1920 was over 40,000 tons. Its water supply is a remarkable feature, and worthy of special mention, in this country of wonderful novelties and surprising achievements, for this plantation receives its water from the other side of the Island by means of a series of aqueducts and tunnels which cover a total distance of over 20 miles. Wainahu Tunnel which runs thru the Koolau Mountains is nearly 12 miles long and its capacity is placed at approximately 100,000,000 gallons of water every 24 hours. I was told that the entire cost of building this water system including the 19 mile tunnel, was $2,500,000. Surely a gigantic commercial project. It is from here, Wainahu, that the Railroad sends out a branch line of about 12 miles which goes up to Wahiawa (where I visited Mr. White) for pineapples to be brought down to Honolulu daily to the canneries.

The next stop of any importance was at Ewa, where there is another large sugar mill and a plantation of 30,000 acres which turned out about 20,000 tons last year. It was here that Rev. Artemas Bishop came with his family in 1836, removing from Kailua, Hawaii, where he had been located since his arrival in the Islands in 1823.

From Ewa the scene again changed from cane fields and was succeeded by a stretch of about 12 miles devoted to the growth of sisal plants on a coral plain some 30 feet above the sea. We then passed thru several miles of forest of the Mexican Mesquite, known here as the Kiawe tree, which thrives in dry and sandy soil and yields firewood and beans; these latter are used extensively for food for horses and cattle, the pod resembling our golden wax bean. These trees were introduced here in 1837 and have since become very plentiful.

We emerged from the woods and came to a long stretch of sandy beach which the railroad now followed to Nanakuli, a small settlement about midway between Honolulu and Waialua, my destination. At Nanakuli there are many small experimental homesteads, where attempts are being made to raise poultry, cotton, tobacco, and small farming in general. The soil is very sandy at sea level, but the valleys appeared to be fertile and productive. As we had now rounded the southern point of the Waianae Mountains and turned to the North, our course was along the sea shore for the balance of the journey.

At the town of Waianae, five miles beyond Nanakuli, we stopped for about 15 minutes while the train crew rested and the little engine leisurely took water. The attendant on the observation car brought us slices of delicious pineapple which was very acceptable. This little town marks the location of the oldest sugar plantation on Oahu, and before the advent of the railroad in 1895 the sugar was sent to Honolulu by small schooners for transshipment to the mainland; but now with railroad facilities for handling its production, the plantation's acreage has largely increased. Mt. Kaala, over 4,000 feet and the highest peak on Oahu, is in the background, and nearby in the valley of Makaha extensive experiments in the cultivation of coffee, lemons and oranges were conducted, but all have proved financial failures.

Makua is a very small place only two miles beyond, and looked very barren and forlorn. Here there was a sharp line of demarcation where the long stretch of clean, smooth, sandy beach ended and the rough, rugged black lava began; as sharply defined a separation as is noticeable when entering and leaving the Gulf Stream in temperate latitudes. This clean-cut distinction at Makua indicates that at some long-ago period a lava flow of many miles in width came down and entered the sea. It now is carved into fantastic and formidable shapes by centuries of continuous sea action, and the surf, driven in by the continuous Northeast trades, rushes over the ridges and into the hollows without respite.

The scene was immensely fascinating, and as the mountains literally descend into the sea and the railroad bed frequently was laid in grooves cut into the steep slope just above the reach of the ocean, we seemed to be almost within touch of the tumbling billows. Here the water was as clear and clean as spring-water and showed the variety of shades from dark blue to turquoise. Kaena Point is the most westerly land in Oahu and is a barren, sandy waste, having a small light-house at the extreme end and no sign of habitation for miles. This light requires attention but twice a year, burning, of course, day and night, and using acetylene gas. At this point the railroad makes an acute angled turn and then runs due East for several miles with extremely rugged, and almost weird, scenery and formations on the inland side, and distant perhaps two miles.

Between these volcanic spires and ridges and the sea, lies the plain of Kawaihapai, once thickly populated by old-time Hawaiians and now a silent wilderness, in which the ruins of ancient native temples, and scattering evidences of the old villages, may be found. Near-by this plain the top of one of the hills is a tableland plateau of some 3,000 acres, and excellent in soil and elevation for pineapple cultivation. A wagon road leading to the summit is now under construction and plainly visible from the train.

Between Kawaihapai and Waialua we passed thru large groves of very thickly planted ironwood trees, which resemble our longleaf pines in appearance, but whose sap is not resinous. These trees are frequently planted in long, close-growing rows or hedges and being cut back to a height of about 15 feet, grow very compactly and serve as a wind-break for the protection of the railroad track from drifting beach sand. As we approach Waialua where "Haleiwa" is situated, it is seen that the plantation here extends from the base of the mountains for many miles East and South, and in 1920 produced 24,000 tons. 20,000,000 gallons of water drawn from the Wahiawa Dam are used on this estate for irrigation alone.

Leaving the train after a ride of two and a half hours at the little station named for the Hotel, I walked along a path shaded by date and coconut palms, passed over a rustic foot-bridge spanning a fresh-water stream, the Anahulu River, and came into the extensive grounds of Haleiwa, which looks more like a pretentious mansion or Country Club House than a hotel. It is one of the show-places of Oahu, and a popular resort with Honolulu's elite as well as the tourist visitor, offering the attractions of sea-fishing, splendid ocean bathing with a clean sand beach, clear water and a light surf. There is also a tennis court, golf course and large grounds with cottages set in luxuriant tropical growth. Meals are served upon the broad lanai, which looks out upon the Anahulu River, palms, the beach and the Pacific.

Somewhere about 1840 the Rev. John S. Emerson, one of the early missionaries, lived in Waialua. He came out from New Bedford in the ship "Averick," arriving at Honolulu on May 17, 1832, after a voyage of 172 days. There is a photograph of him in the Old Mission Home, taken in the latter years of his life, and showing him to be a fine looking sturdy old gentleman with a head of white hair that in thickness of growth might easily be the envy of any man. He had seven children, and for each child a coconut tree was planted. Six of these very tall trees still live and flourish at the probable age of 80 years, but the seventh has lost its top, though the tall stem still stands as bare and naked as any flag pole. Until within about 25 years the old home still existed in a fair state of preservation, but as time and the elements beset it, and repairs were not made, it has now gone into a state of ruin and decay.

In Waimea Canyon are hidden caves, used as burial places until our United States Government insisted upon regular interment, or cremation. Here may still be seen the gruesome relics of past Hawaiians, some lying in portions of old canoes, while hanks of hair, bones, and remnants of tapa (vegetable cloth) lie upon the shelves of stone, mute evidences of what was once life and animation, and now silent witnesses of the mutableness of human substance.

Despair Lurks
In Weak BloodCude's Pepto-Mangan,
the Blood-Builder,
Arouses Dull Faculties

Many a man and many a woman feels all out of sorts from thin, weakened blood. The least little thing goes wrong throws them into a wild form of despondency. Instead of bracing up and meeting ordinary difficulties, they are downed. Nerves are on edge. Appetite lags. Sleep is restless. They are weak and tired and dull. Poor blood works its havoc till the will loses its power. Few people who fall into habits of worry and despondency realize that most of their troubles are due to lack of endurance, to blood that has become weakened by overwork or straining.

Healthy men and women with rich, red blood see things brightly. They tackle life with zest and go along smilingly, full of eagerness and endurance.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan taken steadily restored the blood to its natural richness. It actually makes red corpuscles, the tiny particles in blood which makes it red. Druggists have Gude's Pepto-Mangan in liquid and tablet form. Advertisement.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING

November 21, 1921.

The Board met at 7:30 P. M. Present Messrs. Dolben, Blackham, Bond and Willey.

The records of the meeting of November 14 were read and approved.

Jurors 1921: The Chief of Police appeared with a venire calling for two men to serve as Traverse Jurors at the Superior Criminal Court to be held at Cambridge within and for our County of Middlesex on the first Monday of December next (Dec. 5, 1921). Messrs. Walter J. Tibbetts, 32 Vine street and Herbert Wadsworth, Jr., 182 Highland Avenue were drawn.

The Chief of Police appeared with a venire calling for two men to serve as Traverse Jurors at the Superior Civil Court now in session at Cambridge within and for our County of Middlesex, they to appear and attend said Court on Monday, November 28, 1921. Messrs. Delbert W. Estabrook, 5 Ridgely Road and William H. W. Bicknell, Arlington Street were drawn.

Acceptance of Streets and Building Lines (Woodside Road): The following persons appeared at the hearing called to further consider the acceptance of Woodside Road as a Town Way and also at the hearing called to consider the establishment of a building line on each side of this street its entire length:—

Messrs. G. N. Whittington, 8 Woodside Road; N. G. Hill, 45 Wildwood street; C. V. Williams, 5 Woodside road; H. E. Gleason, Woodside Road; Charles Gleason, representing himself and Charles Bruce; John Madocks, 3 Woodside Road; Mr. Rowe of the Planning Board and the Town Engineer. The hearing on the building line disclosed that there was no objection from the abutters present to an 18-foot building line on each side of the street. Hearing was then declared closed.

Building Lines (Mystic Ave): Upon a report from the Town Engineer that most of the abutters on Mystic Ave., had been interviewed and had expressed a willingness and desire to have a building line established on each side of this street its entire length, the Board passed the following vote:

On the petition of William R. Cowdery and others,

VOTED: that in the opinion of the Selectmen common convenience and necessity require that a building line be established on each side of Mystic Avenue its entire length, and that notice of our intention to lay-out such a building line and of a hearing to be held at the Selectmen's Room in the Town Hall Building, on December 12, 1921 at 8 P. M., be served as provided by law upon the owners of the land over which such building line is to be established.

Land Court VOTED: Whereas the vote passed at the last meeting of the Board in relation to the letter received from the Town Counsel, asking the instructions of the Board in regard to the pending petition of Mrs. Frank Patterson Smith for registration of the title to her land on Church street, and his appearance therein, was passed under a misapprehension of the facts, and upon further investigation, and the report of the Town Engineer, it appearing that the Town has no interest in the proceedings, said vote is hereby rescinded.

The meeting adjourned at 10:50 P. M.

George S. F. Bartlett,
Clerk of Selectmen.

The Great Seal of England.

The Great Seal of England employed by the sovereign, gives an almost unbroken series of beautiful little sculptures ranging over a thousand years. One of the earliest, the leaden seal of Canwall, about 800 A. D. is in the British museum. It is one of the very scarce relics of the Saxon hierarchy and is reported to have been brought from Italy. It became the property of the nation again in 1847. But the real threshold of British sigillography begins with the seal of Edward I. and its steady rise in technical beauty can be seen at the British museum, where the collection is complete.

Profitable Acquaintances.

"When are you going to settle down, son?" "I'm young yet, dad. I need a little more experience." "Getting acquainted with Broadway beauties isn't going to help you in business." "It might, dad. I'm thinking of selling limousines and sport cars to tired millionaires."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Using Wasted Energy.

A French scientist has installed in his home a scheme to provide himself with electricity without cost, beyond the initial cost of equipment. Upon his water-supply pipe, he has fitted a high-speed water turbine, which drives a dynamo charging a storage battery. Every time a tap is turned on in the house the stream of water is put to work at loading the battery which furnishes current for the electric lights and other purposes. "It is simply utilizing energy that is ordinarily wasted," says the inventor.

Mosquitoes in Holy Water.

Health authorities in parts of tropical America have been obliged to make special ordinances in regard to holy water urns in churches. Too often the water in these receptacles is not resupplied at intervals frequent enough, and the sacrilegious yellow fever mosquito lays her eggs in them. Thus they become a source of danger. To prevent such mischief, it is required that a small quantity of lamp kerosene should be kept in each holy water urn. This simple expedient makes it impossible for the wrigglers to survive.

G. O. P. BAZAAR

Under Auspices of Republican Women of Massachusetts at Copley Plaza Hotel, December 6, 7, 8 and 9

With contributors, purchasers and visitors, men and women from every part of the state, all headed for the G. O. P. Bazaar next week, the Copley Plaza promises to be a lively place. The tables for afternoon and evening bridge each day are in popular demand and Winchester women who have not engaged their tables should telephone Mrs. George H. Eaton, for reservations at once.

Winchester women who have promised contributions for the Baby Table in charge of Mrs. W. I. Palmer, should see that the articles reach the various solicitors by December 3, and each article should be marked with a fair selling price.

ANNUAL WESTERN MISSIONARY SALE

The Annual Sale of the Western Missionary Society was held Thursday afternoon at the Congregational church. A large number attended and the several tables were very busy and had many attractive bargains. Following were the tables and Committees:

EDISON COMPANY DOES GOOD WORK

The Edison Company is receiving compliments right and left on its excellent work in restoring service after the big storm. By 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon light was on in the centre and Main street section as far as the Woburn line, while power was on at the STAR office by three o'clock yesterday afternoon, at which time we started on this paper. Thus far the Edison Company has accomplished much that had been judged as absolutely impossible. Today a hundred men are working at top speed in opening other lines. The current was cleared as far as the Winchester Hospital early yesterday.

LEGION WILL ENTERTAIN

On Tuesday night December 20th the local post of the American Legion will be host to the men of Winchester at a "Father and Son Night." Sailor Ryan—probably the best known national speaker of the Legion—is expected to be present and give an address. In addition, Mr. Weiss of the U. S. Secret Service will tell of his work during the war period. Nothing that fiction could invent surpasses the interest of the facts which Mr. Weiss presents in his talk "On the Trail of the Spy."

KERNWOOD COMES TUESDAY

The Kernwood Club of Malden visits the Calumet Club next Tuesday evening for bowling, billiard and pool matches. In view of the recent record put up by Calumet rollers, this tournament should be one of the most interesting to be held here in years, for the Kernwood men have an exceptionally fast bowling team. They also produce some exceptional pool and billiard players. It is anticipated that every Calumet member will be present.

THE BIG STORM WORST KNOWN

Thousands of Dollars Damage -- Electric Stopped -- Schools Closed -- Light and Power Service Cut off -- Beautiful Old Trees Ruined -- Conditions Never Before Experienced.

The great sleet storm from Saturday to Wednesday was the worst of its kind ever experienced in this section. Thousands of dollars damage was done and thousands of beautiful trees were ruined, many of which will never be restored to their former beauty during this generation. Light and power service was cut off on account of the danger from fallen wires and the town was in utter darkness during Monday and Tuesday. Electric service was discontinued and train service was irregular. Schools were closed and social functions abandoned.

The storm opened on Saturday and continued unabated until Wednesday morning, a continuous fine sleet, together with periods of exceptionally heavy rain, falling at freezing temperature, coating trees, wires, poles, houses and the ground with an icy layer. The weight of the ice was so great that the largest trees went down under it. Poles and wires were carried down by falling branches and the icy weight, the wires doing much damage when pulled from the houses where they were attached, taking large pieces of the side walls with them.

To save life, all current was shut off, closing down manufacturing plants operating by electricity and leaving the entire town in darkness.

The conditions made it impossible to hold school sessions, the electric power not being available for driving the ventilating apparatus and the constantly falling trees, poles and wires making it dangerous for the children to go to the streets.

From midnight until Wednesday morning the crash of falling tree limbs, poles and wires were constantly heard. Many people feared for their safety while big trees overhung their houses. Windows were broken in many places from falling branches, while in other instances, heavy trees crushed in parts of the houses, such as piazza railings and cornices.

By Wednesday morning the storm had passed over, the stars appearing before daylight and the sun showing at his usual appointed time. The sight by sunlight was both beautiful and awesome. Hardly a tree in town had escaped. The tops stood bare and splintered against the sky, with hanging branches and dangling wires. A coating of ice almost an inch thick, bowed the remaining branches down to the ground, all sparkling in the morning light. Underneath the trees the confusion of tangled branches, twigs and wires made a sight not soon forgotten.

Official Notice
STORM DAMAGE

For the purpose of effecting the most efficient co-operation between all departments of the town in accomplishing a speedy clean-up of the streets and assistance in the restoration of interrupted electric and telephone service resulting from the recent severe storm, the Selectmen met on Wednesday night in special session. The Police, Fire, Highway, Water, Tree and Park Departments, with the Planning Board, were represented at this meeting. A general survey of conditions of the Town was made. It appeared that every effort had been and is now being made to restore the town to normal condition.

Mr. Cook, chief of the State Department of Conservation, made helpful suggestions as to the handling and treatment of damaged trees.

The Edison Electric Illuminating Company had a crew of 40 men in town on Wednesday and 100 men on Thursday. Light was furnished Wednesday evening to the Police and Fire stations and to the Town Hall—also in the centre and to most of the stores.

The Tree Warden has been working with the Highway Department and their combined efforts have been most satisfactory in view of the conditions.

The Edison Company is not able to restore service while broken limbs are in contact with the company's wires. The Edison representative therefore suggests that the clearing away of damaged limbs hanging on the wires, by residents will tend to expedite the return of light service.

The following Recommendations were made by all present at the Special Meeting

Attention of property owners is called to the fact that the iron pipes attached to homes and which carry Edison current into the house are the property of the resident and not of the Edison Company. Therefore, the property owner must arrange for replacing this pipe before the service can be restored. Any local electrical contractor will give this matter immediate attention.

Property owners are entitled to take for their own use any broken and fallen limbs from trees adjacent to their property. The Highway Department has been instructed to leave such fallen limbs on the premises of the property owner when so requested.

Owing to the extensive damage to town trees the Tree Warden will not be able to give attention to damaged trees on private property and therefore property owners are urged to engage their own tree surgeon for treatment of damaged trees on their own land.

The State Forester advises that trees may be seriously damaged and yet be worth saving. No great damage will result by delaying treatment until next spring.

If property owners desire to treat their own trees, the State Forester suggests two important rules: (1) Wound should be clean so as to prevent dirt and dampness from entering the tree. The cut should be even and smooth. (2) Wounds on branches less than five inches in thickness should be painted with common red or asphalt paint.

Citizens are requested to telephone information relative to fallen trees, wires or poles immediately to the Police Department. Telephone No. 1220, and information will be at once conveyed to proper parties.

PATRICK McGUERTY DEAD

Well Known as Switchman in the Centre

Patrick McGuerty, well known throughout the centre as switchman at the electric car cross-over, died at his home on Loring avenue Wednesday morning at five o'clock from heart trouble. He was on duty as usual Tuesday and during the stormy days previous. During the night he was taken ill, passing away in the early morning.

Mr. McGuerty was 61 years of age and had made his home in Winchester for about 45 years, being electric car switchman in the centre for the past 17 years. He was formerly a carrier, working in Woburn and Winchester shops. He leaves a wife, who was Miss Catherine Kenney of Arlington, and six children, Thomas J. of Pawtucket, R. I., Mrs. Charles Shea of this town, Charles V. and Bernard F. of Woburn, George A. and John P. of this town, and a sister, Mrs. Annie Kane of Montvale.

Funeral services will be held at St. Mary's Church on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. The burial will be in Calvary cemetery, Montvale.

MRS. LIZZIE A. ELLIOTT

Mrs. Lizzie A. Elliott, widow of the late William H. Elliott, died at her home, No. 16 Stevens street, early Monday after an illness of several months. She had made her home in Winchester for many years.

Mrs. Elliott is survived by one son, Mr. Dwight D. Elliott, with whom she made her home. She was a native of Salem, Mass., and was the daughter of Adams M. and Rhoda (Coleford) Littlefield. She was a member of the Unitarian church of this town.

Funeral services, conducted by Rev. George Hale Reed of the Unitarian church, were held at the residence on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock. The remains were taken to Mt. Auburn for cremation. The interment was in Wildwood cemetery.

SURPRISE PARTY AT NORTH WINCHESTER

Many friends and neighbors of Mrs. Martha Amy Wyman, 75 years old, who left Tuesday for California, where she is to be married, surprised her last Saturday evening by a farewell party. About 50 visited her home on Forest circle, and besides spending a pleasant evening and extending good wishes, presented her with a purse of $50. The presentation was made by Mr. H. Earl Richardson, Mrs. Wyman replying in grateful appreciation.

Preparations for the surprise were made at the residence of former Selectman Jonas A. Laraway on Forest street, and during the evening Miss Jean MacLellan sang several solos and Mrs. Fred McDonald gave piano selections and played for the general singing. A bountiful repast was served also during the evening.

Mrs. Wyman goes to Santa Barbara, California, to marry Mr. Charles A. Reed of that place. She has resided in Winchester all her life and known her future husband for many years.

FIRE WEDNESDAY MORNING

A few minutes after 7:30 Wednesday morning box 23 was rung in for a fire in the drug store of McDonald & Cole, at the corner of the one story block on Main street at the river. A passer-by noticed the store full of smoke and notified the department, although at that time there were no outside indications of fire and no flame.

Considerable difficulty was experienced in forcing an entrance, the heavy door at the front resisting all efforts to force it and the small side windows being constructed of metal and wire glass. Entrance was finally gained by breaking the glass in the front door and opening the door at the rear.

The place was so full of smoke that the firemen had hard work locating the blaze, but after removing several burning packing cases and excelsior, the fire was soon put out, it having apparently originated in this material left in the back room.

There was little damage; chiefly from smoke.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

A very pretty birthday party was held at the home of Miss Mary Donaghey on Saturday evening in honor of Miss Margaret O'Leary of Nelson street. A very enjoyable evening was spent, and Miss O'Leary was the recipient of many beautiful gifts. At ten o'clock a delightful supper was served to about twenty guests, at which the engagement of Miss O'Leary to Mr. William H. Keeler was announced. The table was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Both Miss O'Leary and Mr. Keeler are members of the staff at the STAR office.

LADIES START TO BOWL

Announcement was made Saturday for the opening of the regular ladies' bowling tournament at the Calumet Club. The tournament will begin early in December and will be in charge of Mrs. Edward B. Smalley of the ladies' committee. Entries will close today for the tournament, which will include matches by teams of four or five rollers suitably handicapped.

POLICE SHIFTED

A shift in the police force, made last week, places the officers about town as follows: Officer Thomas Cassidy from the centre to the Plains and east side; Hogan from the West side to the centre; Kelley from the Plains to the West side; William Cassidy from Symmes Corner to the West side; Farrell from the West side to the Highlands; Regan from the Highlands to Symmes Corner. Officer Noonan will fill the routes on the days the officers are off.

PATRICK BOYLE

Patrick Boyle, aged 66 years, died last Thursday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William King, 360 Washington street. Funeral services were held at St. Mary's church on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. The interment was in Old Dorchester cemetery.

WILL BE TRAFFIC MANAGER AT BROCKTON

Mr. James F. Dwinell of this town went to Brockton this week to take the position of traffic manager at that exchange. He will train a local girl to be chief operator to take the place of Miss Lena Sheehan.

This action on the part of the company is in keeping with the agreement made at the time of the threatened walkout of the employees following the discharge of Miss Margaret Hickey, president of the local operators' union. Miss Hickey was reinstated and the walkout was averted.

ONE FIRE BOX WRECKED

The fire department lost one alarm box in the storm, that at the corner of Highland avenue and Herrick street—box 66. The pole holding this box fell early Tuesday morning.

LIGHTS ON WEDNESDAY

Light was turned on in the centre, in the underground circuit, Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, giving most of the stores and business houses in the square light. This also operated the street lights as far as the Town Hall, these lights having underground connections. Work was pushed through the day clearing the main wires coming down Main street from Lake avenue, Woburn, and such residents as bordered this route, where their house connections were all right, also received the light, as did the West Side pump.

The Edison company has two feed lines to Winchester from Woburn, one down Main street and the other over Pond street. These were clear by Wednesday afternoon, 40 or 50 men being at work here. Immediately work was started clearing the side lines, and yesterday the company had just as many men as could be used on this work, over 100 being employed here.

As fast as the side lines are cleared and safe, the current will be turned on, such houses as have their connections intact, receiving light. Houses where the street connections is broken will be cared for just as soon as the feeder lines are in operation and as fast as possible. Over 200 connection pipes have been torn from houses, and these must be replaced by the owners. Owners will also facilitate the work by having hanging tree limbs removed and clearing debris, the broken trees necessitating the re-running of many new lines.

Wednesday night the Town Hall was kept lighted for the benefit of the residents, and one of the acetylene gas flares used Tuesday night at the centre, was placed on the lawn illuminating the square at Washington and Mt. Vernon streets.

The Winchester Hospital received attention from the linemen among the first work done, and had light Wednesday. Power was also run to the pump at the West Side standing.

It is expected that all houses where street connections are not broken will be supplied with light by this evening. Others will be supplied as fast as the work can be put through.

LOOK OUT FOR WIRES

Children should be cautioned to look out for fallen wires. Parents should instruct them not to touch them under any conditions.

SALVATION ARMYLAST CALL FOR HELP

A group of 100 men, of which I am one, have been working for five weeks to raise sufficient funds to maintain the Salvation Army in its work for the coming winter. We are still short of our goal, and unless more money is available some of their needed work will have to be curtailed. Col. MacIntire has asked me to appeal to the residents of Winchester. Boxes have been distributed in many of the stores or contributions may be left at the Winchester Star office, or sent to 12 Prospect Street. Be as generous as you can; no contributions are too small to help.

CALUMET BOWLING TOURNAMENT

New Records Created in Unusual Matches

New records were marked up in the Calumet bowling tournament Friday evening, when some of the best figures in years were credited the teams engaged. Out of the 30 men engaged in the matches, 21 rolled strings of 100 or better, while team 1 created a new record by rolling a total of 1694 flat, which with its handicap of 30 pins, gave it 1634. This is the same team which made the record last December of 1597 flat, it not then being allowed any handicap. A comparison of the two seasons' figures is printed elsewhere.

The matches Friday night resulted in team 6 winning three points from team 9; team 1 took all four from the leaders, team 5, and team 2 took all four from team 4. All the scores ran high and team 6 won one string by one pin. Bart Stephenson led the individual list with a total of 367 on a string of 134. Others who rolled high were as follows: R. L. Purring-ton 361 with 132, Warren Goddu 344 with 121, M. K. Berry 351 with 133, Goldsmith 339 with 122, John H. Taylor 331 with 121, Higgins 325 with 113, MacDonald 306 with 110, Morton 305 with 115, G. P. HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Wednesday, November 23, in the High School assembly hall, the sophomore boys' division of college preparatory English presented before the school, selections from Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar." The performance was most creditably carried out, giving evidence both of careful study of the play and of considerable ingenuity in stage management. The production was in the nature of a project and was in charge of Malcolm Jones, who planned costumes and stage-settings and acted as stage manager. The success of the performance was in large measure due to his efficient direction. Particular praise should also be given to Malcolm Stewart, whose portrayal of Brutus showed real insight into a difficult character, and to Richard Clark, who acted Caesar very effectively. All those in the cast acted well and showed a good spirit of cooperation. Selections from five scenes of the play were presented; Act II, Scene 1; Act III, Scene 1; Act III, Scene 2; Act IV, Scene 3; Act V, scene 5. Dana Kelley made the introductory announcements.

The cast of characters and the stage management were as follows:

Julius Caesar	Richard Clark
Mark Antony	Howard Pecker
Pompey	Lawrence Hunt
Brutus	Malcolm Stewart
Cassius	Leslie Stewart
Portia	Lars Sandberg
Trebolius	Albert Ohlman
Decius Brutus	Frederick Cole
Meletrius Cimbler	William Clark

"COL." SCOTT INSANE, DOCTORS DECLARE

Was Arrested After Swindling Robert Fogg

"Col." Charles W. Scott of Boston, whose fountain pen and check book landed him in jail, whence he was transferred to the New Hampshire State Hospital, has been declared insane by doctors at that institution. Scott stirred New Hampshire last summer and had the police in all parts of New England looking for him after borrowing an automobile from a woman in Lebanon, along with her French chauffeur, and writing a couple of bad checks which he gave to Aviator Robert Fogg of Concord after an airplane tour of northern New England.

He was finally arrested in Springfield, and after being arraigned was sent to jail to await trial. Because of wild tales he told he was taken to the hospital for observation.

Scott first appeared in New Hampshire at Lebanon where he borrowed the machine and chauffeur of Miss Ida Labby, saying he wished to go to Boston after his own machine. He went to Hampton Beach, where he met Fogg, and he told the aviator he was a British ace, and made arrangements for a trip to Vermont and Maine.

While on these trips he would leave his seat in the plane and walk around on the wings and do a few daredevil stunts "merely for a little exercise."

In payment for the trips, he gave Fogg two checks on the State Street Trust Company of Boston, one for $100 and the other for $25.

ONLY ONE ACCIDENT IN STORM

Only one accident was reported here during the heavy storm. William Linehan, 33 years of age, falling on the icy steps at the railroad station Monday morning. He was attended by Dr. Sheehy and treated for cuts about the head, afterward being taken to his home on Shepard court in the police car.

There were many near accidents, several tree limbs falling on automobiles, but so far as known, other than some broken tops and side windows, no serious damage was done these cars.

Although many pedestrians narrowly escaped being hit by falling tree limbs and wires, all were fortunate, and no one was hit to be hurt.

SPECIAL! SPECIAL!

Important news of the Cameo Girl is to the effect that several exceptionally remarkable choruses have been added at the last minute. If by any means you have failed to be attracted by the bevy of beauty and wonderful specialties, please note that the "Paddle Addle Chorus" has been added. This is a mixed group of dancers in up-to-date steps. Still another late addition is the "Carnival Chorus," a mixed group of singers which will lend strength and volume to the singing. By the way—our efficient Kenneth Caldwell will take charge of the ushering.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Among the good things you should keep on hand for ready use, is patience.

So people think they can be unnecessarily disagreeable and get away with it, but they can't.

Even contractors are now engaged to widen streets.

Kicking a man when he is down may be one way of making him get it, but it is not the best way.

A contract is much like a cat it always has some sharp clause in it.

Sharpen your axe.

Did you ever know before how much you loved trees?

Who is the most popular man in town? Ed Sanderson.

As soon as we get our trees cared for let us plow our sidewalks and give those of us who have to walk a chance.

The brilliant, beautiful Winchester Laundry building was a source of envy to many.

Those fancy candles you bought to match the new wall paper didn't burn so bad after all.

The smallest twig, falling from the top of the tree, made as much noise as the collapse of the house next door around 2 a. m.

With between 500 and 600 telephone lines out of commission this week there has been a noticeable improvement in "personal service."

The STAR in common with all other suburban newspapers has had a week of difficulty in preparing and publishing this issue. From Saturday until late Wednesday night linotypes and presses were idle, the greatly needed electric current being shut off for fear of fatal accidents due to fallen wires. Of necessity this has curtailed production and news, which,
under the unavoidable circumstances, we know our readers will pardon. So far as possible matter has been set in Boston offices, but it has been impossible to handle much matter ordinarily cared for by our own mechanical staff.

We print this week an appeal for funds for the Salvation Army. Winchester people are called upon to assist in this national work by leaving such sums as they can contribute in the boxes to be placed in the centre stores. The Salvation Army is trying to raise $200,000, not for extension work, but merely the bare amount necessary to enable it to carry on the present institutions and work it is doing. By obtaining a fund of this size, it will be able to release one-third of its workers, who have been giving their time to pan-handling and raising funds through visits to the saloons, etc. The saloon, by the way, being a thing of the past, cuts off one of their chief sources of revenue. The calls for help the Army is receiving now, and which will increase as the winter comes on, will tax its resources to the utmost. If ever its work was required, now is the time.

The sole topic of conversation during this week has been in connection with the big storm. Never within the memory of any resident has our town experienced weather of this nature in such continued and exceptional form.
During the day Monday one could watch the ice grow hourly on the twigs outside the windows. This ice added tons of weight to trees and poles, and the only things that saved whole trees from crashing to the ground was that it grew proportionately, and the smaller branches gave way first, relieving the bigger branches and the trunk. The important damage done was to the largest trees; the trees that have grown for centuries in attaining their majestic beauty. It is feared that most of the trees are irreparably ruined.
Many will have to be cut down and others will never regain their former beauty. Winchester was particularly fortunate in its big elms. They were planted many years ago by the earliest settlers, and we have been fortunate in our town officials and residents in that they always recognized their beauty and worth and lent every effort toward their preservation. If these slow growing trees are replaced at once even, it will take a generation before the new growth approaches the old trees in beauty, and probably the younger generation will never again see our elms as they were last summer.

CHRISTMAS T. B. WORK

The seals for the advancement of Tuberculosis work will be on sale this week.

The work done by our local branch of the T. B. Association for the past six months in Winchester, has included providing women to help in households where there are extreme cases of illness, sending milk to patients and to undernourished children in these families—Procuring warm clothing and heating bottles for out-of door patients.

June 1st the association in Winchester had a working balance of $454.12 by January 1st we shall have less than $100.00 which must tide us over until we receive the returns from the sale of Christmas seals.

The Association is doing such good work here in Winchester we feel the public will certainly give its hearty support by generously buying the Christmas Seals.

Remember it is possible to stamp out Tuberculosis as successfully as has been done in the case of small pox.
Please help to reduce this menace in our community. Buy seals and you have done your part in a wonderful work for humanity.

EDISON COMPANY UNDER BIG HANDICAP

By L. D. Gibbs

The electric light and power service of the Boston Edison Company suffered the worst interruptions in its history as a result of the storm which began last Sunday night.

In the suburban cities and towns served by the company the sleet began falling on wires and trees late Sunday afternoon gradually getting worse until Monday morning.

The weight of the ice broke limbs from trees, in fact bore down whole trees themselves, some as large as a foot in diameter, while the falling limbs, many of them over 6 inches in diameter, carried down other wires onto the commercial circuits of the company.

The service in Boston escaped the storm in good shape, and there were almost no interruptions in Dorchester, South Boston, East Boston, Milton and some parts of Roxbury.

In general the city and town officials in charge of the electric light and power distribution ordered the company to discontinue electric service as the falling trees made conditions uncertain until the lines could be cleared.

Big gangs of men began work early, starting out over the main trunk lines and the branches, restoring service as rapidly as possible.

It is impossible to estimate the cost of the damage but it is insignificant compared to the severity of the storm. The generating stations and sub-stations of the company were in no way affected by the storm.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING

Surface Drainage Canal St: A letter was received from the Eastern Felt Co., thanking the Board for "the face drainage conditions on Canal asks that the acceptance of the rest of Canal street be included with the budget for 1922. This matter was laid over pending an estimate from the Town Engineer as to the cost of taking care of the surface drainage on this street in accordance with his and the Supt. of Streets' recommendation under date of November 18th.

Acceptance of Streets: The report received from the Town Engineer in regard to the application of the Bet-

SALVATION ARMY LAST CALL FOR HELP

A group of 100 men, of which I am one, have been working for five weeks to raise sufficient funds to maintain the Salvation Army in its work for the coming winter. We are still short of our goal, and unless more money is available some of their needed work will have to be curtailed. Col. MacIntire has asked me to appeal to the residents of Winchester. Boxes have been distributed in many of the stores or contributions may be left at the Winchester Star office, or sent to 12 Prospect Street. Be as generous as you can; no contributions are too small to help.

THE STORM

Old and familiar vistas were changed as though by magic. Whole groves of smaller trees were bowed to the ground, revealing distances never before seen and transforming the landscape. Streets were impassable through the bended boughs, and everywhere lay a litter of splintered wood, bark and twigs.

Winchester appeared to have been hit as hard as any place in suburban Boston. Reports from every town and city in the outskirts said that particular place was the most damaged, but those who viewed outside conditions were of the opinion that few if any were any worse. Light and power was shut off in a score of places, and in several places not only were the factories closed, but the papers were unable to issue.

Although the fall of rain and sleet was very heavy, the ice made no great depth on the ground as storms go, the first fall of snow Saturday afternoon being almost as deep as the snow remaining Wednesday morning. The trouble was caused by the rain instantly freezing as it fell. Except for this, our damage would have been little.

The storm opened Saturday afternoon with the heaviest fall of snow yet experienced this fall. This snow fell until nearly midnight, when it turned to a fine rain with occasional heavy showers. This rain froze as soon as it fell, coating trees and wires. The conditions grew steadily worse during the day Sunday, but no one imagined a condition such as followed, it being thought that very icy walks and roads would be the only inconvenience to be anticipated.

Sunday evening brought a slight realization of conditions which were coming, those who were obliged to be out finding travel almost impossible. Automobile windshields were immediately clouded with frozen sleet and the cold wind made it impossible to face it without protection. Even so, this and the icy streets formed the peak of inconvenience.

The first trouble from falling tree limbs and wires started about 1:30 Monday morning, and from that time on reports were sent to the police and electric and telephone companies in constantly increasing numbers. The members of the town tree department were first notified; then the men of the highway department and the water department. By daylight every department in town and every man available on the streets were clearing away wreckage and endeavoring to protect residents from fallen wires.

Few, if any, slept much after two o'clock. A rising wind accompanied by a torrent of rain brought limb after limb crashing to the ground, each one cracking with a report like a pistol and making a great racket with its breaking ice, which slithered over the frozen, icy ground.

When our residents got outside they marveled at the damage. In all parts of the town beautiful trees were damaged by broken branches, wires were hanging and streets and grounds everywhere littered with twigs. No one section appeared much worse than another. If one saw Grove street at Symmes corner, Highland avenue at the Highland School, Cabot street, Cambridge street, Swanton street or the centre, one got a good idea of conditions everywhere.

The trouble was, however, that the damage did not stop. All day long tree limbs continued to fall, carrying down with them telephone and electric wires. A rotten limb at the top of a tree would break with a report, falling on heavily loaded lower limbs and finally reaching the ground with the best part of the tree accompanying it.

A heavy downpour at noon brought a great quantity of trees down, during the afternoon trees and limbs continued to fall. One could constantly hear the splitting wood and crashing of boughs.

Monday night proved even worse than Sunday. All night long the tree limbs fell, and as most of the smaller stuff had already gone down, the big fellows began to fall, every few minutes a roaring crash giving notice of the ruin of some fine tree. The poles also began to go, the heavily coated wires needing only a slight touch to pass the breaking point. It is safe to say that no one slept through the night without being awakened time and again by the crashes.

The damage early Monday morning was so large that there were few electric wires containing current, but as they continued to fall, especially the feed wires, town officials ordered all electric current shut off, both on the light and power circuits. This immediately closed most of the manufacturing places, as nearly every shop in this vicinity depended on electricity for power. A few of the larger plants, including the Winchester Laundry, generate their own current, and these firms were not affected.

Tuesday morning presented a sight never before equalled in this town. Trees, poles and wires were down everywhere. Quantities of streets were impassable. Where the fallen trees or poles were cleared during the night others had taken their places so fast that the town men could not cope with them, and finally attention was given almost wholly to keeping the main streets open. Even so, it was necessary to detour every little space.

No signal was sounded for the school children Monday morning, but it was not possible to hold school at the high school, as the heating system depends on electric power to blow the warm air over the building. In other buildings the darkness hindered the work, and no light was available. At noon the no-school signal was sounded and there was no school on Tuesday, although the children would have been better off inside, rather than risking being caught by some big tree limb and hurt. The coating was exceptional, and the children were out in force.

The electric cars were unable to run, both on account of falling tree limbs and wires down, although the Woburn line got cars through to the centre Monday afternoon. Tuesday's conditions again shut this service off. The Arlington line experienced a bad accident in Stoneham square Sunday night, a car operated by motorman Felix McPartland sliding along the slippery rails and smashing into another car. No one was seriously injured however. Monday afternoon a big sweeper went over to Arlington, but no service could be started, and on Tuesday so much of the trolley wire was down no attempt was made to try and open the line to service.

The steam road maintained a fairly efficient service. Through trains were very late and few locals were on time as a whole. This service, however, took care of its patrons in good shape.

The electrical display on Sunday night from fallen wires was magnificent, the misty night being illuminated constantly with the pale green and blue flashes. Current turned into the trolley wires Monday night again caught a big display, until shut off after the wires had broken in many places. At night the headlights of the automobiles, shining on the networks of ice covered twigs and branches, transformed the streets into fairy land.

The finest trees in town have been ruined. Hardly a tree of any size but what has its top a mass of gaunt splinters, and the ex-soldiers say the landscape is a close imitation of that of the battlefields so far as the trees go.

The fine row of willow trees on Highland avenue at the Highland school were wrecked, blocking the whole street. At the corner of Mt. Vernon and Washington streets, at the Wadleigh school, poles and broken trees made an impressive wreck. Here a window in the school was broken by a falling tree, while Mt. Vernon street was blocked by a section of the big elm on the corner. At Main and Washington streets, three big sections of elm trees completely blocked both streets until cut up and carted off. On Highland avenue near the Hospital a pole and wires closed the street for a time. Cabot street was impassable owing to the low branched maples, which completely closed the street, and at Copley and Fletcher street a fallen tree and pole close both thoroughfares.

In Rangeley the damage was enormous, one big oak falling within a short distance of the new brick house on Church street. Many fine trees on the Edwin Ginn estate and on the old Pattee estate were utterly ruined, and on the Parkway at the foot of Mystic avenue the big oaks suffered severely, one going down and the river from that point to Bacon street being filled with tree limbs.

Grove street at Symmes corner was quite a sight. A big elm split on Main street near the residence of Dr. Putnam, taking the trolley wire down with it and closing the street. One of the worst of the smaller places was at the corner of Main and Prospect streets, where the big elms lost many limbs and completely covered the lawn. On Washington street a number of big limbs blocked the street Tuesday morning, taking wires of every kind with them, and farther down at Eaton street, tree limbs and a pole blocked traffic and made another danger spot.

Wildwood cemetery was hit hard, a fine tree going down at the entrance drive and the cemetery itself presenting an indescribable scene of wreckage from the broken giant oaks. At the Home for Aged People the streets looked like a battlefield Tuesday morning, limbs and wires being tangled everywhere. On Myrtle street the big elms did much damage when they fell, one house being damaged.

Many houses were damaged, and where the wires were pulled off the side, clapboards, plaster and even large portions of the eaves were torn off. Windows were broken in many cases; steps, railings, flag poles and blinds were also damaged.

The chief efforts of the town employees were finally directed wholly to keeping paths open for the fire apparatus, disastrous fires having occurred in other places. The fire alarm system held up well through Monday, but by Tuesday morning several circuits were out and the repair crew had its hands full keeping the alarm in condition.

The centre presented a strange appearance at night with only one or two stores lighted. The few who had a gas fixture were exceptionally fortunate, most places being illuminated by a few candles, with perhaps a lamp or two. One or two places had one gas fixture, and this held the most powerful light that could be attached to it. Many of the stores made no attempt to keep open after dark, as it was sorry work trying to handle goods in the dim light and the customers in most places were few and far between. The hardware stores did a thriving business in lamps and lanterns and were soon sold out Monday afternoon. Another supply secured during the day Tuesday, kept later customers satisfied however. Candles of any color and shape were in great demand.

Numerous social gatherings were postponed, although the rehearsals for "The Cameo Girl" were held as scheduled by candle light. The dinner of Mystic Valley Lodge, to have been held last night, was postponed, but the business meeting was held at eight. At the Calumet Club all the bowling matches were suspended, pending the renewal of the light.

The Winchester Hospital was without light, like every other place, but as soon as this was known plenty of lamps and lanterns were pushed there by residents and town departments, and this place as a whole did very well.

The conditions on Tuesday were a repetition of those of Monday, trees and poles falling all day long. By nightfall things became a little better, a slight change for warmer weather, easing the weight of the ice on the trees and poles. Nevertheless, trees and poles continued to fall during the night, and Wednesday morning saw many more streets blocked and hundreds of tree limbs fallen.

A peculiar coincidence was that the big tree in Church street, about which there has been so much controversy over its removal, escaped almost unharmed, only a few limbs on the east side going down. The evergreens in most cases also escaped with slight damage.

The telephone company estimated that it had between 500 and 600 lines out of commission Wednesday morning. The Edison company escaped with a lesser number, its wires being heavier and in most instances being strung in pairs, being stronger to withstand the weight.

On Tuesday night Edmund C. Sanderson of the Water Department got out the two big acetylene gas spot lights used by the department for night work, and set them up in the centre, one being placed in front of Knight's drug store and the other at the north of the railroad crossing. This light did much to illuminate the centre, which on Monday night was practically pitch dark. In fact night travel presented many difficulties, and few cared to go forth unless it was absolutely necessary.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The old "barn-storming" days of long ago returned for the benefit of the Fortnightly on Monday when the music committee had prepared a delightful program on "Lullabies of the Nations." Everything was in deep darkness, to know who your next neighbor was, one must make an effort to peer under her hat. Yet over a hundred women braved the elements and felt they were repaid. Such a spirit of adventure pervaded the whole affair. The entertainment was in the form of living pictures, each national lullaby illustrated with an appropriate picture.

The solos by Mrs. Fausey and Mrs. Hill were beautifully given, the trio of ladies voices was well harmonized and given with artistic effect. All this was carried on with foot lights produced from the town street lanterns placed where the foot lights should have been aided by flash lights to illumine the pictures, giving one an entertainment never to be forgotten. A little sketch of the emigrant at Ellis Island, written by Mrs. Gilpatrick and illustrated with picture and song was much enjoyed.

Before the entertainment Mrs. Watkins gave a piano solo which ably demonstrated the idea the State Federation Committee on Music are advancing, and about which Mr. Watkins had previously spoken. Jazz and ragtime must go, we must have better music.

The education committee are organizing a class in Applied Psychology. Mrs. Allen spoke in very interesting manner upon this subject for ten minutes. Those interested to join this class, phone Mrs. Snyder, 197-W. In the last week's Star we spoke of the Fortnightly Day at the Frances Jewett Repertory Theatre Club.

Thursday, Dec. 8th is "Fortnightly" Day at the Copley Theatre in Boston. The play will be "When Bunty Pulls the Strings." It is Scotch with all the humorous comedy and serious pathos typical of the Scotch race.

After the play there will be a tea and reception in the foyer where our president and vice president will receive with the Copley Club and the Jewett Players assisted by Mrs. Frank Cole, Mrs. I. E. Gamage, Mrs. F. E. Getty, Mrs. Walter Chamberlain, Mrs. Frank Merrill, Mrs. Edward Thompson, Mrs. Louis Snyder, Mrs. Thomas Freeburn, Mrs. William Parsons, Mrs. Ely and Miss Richmond.

This is an excellent opportunity to see a fine play and help the Fortnightly make a good representation. Tickets can be had from Mrs. Snyder, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Goddard and Mrs. Freeburn.

Many of the club are entertaining their clubs by taking them to this Fortnightly Day at the Copley Theatre, Dec. 8th.

To save that theatre for Boston is considered very important. So much so that J. Weston Allen spoke upon the subject at the autumn meeting of the State Federation, urging the club women, as a matter of education, to help gain this end. For tickets telephone Mrs. Snyder, 197-W.

Remember the date, Friday, Dec. 9, 8 p. m., when the prizes will be awarded to the High School pupils who took part in the prize essay on "Conservation." No tickets are issued. Come and bring a friend to encourage the pupils and to hear Mrs. Goode's lecture on "Native Birds and Their Habits" illustrated with very beautiful lantern slides.

SCHOOLS OPENED WEDNESDAY

The public schools opened Wednesday after two days' enforced vacation on account of the big storm. At the High School automobile batteries were used to run the electric clocks and signal system, and by continuing the heat beyond the regular time, the rooms were kept warm without the electric blower. The grade schools were able to continue, electric light not being necessary with the clear weather.

There Is Vigor In Rich Blood

Pepto-Mangan in Liquid or Tablets a Blood Builder

Vigor and strength have as their base rich red blood. Blood is rich when there are plenty of red corpuscles. They are the tiny red cells which swim in blood and give it its color. Without red corpuscles blood would be white. When overwork, or straining, or illness weakens the blood, it diminishes the number of red cells. Without a sufficient number of cells the blood becomes watery, the body weak. Vigor and strength fall off, so that physical life diminishes like a fading plant. The physical pleasures of eating and sleeping and exercise lose all attraction. There is no zest in living.

After Bude's Pepto-Mangan has been taken for a while the blood becomes rich with red cells. They help to nourish the entire system. With good blood at work there is a great difference in living. Eating, sleeping and exercise are enjoyed. All druggists sell Bude's Pepto-Mangan.—Adv.

THE CAMEO GIRL

a balloon. "The Cinderella Chorus"—nineteen dainty little girls, with a Real Prince Charming, a real Fairy Godmother and a Real Cinderella. Then the leads who tell the plot of the play. Some are our old favorites; some you have never seen before.

One Hundred and Sixty nine people—nothing has ever appeared in Winchester like the "Cameo Girl." The leading part of "Marcia" is taken by Mrs. Newell Kingman Morton, whose speaking voice is equal to the favored Ethel Barrymore, and whose singing is superb. Richard Grant who is "Robert" in the play, needs no introduction to a Winchester audience. Everyone knows his ability to act and to sing. We all like to hear and see him. Alden Simms, who is there that is not entertained by this famous town boy of ours, whom we all know could easily be on the legitimate stage? See him as "The Professor" in the "Cameo Girl." Winnifred Bent, our popular dramatic star, is "The Spirit of Shadowland." No caste is complete without her. Harry Bicklow is our "Wise Chancellor," and Vincent Clarke, another "Wise Chancellor." These well-known men are seen to advantage in "The Cameo Girl." Fred McCartney and Sherwood Kelley as the "Song Writers," a vaudeville sketch, are entertaining and amusing—"Bread or Dough?" Mrs. "Bobbie" Reynolds—she as "Mimi" with George Hodge as "Rudolph," has the cutest little sketch, and the spotlight is on them all the time. Dorothy Reynolds, following in the foot steps of her talented mother, is like "The Real Thing" in the "Irish Grand Dutchess of Moravia." The three nieces, "Molly, Polly, and Dolly," petite pretty and popular, are Betty Bird, Dorothy Kelley, and Lucy Wilcox. And the soloists or entertainers—wait until you hear them—Phyllis Tutine, Betty Bird and Hazel Smart. Ormsby Court and his eccentric dance, "Flirting with Mrs. Jazz," is seen. An orchestra of "Ten Picked Men" will handle the music for the occasion.

Come to the Town Hall Saturday matinee and evening and see 169 people in "THE CAMEO GIRL." Tickets at the STAR office and the Door.

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

Do you remember Phineas Fogg, Jules Verne's hero? Well, Phineas departed on his eight-day trip around the world but forgot to turn out the gas jet that was burning in the bathroom. Fortunately, upon his return, he remembered that he had left the gas burning and there was no argument over the bill.

Forgetfulness of this sort, however, is a frequent occurrence and it seems to be human nature for the customer to first berate the company, claiming that the meter is wrong, and then discover his mistake.

During a cold spell in a Southern city several customers declared that their bills were exorbitant. A little investigation disclosed the fact that the negro servants were using the gas range ovens to warm their feet, and the practice threatened to become quite popular until the irate employers put an end to it.

When your gas bill appears to be too large, think twice before you blame the meter, for it isn't very often the meter's fault.

Elimination of separators from the ELECTROLYTE means greater battery efficiency. It means a battery free from ruinous sulphation, free from constant care and attention. This wonderful new invention means longer life for your battery, makes frequent recharging unnecessary, presents loss of capacity, insures maximum efficiency of the plates. The ELECTROLYTE Separatorless Storage Battery means not only 100 per cent in results, but requires a minimum of cost, care and attention.

The ELECTROLYTE Battery does away with periodic recharging and overcharging to prevent and reduce sulphation. There is no need to limit the discharge to a certain voltage per cell or to take apart and wash plates when not in use for an extended period. It cannot be injured by buckling of plates on heavy discharges and is not harmed if left uncharged for any length of time. When not in use, no special attention is required, except that it be kept filled with distilled water.

SOUTH AMERICAN COURTESY

Former Supt. of Schools Herron Tells of Customs at Peru

Ica, Peru.
Oct. 29, 1921.

Editor of the Star:—

The conventional politeness of the Latin races is an old story, perhaps too old to mention, but here in Ica it is so pronounced and so often has an element of real thoughtfulness, that possibly some comments may have interest.

Some day I shall go to a library with a lot of books and with a librarian who knows about the studies that have been made of man's development, and I shall ask for the book in which the reasons why these races have made the art of courtesy a habit is discussed.

There must have been some remote influences that did not affect the Anglo-Saxons. This is true, in general, and, as I am told and can readily believe, of Peruvians in particular. I do not mean to suggest that my fellow citizens in New England are not kind and generous and thoughtful, but simply that many manifestations of the spirit as well as the forms of courtesy have been a pleasant factor of an interesting experience, and they are not personal nor are they confined to those who by reason of education or standing might be expected to be accustomed to observe the amenities, so I shall note a few illustrations.

Last night the citizens gave a banquet to the Prefect (this office is about the same as that of Governor in New England), and the chairman of the committee took pains to make a personal call to invite me and to give me a good seat. When we came out to go to the Prefecture for a final copy (a technical expression not used in the United States) I was with a local merchant. Just as we reached the sidewalk I missed him and was about to wonder where he had gone when he appeared again at my other hand. He had me on the inside of the walk—the position of respect—and had almost been lost in the crowd. It is useless to protest. I have tried in vain. Occasionally if I take the arm of my friend Sr. Berenguel, who thinks Valencia the loveliest and best part of the world, I can locate him on the inside but he manages to steer our course across a street in short order.

When the Fourth of July came I meditated a little on wearing a little ribbon in my button hole and decided not to do it, a happy conclusion, since no one needed any information as to the significance of the day. I had just reached the Colegio when an aide of the Prefect in full dress came to convey his official felicitations. As I visited various school rooms delegations of children made pretty speeches; all day long I was shaking hands and listening to complimentary references to the United States, and finally at night the landlord had a special dinner. Now the last was in line with the rest, because I had arranged some time before to move on the following day to another hotel somewhat more conveniently located. Well, when the Peruvian anniversary was celebrated on July 28th, it was a particular pleasure to take part.

These are personal illustrations of a national characteristic, but fundamentally they are impersonal in that they simply show the way in which these folks order their relations with strangers and each other. It has some advantages and is certainly pleasant.

Yours very truly,
Schuyler F. Herron.

SELECTMEN ACT

Call Meeting of Department Heads to Handle Situation

The Selectmen, by George E. Wiley, temporary chairman during the absence from town of Chairman J. A. Dolben, called a meeting of the heads of town departments at their rooms Wednesday night to form active co-operative plans for handling the situation resulting from the storm and to consider methods and ways of preserving such trees as may be saved from the wreckage. There were present Selectmen Wiley, Bryne, Bond and Blackham; Chief of Police McIntosh; Supt. of Streets Clark; Chief of the Fire Department DeCourcy; Tree Warden Symmes; Edmund C. Sanderson of the Water Department; Frank E. Rowe and Geo. T. Davidson of the Planning Board; Edgar S. Mansfield of the Edison Co.; State Forester Cook, and Messrs. Arthur W. Dunn, Nathaniel M. Nichols and T. Price Wilson.

Conditions were discussed by all present and the following facts brought out:

Residents should first care for dangerous limbs, trees and poles. In the latter instance by telephoning the Police.

Residents should not be too hasty in attempting to care for their damaged trees. Rather they should make a careful inventory of the damage and if possible consult with competent tree men. The trees may wait through the winter unless weakened or split.

Trees should be classed into four divisions—Those ruined which must come down; badly damaged, but possibly saved; damaged, but may be saved and slightly damaged. Give care to the first and last by preference.

Elm trees will send out new branches, and if not too old may be saved. The oaks suffer worst, elms second and maples third. Most maples will come back, unless too badly wrecked. Poplars and similar trees, if badly wrecked had better be replaced.

Residents should consider carefully the planning of their grounds in connection with saving their trees. In some instances it will be better to relocate trees, removing the damaged ones.

All wounds must be smooth, so that water and dirt will not collect and start decay. Paint with asphalt by preference, but common red paint contains healing qualities and may be used. If limbs are large (over 5 inches) splits may be bolted. Do not attempt to bolt small limbs.

Clean up all debris and employ good men to do your work. Care for the young and best trees first and leave the old ones until later.

The wood on estates from town trees may be taken by the abutters if desired.

The more you assist in cleaning up, the quicker your electric and telephone service will be restored. The company men must otherwise do this work before replacing your service.

The Town, Edison Company and Telephone Company will appreciate the assistance of residents in aiding in removing debris.

Don't hurry in pruning or cutting your trees; clean up first and consider carefully what you will do next. Our beautiful trees are the most important asset of our town. Plan for their restoration as you would if laying out your estate.

The various town departments are all co-operating in handling the work, being under the supervision of Tree Warden Symmes. It will not be possible for town men to do work on private property, their own job is large.

The electrical and telephone situation is being cleared up as fast as possible. Some people on your street may get light before you do, but you will be attended to as soon as possible. This phase is outlined in another column.

Do you wish to save your trees injured by the storm? Prune all breaks, smooth and sterilize and paint the wounds. Should you desire us to do this work, phone Woburn 316 or write Herbert H. Clewly, Woburn, Mass., Forester and Landscape Architect.

TWO HEADLINERS FOR THE LEGION

The Winchester Post of the American Legion has arranged for a "Father and Son Night" to be held at the Town Hall, Tuesday, Dec. 20.

Every man in Winchester whether a father, son, brother or friend of a World War veteran is cordially invited to attend.

The Legion officials have made no small effort to secure the best speakers available for this occasion. One of these will be "Sailor" Ryan. He needs no introduction. He is known all over the country as one of the Legion's best speakers, as well as a former National officer.

Mr. Felix Weiss is perhaps not as well known, but he has a narrative of vital interest. For 13 years Mr. Weiss was United States Immigrant Inspector at the port of Boston, and during the war special agent of the Bureau of Investigation, United States Department of Justice.

The man who took Dr. Muck, the man who pursued German spies on the Dean murder case, the man who trailed the Hindu revolutionists, the man who faced death at the hands of Italian and Spanish anarchists, the man who raided the I. W. W., and mingled with Russian Bolsheviks is surely worth hearing.

It was Mr. Weiss' rare opportunity to observe the effect of the great conflict here and abroad, its influence upon our National life, our allied immigrants, our enemy aliens, the slackers and profiteers, the agitators and bomb-throwers. A linguist by birth, a scholar by education, an authority on immigration, he is a master of his subject and relates with fascinating interest a truth stranger than fiction with thrills of pathos and smiles of comedy.

In addition to hearing these speakers, it has been arranged to have an enthusiastic conductor lead in singing some of the old songs which were so popular during the war.

This is an opportunity to spend an evening with the boys who three years ago were in khaki or blue. Remember the date—Tuesday, Dec. 20, 1921.

BOARD OF TRADE NEWS

The regular monthly meeting of the Winchester Board of Trade, was held in Lyceum Hall, Tuesday evening, Dec. 6th. The President, Mr. George T. Davidson called the meeting to order. A very entertaining talk by Mr. Hale and Mr. Chandler of the School Building Committee was given and the plan was exhibited for the proposed changes in the locations of the school buildings. At the next meeting of the board, to be held on Tuesday, Jan. 3rd, 1922, the plan for increasing the membership will be presented.

The Secretary reported splendid success in collecting the dues in arrears of the members. At this meeting it was suggested that the name of the organization be changed to the Winchester Chamber of Commerce. The matter was laid on the table for action for the next meeting.

CHRISTMAS FOR THE POOR

The Overseers of the Poor are making their customary appeal for contributions for the "Christmas Cheer" provided for unfortunate families. The Holiday Season is a time of Christian unity and fellowship and the committee earnestly requests that as many as possible join in the plans for the extension of the Yuletide spirit of abundance to the less prosperous section of the town. They make the suggestion that any individuals who contemplate giving Christmas dinners to needy families send the Department of Overseers such information, thereby co-operating and avoiding duplication, and assuring a more even distribution. It is particularly requested that contributions be made at an early date.

If anyone desires the names of families who would welcome a dinner the list may be obtained from the Overseers of the Poor Department, Town Hall.

Any contributions of clothing or other articles will be called for upon request or notice to the Poor Department.

Telephone Overseers 1383 Winchester.

Office hours 1 to 3 p. m. (Every day except Saturday).

One of the annual events of the holiday season, and one which is eagerly anticipated by a large group of children is the Christmas Party. There is always a tree on which is hung a bag of candy and a toy or book for every child. Then to make it a real party ice cream is served to all. There are also games, songs and a magician to add to the fun. None of the children who are invited to this party would have any such pleasure at home. In some homes sickness or want of work makes it impossible to provide for the children. Many of them have no parents to care for them. Would you like to help in giving such a party this year? If you are interested in sharing some of your Christmas joys with those less fortunate please send a contribution of money, to, or communicate with Mr. Nathaniel M. Nichols, 10 Hillside avenue: 658-W. Dec. 9-16

BANK IN NEW QUARTERS

Winchester National Now Has Home Equal to None

One year ago this month announcement was made through the columns of the STAR that the Winchester National Bank had considered and accepted plans for the enlargement and remodeling of its banking rooms on Church street, the move being made necessary through increased business and the desire to serve its patrons in a manner in keeping with the growth and standing of the town.

This month, one year later, sees the bank thoroughly established in its fine new quarters, enjoying over double the room and occupying a place of business which is laid out along simple and dignified lines and which contains every facility for modern banking.

The present fine quarters of the bank are largely the work of a local contractor, Mr. Fred C. Alexander of Lakeview road. In his office the plans were drawn and the pleasing exterior and interior lay-out formulated. His ideas, when submitted to the directorate of the bank, met with instant approval, and with their completion, both officials and patrons have experienced a sense of satisfaction. Mr. Alexander's job was a difficult one, including not only the reconstructed interior of a business block, but, in the inclusion of two former stores into one, a complete remodeling of the front, with replacement of supporting beams and pillars. The result has been such as to excite universal approval. With the dignified and pleasing exterior goes an interior which is thoroughly in keeping. There is ample space for patrons, workers and officers. Increased business is being seen monthly through the change.

In remodeling the banking rooms, two stores in the Lane Building, each 16x50 feet, were thrown into one. This entailed the removal of the partition in the middle and the substitution of steel beams, taking out the center column in the street front and replacing it with two new columns, closing the two doorways and constructing a new center entrance, and placing two large plate glass windows.

Under the new construction the entrance is through a handsome mahogany door and vestibule; the latter laid with a mosaic floor with marble border. The public space, 20x14 feet, is finished entirely in gum wood, rubbed down to a velvet finish, with a floor of everlastic tile in a pleasing pattern and a six inch black base. The patron's counters are of gum wood, with plate glass tops and conveniently situated and fitted.

The working space has been increased three times that formerly enjoyed. The new director's room has been increased largely in size, as has the cashier's room, while three commodious coupon booths have been installed.

The outside is particularly pleasing, the new steel grill, and large sign at the top giving a very dignified exterior. In addition to the grill at the front, all rear windows have been barred with steel, and in facilitating easy entrance for customers the sidewalk at the front has been raised several inches to meet the step.

The bank today is in the most flourishing condition in its history, including all departments.

Winchester Grange will hold a Christmas bazaar on next Tuesday afternoon and evening, Dec. 13th, at Lyceum Hall. In the evening there will be dancing, and Perry's orchestra will furnish the music.

All sorts of fancy work will be for sale at the various booths, which gives an opportunity to get hand-made Christmas gifts. There will be a patch-work quilt given to the holder of the lucky number; also a crocheted sofa pillow. Plenty of goodies and grabs for the children. Home-made candy will be a specialty.

MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

The Mothers' Association will give the beautiful Christmas play, "Eagerheart," which so many enjoyed last year, and to which mothers and children are cordially invited next Wednesday, Dec. 14, at 3 o'clock in High School assembly hall. No tickets will be sold, but a silver offering will be received at the door, as this is our only opportunity to replenish our treasury. Do not miss this chance to see this rare legend picture of the true Christmas-tide spirit.

BASKETBALL!

On Tuesday evening, Dec. 13, the newly-formed St. Mary's Society will entertain the Auburn A. C. 130 lb. champions of Boston, in the High School gym, at 8 o'clock sharp. The annual meeting and election of officers of Mystic Valley Lodge, A. F. & A. M., was held in Masonic Hall last Thursday evening. The following officers were returned: Amasa Harrington, W. M.; Harris M. Richmond, S. W.; T. Parker Clarke, J. W.; Franklin E. Crawford, treasurer; Edward E. Thompson, secretary.

SMOKER SATURDAY NIGHT

A smoker is announced at the Calumet Club for next week Saturday evening, Dec. 17th, at which time Mr. William A. L. Bazeley, Massachusetts Commissioner of Conservation, will talk on how to treat trees damaged in the recent storm. The talk will be illustrated.

COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS TREE

Arrangements are being made for a Community Christmas Tree on the Common this year.

The children from all the churches will, with the assistance of trumpeters, sing carols on Christmas Eve, and a true Christmas spirit will prevail.

The tree will be brilliantly illuminated and kept so until New Year's.

This is a custom which, without question, meets with the universal approval of all our citizens; and, with this end in view, contributions are solicited and will be received by Messrs. Parker & Lane at their office, and at the office of the Winchester Star.

Show a generous, Winchester Christmas spirit, and you will be fully repaid by the results. Send your contributions early.

Yours respectfully,
Committee.

CHILD STRUCK BY AUTO

Little Margaret King, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. A. King of 801 Main street, was struck and seriously injured by an automobile driven by Dennis J. McLaughlin of Woburn yesterday noon. She was taken to the Winchester Hospital and attended by Dr. Mead, who found her injuries consisting of a possible fracture of the skull and broken ribs.

The accident occurred near the junction of Swanton and Main streets. According to stories of the affair the child was on one side of Main street and her grandmother on the other. Just as the auto, a Ford sedan, approached the child started to run across. She was taken to the Hospital by Martin J. Caulfield who was passing in his car. It is reported that her condition is serious.

FIRE WAS ON BARN ROOF

The wind carried burning embers from a fire in the yard of Mr. J. B. Lord on Pine street to the roof of his barn Wednesday afternoon, it being necessary to call on the fire department to extinguish the blaze. As it was the damage was small, although a hole was burned in the roof of the structure. Box 55 was sounded, at 2:55 p. m. The fireman did not find it necessary to use any water on the fire, hand chemicals putting it out. The bon fire which caused the trouble was the result of the recent storm, men burning the twigs from some of the tree limbs which came down. After extinguishing the fire, the firemen were able to render assistance to another resident in the neighborhood by running a ladder to her upstairs window and going down through the house and opening her door, which she had locked without taking her key with her.

The Red Cross has great need for a typewriter for the use of the Committee of Home Service for Disabled Soldiers. Will anyone willing to lend one please telephone Win. 827-W.

The evening office hours of Miss Rising, the Home Service Worker, will be held at the Health Center, 9 Mt. Vernon street, instead of at the Town Committee room. The time will continue to be from 7 to 8 p. m.

"THE CAMEO GIRL"

Lost and Twice Found at the Town Hall Before a Record Audience

The Cameo Girl was nice to look at and pleasant to listen to, last Saturday evening. She was pretty and graceful and pleased an audience which comprised the largest gathering to fill the hall this winter. Her friends who helped her entertain could hardly be less than likewise, and all in all a very pleasant evening was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone concerned. The substance of the evening was a musical show given by the Young People's Society of the Congregational Church. It had little excuse for existing and overflowed with froth, but it served to present some tuneful music, some graceful dances and a bit of humor, all combined to entertain a large portion of our residents and aiding in swelling the fund for the parish house.

The plot tired no one's brain. Three wise seers of Moravia—wherever that may be—came here in quest of their queen, the Cameo girl. They succeeded in finding her, and then in finding their error in selecting the wrong girl, (although we would never ourselves have admitted it,) and in the end displayed their wisdom in selecting for wives three charming members of the chorus.

MRS. NEWELL KINGMAN MORTON
Leading Lady in The Cameo Girl

Their visit gave excuse for music and entertainment which made the show.

The Cameo Girl, not the real one, but the one who made the show, was Mrs. Newell Kingman Morton. She made an excellent lead and had a voice quite in keeping with her part. She pleased her audience thoroughly and needed only to grace the stage with her presence to receive an ovation. Who would not cheer a pretty girl! And when she sang as good as she looked, and danced a little quite in keeping, it proved an irresistible combination, and the audience paid homage to the new Star.

As might be expected, her friends upheld the rest of the performance. Their singing was good, their dances attractive and their costumes appeared to interest the tired business man. Richard Grant played opposite Mrs. Morton, and although he nearly became compelled to turn back to his lonely studio life he won out in the end, as all brave and handsome fellows do. He had several songs, all of which were given acceptably.

Our friend George Hodge made up anything he lacked over "Dickie's" ability in singing, in his superior ability in love making. He and Harriet Reynolds found no snags to throw them off their course, and as for Harriet—well, she made the best of it. You know how it is girls! And George isn't a bad fellow after all. Mimi and Rudolph made love in a way to satisfy all—if one may judge by the applause they got and continued to get in the tender duet they sang. By this we do not mean they did not sing it well, for they did; oh yes. But—Oh well, singing isn't everything.

The real Cameo Girl and her friend the Professor furnished the fun. We do not say humor, for there were a few bits which you may have picked out yourself which better come under that head. Alden Symmes was just as good on the stage as he is off, and that is saying a lot. As you all know Alden, we will pass him by. Dorothy Reynolds staged an artistic performance with an eye for beauty and an ear for brogue. She is not, however, open for Monday engagements. In real life she is a cultured lady and drives a car. So the Dutches and the Professor, after furnishing the fun

THE WINCHESTER LAUNDRIES, Inc.

COMING ORCHESTRAL CONCERT

It is seldom indeed that a musical organization comes to the fore as rapidly as has the orchestra of the Winchester Laundries, Inc. Founded a little more than a year ago as a part of the company's social welfare work in this well-known plant, its fame has gone abroad to that extent that its services are in much demand in outside cities and towns.

In some of the famous summer resorts in the State of New Hampshire during the past summer this musical organization was engaged to render promenade concerts for guests. These concerts called for a musical program of exceptional merit.

Probably one of the most inspiring programs ever given by this orchestra was at the Boston City Club before the great Rotary Club a few months ago.

It was among the most cherished idea of the organizers of this musical organization that the orchestra would become so celebrated. Surely its services are in goodly demand hereabouts this winter.

While we have been given to understand that this orchestra does not seek engagements the call for one of its fine concerts has been so insistent that one will be given in our home town, Winchester, on January 9th. This orchestra of twenty-six pieces will appear in a select concert at the Town Hall assisted by the famous Boston Male Quartet of Boston and a gifted and popular leader.

The management of the Winchester Laundries, Inc. have very graciously given their consent for the appearance of the orchestra and it is believed that many of our townspeople will want to hear this musical treat.

Tickets have been set at a conservative price to defray the necessary expenses and may be obtained at the usual places in the town where tickets for social events are generally sold.

MODERN DEMOCRACIES

Viscount Bryce,—folio 436, vol. 2. Reformers, impatient with the slowness and parsimony common among local authorities, have, however, been everywhere advocating State intervention, insisting that the reluctance of the local citizens to spend freely makes it necessary to invoke the central government, both to supervise schools and to grant the money from the national treasury for the salaries of teachers and various educational appliances. Here, as is often the case, the choice is between more rapid progress on the one hand and the greater solidity and hold upon the average citizen's mind which institutions draw from being entrusted to popular management.

SATURDAY MORNING'S FIRE

The family of Robert W. Jordan, residing in the house at 514 Washington street, near Clematis, was obliged to leave in their night clothes at 3.15 last Saturday morning when their house was found to be on fire and filled with smoke. They were cared for at the home of Mr. Herbert Seller adjoining.

The damage was not great, the fire being in the kitchen back of the range and eating into the partition a little. It was extinguished by chemical lines.

Mrs. Jordan awoke a little after three o'clock choking with smoke. She found the kitchen filled with smoke and a brisk fire going near the stove. Hastily awakening the two children in the family, she ran to the front door and shouted, her cries being heard by officer John H. Noonan who was passing. He rang an alarm in from box 33.

The fire department made a quick run and soon had the blaze out. It is thought to have started from clothes near the stove, in which a not fire was going.

MIXED TOURNAMENT STARTS SOON

The mixed bowling tournament at the Calumet Club will start this season or about the first of the year. This tournament is probably the most popular of the bowling tournament held annually at the club, and it is anticipated that the entry this winter will surpass all previous years.

The Door Slams On Happiness

Poor Blood Makes Bad Health -- Then Comes the "Blues"

Once the vigor of red blood becomes sapped of its strength, the door to happiness is literally slammed. Weariness of body follows and it unfailingly engenders depressed thoughts. To be reserved and cheerless becomes a habit. After a time there is an almost filmy dimness in the expression of the eyes and a pallor to the skin. Days seem dull and dark and difficult. A sense of insufferable gloom pervades the spirit.

Then it is that Gude's Pepto-Mangan is the great help. It is a red blood builder. It puts red into the blood—increases the number of corpuscles which make blood rich and red. When the blood is restored to its natural healthy state, the sensation of weariness returns. Instead of shuffling along carelessly, there is the firm and spring step, the bright lusterful eyes, the clear complexion, identified with the strength and vigor of good health. The druggist has Gude's Pepto-Mangan in both liquid and tablet form. —Advertisement.

CALUMET TOURNAMENT

Matches Resumed After Storm-Postponed Games Rolled Later

The first scheduled match in the Calumet winter bowling tournament to be rolled after the big storm, took place Friday evening, the games being just finished when the light was turned off. New pins and the combination of uncertainty of holding the matches evidently caused the low scores produced. Matches to have been rolled through the week, postponed owing to the absence of electric light, will be rolled as early as open dates can be secured. As a result of Friday's games, team 8 won three from team 13, 11 three from 4 and 15 three from 12. Aseltine was the only bowler to roll any remarkable score, he making a total of 326 with 129 for his best string. Wilson rolled 303 with 103 for his best single, and Saabye got 111, Stratton and Hovey 104 each, Carleton and Richardson 103 each, Goodale 102, Blanchard 101 and Simonds 100.

KERNWOOD THE BEST

Wins Both Bowling Matches From Calumet

The Kernwood Club of Malden visited the Calumet Club on Tuesday evening, a large delegation of club men coming over to witness the customary winter tournament in bowling, billiards, pool and cards. Kernwood got much the better of the meet, losing only in pool and billiards.

The bowling occupied the chief interest and the alleys were packed solid during the two matches rolled off. Kernwood First took all four points and Kernwood Second took three points. Excellent scores were made, and in one instance an exceptional figure was created, Allen of Kernwood Second rolling a single string of 166 and a total of 336. The third string of the First team match was a tie, Kernwood winning the roll-off handily.

Among the Calumet rollers, no one approached Berry, who made a total of 342 on a single of 118. Goldsmith made 309 with 105, Sanford 306 with 114, Goddu 113, Etheridge 112, Stephenson 108, (S. W. H. Taylor 308 with 109,) and Newman 103. On Kernwood's list was Allen with 366 on 166, Williams 333 with 119, Hartley 312 with 135 and Durgin 308 with 115.

Robert A. Reynolds won the three cushion match from Howard Bartlett handily, never being led from the start. Edward B. Smalley won the balk line billiards from Mr. Frank Bartlett in a sensational manner, running out on a count of 42 after trailing his opponent all the evening. Harry Stevens also made a neat win in his pool match with Dr. Francis, he being far behind most of the way and pocketing everything in the last three frames. He made easy work of defeating Dr. Cochell, leading 38 to 4 on the first three frames. The Calumet card players lost two out of three to Kernwood.

Mothers need have little fear in allowing their children to go on the ice there, as the water is shallow and there is plenty of room. Long Pond is one of the places in Winchester yet to see a drowning accident.

The other ponds are rapidly freezing over and some of them are being used around the shores, but parents should be careful in allowing children on them as the ice is green and still dangerous.

If you are going South you will need one of the new "Cami-shirts!"
No bothersome waist line, no hooks—just the sort of shirt you have always wanted to wear under your thin gowns. Made to order. Phone Win.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

One man said he was in luck, when his wife became too angry to speak.
I can think of no happier world than this, were all people to practice what they preach.
Musty opinions are never improved by airing them.
We fellows who are called upon to carve the turkey never get our share of sympathy.
This world is full of foolish people who are unable to see things from our point of view.
Sometimes a man with a powerful voice has a dent where his bump of intelligence ought to be.

LADIES' TOURNAMENT POST- PONED

Owing to the post entry of two additional teams, the ladies' bowling tournament at the Calumet Club, scheduled to open this afternoon, has been postponed, a revised schedule of games now being made.

As now arranged, the first matches will be held next Tuesday afternoon.
The new schedule and addition of two teams was made last evening by the committee, the teams and schedule printed elsewhere in this issue being superseded.

MRS. JANET LYTTON

Mrs. Janet Lytton, aged 90 years, a native of Scotland and long a resident of this town, died at the Home for Aged People on Kendall street, Wednesday after having been an inmate for the past eight years. She was the widow of the late Henry Lytton, and leaves no immediate family. The funeral services will be conducted by Rev. Clifton H. Walcott, pastor of the Baptist Church, at the Home on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. The burial will be in Wildwood cemetery.

GRANVILLE DEXTER RICHARD- SON

Mr. Granville D. Richardson of the Highlands passed away early Thursday morning at the Winchester Hospital after a short illness of typhoid fever.

Mr. Richardson was born in Winchester sixty-two years ago and lived here all his life. He leaves besides his widow, one daughter, Persis A.
Richardson; also two sisters, Mrs.
Charles E. Corey of this town and Mrs. Annie J. Ireland of Somerville, and three brothers, Francis S.
Richardson of Winchester, Frederick
C. of East Orange, N. J., and J. Edward of Wollaston.

The funeral services will be held from his late home, 597 Washington street at 3 o'clock on Saturday.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

tractive posters advertising "The

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The essays on Conservation written last spring for which prizes were offered by the Fortnightly Committee on Conservation will be read, and the prizes presented in the Assembly Hall at eight o'clock, Friday evening, December 9. These essays were judged by the Committee of the State Federation, and the prizes were awarded as follows:

First Prize—Dorothy Smith
Second Prize—Cathleen Case
Third Prize—Carolyn Breen
Honorable Mention—Ronald Locke
At this time there will be music by the High School Orchestra, and a lecture on "Our Native Birds and their Habitats" by Mrs. Goode. Parents and friends are invited to attend.

Several students in the commercial department have recently made records on the Remington Typewriter and have received awards as follows:
For writing an average of 41 words for ten minutes with only four errors.
Card cases—Ruth McBrine and John Davey; for writing 56 words a minute for ten minutes, gold medal and certificate—Gwendolen Windle.

The Underwood Company has awarded bronze medals as follows: 40 words, Annie Drohan; 42 words, Gwendolen Windle; 44 words, Ruth McLaughlin. These averages were really endurance tests, for the time was fifteen minutes with very small allowance for errors.

The highest records made this year by Winchester pupils are those made on the Royal Typewriter by Gwen-dolen Windle and Ruth McLaughlin who wrote respectively an average of 59 and 56 words for ten minutes.

The following seniors have given interesting talks in the Hall this week:

ball for the Season.

MORE LIGHTS ON DAILY

Edison Company Rapidly Caring For Subscribers

The Edison Company is rapidly getting its lighting lines in shape and every day from 30 to 50 more houses are being connected and receiving light after being in darkness since the big storm of two weeks ago.
There are, however, a number of houses yet to be connected, but the Company has a big force of men at work and is making every endeavor to care for these subscribers as soon as is possible.

This Sunday the churches, which were without light last week, will be connected, and most of the public meeting places are lighted. The street lights are not yet on except in the immediate centre of the town, and it will probably be several days before they can be attended to.

The telephone company is also doing good work in reestablishing its connections. With over 600 lines out of commission this is a stupendous job. Nevertheless, each day sees a larger number of lines in operation.

Last Friday afternoon it was found that several wires in dangerous positions were charged with current and the Edison company shut off the light and power in the centre. There was no light in the centre during the night and the acetelene flares were again set up and used to great convenience. These were set up by Edmund C. Sanderson of the Water Board.

During Friday night one of the heaviest downpours of rain to occur this winter was experienced, the storm opening shortly before eleven o'clock.
Many persons were caught out in the storm and hardly any escaped a thorough drenching. This rain made it absolutely necessary to shut off the electricity, and trees and houses were in danger of carrying the current through the water.

Saturday morning saw no light until the middle of the forenoon, but after that time the light was continuous and steady.

A survey of the damage to the trees about town appears to show that the early reports were not greatly over-estimated. There are some trees, especially among the maples, which are found to be in fair condition and not so bad as thought, but the large trees of slow growth have been hit hard, elms and oaks losing their best branches, and a careful inspection will be necessary in deciding whether they shall be cut down and replaced or an attempt made to save them.

All town departments have been working steadily through the week removing fallen limbs and cutting off dangerous, hanging limbs. In doing this work the town has endeavored to lend every assistance to the electric and telephone companies in furnishing service to our residents.

THE O. E. S. FAIR

The new Winchester Chapter, O.
E. S., held a successful fair on Wednesday afternoon and evening in the old Methodist Church, kindly loaned for the occasion by the Winchester Laundries, Inc. The large auditorium made a pretty and lively scene both afternoon and evening, with a large attendance and many attractively decorated booths loaded with articles which found a ready sale.
There were five booths, each decorated with a different color to correspond with the colors of the points of the Star representing the order—blue, yellow, white, green and red.

The money raised from the sale will be used for the good of the order.

The following comprised the committees and attendants in charge:

Food Table—Mrs. McIntosh, Mrs. Chas.
Lawson, Mrs. E. W. Hatch, Mrs. W. S.
Simonds.

Kitchen ware—Harry B. Tuttle and Miss Pearl Hammond.

Liebigant grab and dolls—Mrs. Gilbert, Miss Downer, Miss Lena McIntosh.

Fancy Table—Mrs. J. M. Wallace, Mrs. C.
W. Webber, Mrs. Lena Roberts, Mrs. H. L.
Larabee, Mrs. Parker Holbrook, Miss Ednah
Johnson, Mrs. Syer, Mrs. F. H. Knights, Miss Ruth Fries.

Candy—Mrs. John L. Clark, Mrs. T. Parker
Gibson, Mrs. Raymond Morrill, Mrs. Ernest
Hatch, Mrs. Raymond Strawbridge, Mrs. S.
L. Heath.

Aprons—Mrs. Warner Doane, Mrs. J. C.
Kerrison, Mrs. Raymond Bancroft, Mrs. C.
M. Stearns, Mrs. George F. Arnold, Mrs. Wm.
Elliot, Mrs. Johnson.

The men of the order had a very interesting table with many new features and was under the direction of Mr. W. L. Cummings, Mr. Arthur
Syer and all the men of the order.

A Cafeteria Supper was served and was presided over by Mrs. Mildred Sanford, Mrs. Edith Cummings, Mrs.
Myra E. Morrill, Misses Ethel and Florence Jewett.

There was a large attendance during the evening, and a most attractive program was presented. The Winchester Laundry orchestra of 21 pieces, conducted by Mr. T. Parker Clarke, rendered a number of selections, all of which received great applause and required encores. This feature was, like the hall, contributed by the Winchester Laundries, Inc. without expense.

Other feature included an exhibition of fancy dancing by Miss Irene Crandon, seven years old; readings by Miss Metzger; solos by Mrs. Gertrude Dayton Nason, who was accompanied on the piano by Miss Dorothy Kerrison. An especial feature was the singing and dancing by the Misses Pauline and Patsy Mason. This was one of the best numbers on an exceptional program.

During the evening the awards at the various tables were made. Mrs.
George H. Lockman winning a barrel of flour by guessing the length of rope hanging in the hall; Mr. A. T.
Downer winning the fine squash, which he auctioned off at 60 cents, and Mr. Warner S. Doane winning the pair of woolen blankets.

Mrs. J. Evine Johnson, who was in charge of the general arrangements, was assisted in the entertainment by Mr. T. Parker Clarke, and Mrs. Arthur E. Sanford, marten, desires to extend the thanks of the Order to all who aided in making the affair the success it was.

"CAMEO GIRL"

—real fun—quietly got married and lived happily ever after, ruling the Kingdom of Moravia, for the Dutchess finally drew the winning ticket and was declared the Queen.

The others! Well, Betty Bird, Lucy Wilcox and Dorothy Kelley were Molly, Polly and Dolly. They were three neices—we didn't learn of whom, but they looked very nice, especially to the wise men, and why say more. The entertainers were Phyllis Tutein, Hazel Smart, Betty Bird and Ormsby Court. The three young ladies gave some pleasing and well rendered solos, and Mr. Court's entertainment was called an eccentric dance. His eccentricities pleased the said tired business man, who applauded him with a heavy hand (no feminine hands could have made such a noise), and he repeated several times.

That covered the principals—all but one—Miss Winifred Bent the Spirit of Shadowland (which they always have in Moravia) was a bit of dainty laughter, prose and song which illuminated the opening of the two acts to perfection. We dare say she brought back to "Bick," sitting down from leading the orchestra, thoughts of the old Winchester amateur days. "Bick," by the way, had the assistance in his orchestra of Miss Mabel Wingate, "Jack" Wills, T. Parker Clarke and Mrs. Richard W. Grant. The orchestral music was not wasted upon an unappreciative audience by any means.

As a matter of fact there were two other principals in the cast, and we almost overlooked them. "Nip and Tuck," two popular song writers, were impersonated by Fred McCartney and Sherwood Kelley. Their popularity was immense. How the chorus could resist them is beyond us.

The chorus included the remainder of the 169 members of the cast, so you can see how big and how good the show was. There were so many girls (nothing but girls in the chorus of course) that it was hard work to make room for all the specialties; and the girls were all so pretty, and danced and sang so beautifully, that no one wanted them to stop and they just had to be ordered off the stage—sometimes. There was the "Old Fashioned Miss" chorus, the "Paint and Powder" chorus, the "Carnival" chorus, the "Villagers" (needless to say), the "Cameo Girls," the "Cinderella" chorus, and so on to them. Of course all were good. Here in Winchester they could not help it, but we think some of the bald-headed fellows were a little disappointed when these pretty girls that walked among them only pretended to powder their noses and didn't even sniff a speck on their tie. And it was aggravating to see those balloons without being able to make one of them pop and hear the girls squeal.

The "Cinderella" chorus was made up of little folks. These boys and girls gave a dainty minuet in which the Good Fairy and the Prince appeared and found Cinderella by trying her slipper on. The "Pierette and Pierot" chorus was popular, as was the far-famed "Paddle-Addle" chorus. There were also several choruses, but these ladies did not perform (for the public).

Mrs. William F. Edelson was responsible for the show and its success. To her untiring energy and labor lay its possibility and popularity. Undismayed by lack of lighting facilities through the most trying and important nights of rehearsal, she secured candles, lamps and spot lights, arranged for the care of the younger members of the cast, handled the tickets and laid out the program. To her as well as the artists and performers is due acknowledgement for a very pleasant and satisfactory evening.

The pianists were Miss Lucy Wilcox, Miss Irene Lord, Miss Kathleen Case and Miss Edith Swett. These ladies cared for the music incidental to several of the special numbers. The ushers were under Mr. Kenneth Caldwell. The ushers were Messrs. Gordon Parker, Theodore Main, Harold Myer, Arthur Cameron, Stanley Mobbs, Campbell Ross, Conant Bover, Sherman Saltmarsh and George Saltmarsh.

Gratifying alike to the artists and audience, was the presentation of bouquets of beautiful flowers at the close of the show to the principals of the cast, and the evening closed with general dancing.

UNITARIAN CHURCH BAZAAR

A very successful sale was held by the Ladies' Friendly Society on Tuesday the 6th; it was called a Bazaar of the Holidays and each table represented one Holiday of the year, with colored decorations appropriate to that day. Mrs. H. A. Goddard donated artistically decorated placards suitable for each table which were admired by everyone.

The Tables were:

April Fools Day, Grab Table—Mrs. J. R. Livingston, Mrs. S. P. Williams and Mrs. D. F. Higgins.
May Day, Doll Table—Mrs. Bridge and Mrs. Burton.
July Fourth, Candy Table—Mrs. R. T. Damon, Mrs. F. Hollins and Mrs. Fred Preston.
Ice Cream Cones—Mrs. Marshall.
Labor Day, Household Table—Mrs. F. C. Alexander and the Sewing Committee.
Halloween, Gypsy Camp and Basket Table—Mrs. I. Symmes, Mrs. F. Merrill, Mrs. A. F. Dow and Mrs. H. E. Stone.
Thanksgiving, Food Table—Mrs. C. F. Maxwell, Mrs. C. A. Smith and Mrs. Ernest Luce.
Christmas, Fancy Table—Mrs. Robert Carter, Mrs. A. E. Knight and Mrs. A. Hollins.

In the centre of the room was a beautiful Flower Table, which represented Decoration Day and was decorated with bright colors and balloons, which were sold late in the day to the children. This table was in charge of Mrs. Gale and Miss Downs.

The chairman of the Bazaar was Mrs. G. W. Apsey, assisted by Mrs. H. A. Goddard, Mrs. A. E. Young and Mrs. G. R. Ferguson.

A largely attended Luncheon was served from 12 until 2 P. M. The chairman for that part of the day being Mrs. C. H. Symmes, Mrs. W. E. Beggs and Mrs. A. D. Rogers.

YOUR

brought to our attention two peculiar ideas held by some of our customers. One was that it was unsafe to have a combination fixture connected. Our best answer is that it is not unsafe and if it were, then the insurance companies would not carry insurance on houses which had combination fixtures installed.

The other idea was about as silly. That air in a gas lighted room was unhealthy because the oxygen was used up. Poor old man Oxygen has been abused unto death. It has been proved that the air in a gas lighted room is very healthy air because the warm air from the burning gas sets up a circulation of fresh air and that germs are burned in the flame. In fact, the air in a gas lighted room is healthier than the air in rooms lighted by most of the modern illuminants.

TAXI DRIVER ROBBED HERE

Eugene Toemy of 211 Endicott street, Boston, a taxi driver, was held up and robbed by two men who hired him to bring them to Winchester Saturday night, the thieves later leaving him by the side of the road and going off in his car. The auto, a Hudson town car, was found Sunday morning in Somerville abandoned.

Toemy was approached by the two men Saturday night at 8:30 at the corner of Canal and Causeway streets, Boston. They made a deal with him to take them to Winchester, where they said they were to meet two girls and take them to Boston.

When they reached Winchester they directed him to drive up Main street as far as Sheridan circle. Entering this street they had the car driven around the circle to South Sheridan circle, where they ordered Toemy to stop, declaring that the house they were after had been reached. The two got out of the car, as did Toemy, and at that instant they presented a revolver and ordered him to hand over his cash. They secured a little over $13, and then ordered him to get inside, one of the men getting in with him and holding the revolver ready. The other man took the driver's seat and attempted to start the car.

The car started hard, and after trying in vain for about ten minutes the man gave it up and the two of them ordered Toemy to start the engine. This he did and was then ordered inside again. During this time the car was noticed by a police officer, who heard the attempts to start, but thought nothing of the incident.

Driving down through the center, the men again stopped at the Oak Grove cemetery, just over the Medford line, where they ordered Toemy outside and drove off and left him. He walked to Medford and reported the robbery to the police. Winchester officers were notified and Sgt. McCauley and officer Harrold went to Medford and questioned Toemy. He gave a good description of the men, one of whom is thought to be an Italian or foreigner. Police here and in surrounding places are working on the case.

New Light on Batteries

"Since all batteries look so much alike on the outside, how am I going to tell which one has the most value inside?"

That is a practical every-day question—and it has a simple every-day answer.

What greater assurance could you possibly have than the following combination of facts:

- 1—Extraordinary quality in the battery itself, as shown by the choice of the Willard Threaded Rubber Battery as standard equipment by the manufacturers of 173 makes of cars and trucks.
- 2—A nation-wide organization to serve you; and—
- 3—A record for quality and service dating back nearly to the beginning of the automobile.

You don't need a formal invitation. Come in any old time and get some new light on this battery question.

K. OF C. NOTES

An exemplification of the first degree took place at the regular meeting of the Council at Whites Hall, Monday evening, Dec. 5.

Preparations are being made by the local degree staff for a second degree which will take place early in the new year. A report from Edmund Goggin of the Building Association encourages the Knights to believe that this degree will be staged in their own hall.

The Council has reorganized the Basketball team with the intention of placing a very good team on the floor this season. Many of the men who played on the team in 1919 have signified their intention of participating. The veterans are Jim Valley, Frank Valley, Frank Donovan, Phil Savage, Jackie Hevey, Jack McKenzie, Stanley Johnson, Royal McCarthy, Walter Shaughnessy, William Carroll, Francis Murphy, Jim Wall, and Lawrence McIsaac, all anxious and willing to get in the game. Games for the season are being booked now and a complete schedule will be announced soon. The first practice game with Company A of Wakefield is set for Saturday evening Dec. 10, at Wakefield Armory. It is hoped that all sport lovers of the town will encourage the "Caseys" by attending the game.

Luke P. Glendon, chairman of the Minstrel Show Committee, announces a Turkey Whist at Whites Hall, Tuesday evening, Dec. 20th. On account of the storm, many who intended to run house parties for this affair during the month have had to postpone them till January. Many whist prizes have been donated to the Council and it is expected that these will all go to the Turkey Whist as that will be the only social event before Christmas. From 9 o'clock till 11 p. m. is the time set for the games, and the highest score gets the "bird."

The rehearsals for the Minstrel Show billed for Thursday evening, Jan. 12 at the Town Hall, with dancing till 10 o'clock after the show, are bringing out an enthusiastic crowd of young people every other night. The cast, including over 100 of Winchester's "best" under the snappy direction of "Decker" Thornton, promises to exceed in spectacular effects the famous show of 1920. Every little detail in the way of stage lighting and costuming is being carefully attended to by the committee in charge, and all signs point to an "over the top" production. Among the many dancing sketches billed for the affair are the "Dancing Doll" sketch, "Sweetheart Special," "Indian Dance," "Spanish Dance," and an exceedingly funny sketch entitled "Mack Sennett's Diving Girls." Mr. Harry Cox has promised something original in his own special line for the occasion, and the end men will be picked from true and tried veterans in minstrelsy.

Mr. Glendon announces tickets for sale for the show after Sunday, Dec. 11th at Piccolo Bros. Fruit Store on Main street. A limited number of seats will be auctioned off at Whites Hall, before the rehearsal at 2 o'clock and after rehearsal at 5 o'clock, next Sunday afternoon, Dec. 11th. There is no reason why the general public may not select good seats with these two dates in mind.

All brother Knights are to understand that the Bond Committee—Messrs. Henry Longfield, James Valley and John S. O'Leary—are not out for fun or glory but are resolved to make the Council's membership 100 percent share holders in the Building Association. Ten more members have been added to this Committee, and the drive is now on. Let the New Year see every man's name down for a bond and let the Council go into its new home not over burdened with debt.

For Sale—Shrubs, Trees, Vines and Rosebushes at the Melrose Nurseries, Japan Barberry and Cal. Privet for hedging, landscape planting. A. M. Tuttle & Co., Melrose Highlands, Mass. Tel. Melrose 42.

WHAT OUR ADVERTISERS OFFER

The Many Things You Can Buy in Your Own Town for Christmas

The Winchester Exchange is showing some exceptional gifts this year in the many smaller things one desires to fill out the Christmas list. A full line of gift wrappings is included, together with many attractive things for the stocking.

A popular and attractive gift, especially for the younger members of the family, is a membership in the Christmas Clubs. Both the Winchester Savings Bank and the Winchester National Bank are now forming their Christmas Clubs for next year. Your boy or girl will appreciate a membership, and it will do them a world of good.

Another gift along the same line is a few shares in the Winchester Co-operative Bank. An investment in this line will be appreciated in future years, besides starting one in the habit of systematic saving.

Christmas candy is being shown this season in all of its most attractive forms at Randall's. This firm, besides making a very delicious ice cream, with weekly specials, makes popular candy you may desire. For Christmas there will be sold the usual specialties.

At Knight's Pharmacy this year one can buy many attractive toilet necessities, all of which form attractive gifts and many of which will fit a stocking—young or old—to perfection.

Winchester is fortunate in doing its Christmas shopping in that it is served by one of the best auto repair shops in this vicinity. Kimball & Earl have a rapidly growing list of customers. They will keep your car running during the holidays, when you certainly need it the most. This firm knows automobiles from top to tires.

The hundred and one things for the Christmas dinner are all contained by our Winchester markets. Drummond, as usual, is selling some of the finest turkeys in town. Richardson, besides carrying fowl, meats and groceries, is supplying many of those little delicacies which add greatly to the season's enjoyment. Blaisdell's Market is stocked with a full line of everything for the holiday table, all first class goods and delivered promptly. Seller's Market, as usual, is booking turkey orders and everything along that line, while the Swanton street Market announces some exceptional bargains in particularly attractive groceries.

AUCTION TUESDAY

The Kelley & Hawes Company are announcing this week an auction of exceptionally attractive articles, many of which are especially suitable for Christmas gifts, to be held next Tuesday, Dec. 20th, in the Brown Block. The auction is to be in the hall on the second floor, one flight up entrance on Mt. Vernon street. There is much china, many pictures and a big lot of fine household articles to be disposed of.

CHRISTMAS FOR THE POOR

The Overseers of the Poor are making their customary appeal for contributions for the "Christmas Cheer" provided for unfortunate families. The Holiday Season is a time of Christian unity and fellowship and the committee earnestly requests that as many as possible join in the plans for the extension of the Yuletide spirit of abundance to the less prosperous section of the town. They make the suggestion that any individuals who contemplate giving Christmas dinners to needy families send the Department of Overseers such information, thereby co-operating and avoiding duplication, and assuring a more even distribution. It is particularly requested that contributions be made at an early date.

If anyone desires the names of families who would welcome a dinner the list may be obtained from the Overseers of the Poor Department, Town Hall.

Any contributions of clothing or other articles will be called for upon request or notice to the Poor Department.

Telephone Overseers 1383

Office hours 1 to 3 p. m.

(Every day except Saturday.)

One of the annual events of the holiday season, and one which is eagerly anticipated by a large group of children is the Christmas Party. There is always a tree on which is hung a bag of candy and a toy or book for every child. Then to make it a real party ice cream is served to all. There are also games, songs and a magician to add to the fun. None of the children who are invited to this party would have any such pleasure at home. In some homes sickness or want of work makes it impossible to provide for the children. Many of them have no parents to care for them. Would you like to help in giving such a party this year? If you are interested in sharing some of your Christmas joys with those less fortunate please send a contribution of money, to, or communicate with Mr. Nathaniel M. Nichols, 10 Hillside avenue; 658-W.

BODY OF WINCHESTER AVIATOR ARRIVES

Services for 2d Lieut. Chester R. Tutein Saturday at Unitarian Church

The body of 2d Lieut. Chester Robinson Tutein, killed while flying in France in November 1918, arrived at his parent's home on Wildwood street yesterday forenoon, coming here from the army base at Brooklyn, N. Y. Services are to be held at the Unitarian Church on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. George Hale Reed, pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. Joel Hastings Metcalf of Portland, Me., formerly of this town.

Lieut. Tutein enlisted in the American Field Ambulance in France in May, 1917. He left that service in November of the same year and went into the aviation service, being killed while flying at the front a year later, six days after the armistice was signed, when his engine went dead and his plane fell in a nose dive.

He was the son of President E. Arthur Tutein of the Winchester National Bank, and Mrs. Tutein. He leaves besides his parents three brothers, Dexter A., E. Arthur Jr., and Richard Allen, and one sister, Miss Phyllis Tutein. He was a graduate of the Winchester High School and was in his third year at Technology at the time of leaving for France.

The burial will be in the family lot in Wildwood Cemetery.

CUT BLUE SPRUCE AND SUMMONED INTO COURT

Two years ago autoists cut several of the fine evergreen trees set out by the Town on Highland avenue near the George E. Henry house and got away with them. Last year several more of the trees went. Sunday, another fine Colorado blue spruce was cut by autoists and the offenders caught. Mr. Edwin H. Richardson of 25 Cumberland street, Boston, will be summoned into the Woburn court on the charge.

It is the custom of many autoists at this season to take about what they want in the way of evergreen. Every day sees car after car going through town loaded with young pines and spruces, and property owners on the outskirts are up in arms over the conditions. Our tree department, under Mr. Samuel S. Symmes, has set out about town many handsome evergreens, including a number of valuable specimens, and these have suffered with others privately owned. In fact in some instances autoists have not hesitated to go directly onto private lawns and cut valuable ornamental trees.

On Sunday the auto party was noticed cutting the tree by a young man living in the vicinity. He told someone to telephone the police and then spoke to the offenders. When they attempted to start their car he turned his auto across the street, blocking them until the police arrived.

CREDIT FOR CAMEO GIRL SUCCESS

Editor of the Star: With due respect to our genial editor, (for without his co-operation we could accomplish little) I wish to say that while I appreciate his conception of my ability, I fall far short of the capabilities mentioned in his write up about the "Cameo Girl." Mrs. Florence Scales handled the tickets with great handiness owing to no telephones. Mrs. Wm. LaFavour worked hard to present a fine orchestra. Mrs. Burton and Mrs. Snyder did great work on an advertising program. Mrs. W. I. Palmer handled all the finances and paid all bills.

I take this opportunity to thank all who had any part in making the "Cameo Girl" a success, our net profit was eight hundred and eight dollars, but of course this had to be shared with Harrington Adams Co.

Anna Edlefson (Mrs. W. F.)

DO NOT CUT PINES

Many pine trees in the Fells have been already cut for Christmas trees and some of the larger trees have been destroyed by persons cutting off their tops. All persons are requested to refrain from cutting these trees at this season. Many young pines and spruces have been set out about the reservoirs, and the Water Department will prosecute any persons found guilty of cutting them. The Boston automobile party arrested last Sunday for cutting a blue spruce on Highland avenue was fined $10 in the Woburn court yesterday, notwithstanding a vigorous defence.

DR. SHEEHY SPOKE ON MEDICINE

The members of the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's parish held a smoker and entertainment Wednesday night in St. Mary's school hall. Rev. Fr. Joseph M. Fitzgibbons, spiritual director of the organization had charge. Daniel T. O'Connell, formerly head of the news bureau of the Friends of Irish Freedom at Washington, spoke on the situation in Ireland and England, and Dr. Richard W. Sheehy spoke on medicine.

TO MY CUSTOMERS:

I wish to thank you for your patience during the recent storm. I have not been able to serve you as promptly as usual. It seemed my duty to furnish the Edison Company all the help I could to restore the electric lights. My entire force of 40 men and 4 trucks have worked continuously since the storm, and conditions are now about normal. I am now ready to fill your orders promptly.

Yours respectfully,
Edmund C. Sanderson.

K. OF C. MINSTREL SHOW

By the way the tickets went at the advance sale of seats for the Minstrel Show it is predicted that the Town Hall will be filled to overflowing Thursday evening, Jan. 12th. The management deems it advisable to hold back a limited number of tickets for auction after each rehearsal. Sunday afternoon the sale will be on again at 2 o'clock in White's Hall.

The show itself, a combination of old-time minstrelsy, and high class vaudeville with over 100 in the cast, promises much in the way of entertainment. Director Thornton is introducing many innovations such as eccentric dances, comedy acts and lively dialogue into the circle, which the endmen—Harry Cox, Jack Fitzgerald, Clarence Dunbury, Henry Monahan, Charlie O'Connell and Tom Farrell will handle in real professional style.

The sketches are well made up of local talent, with Stanley Johnson, Royal McCarthy, James Wall, May Kennedy, Lucy Glendon, Elizabeth Flaherty, Ethel Kean and several well-known soloists as leaders. Real "dolls" will participate in the "Dancing Doll" sketch, and the collie in the "Irish Sketch" will "step in out" with the best from the "ould sod." The Indian and Spanish sketches are made up of dark-eyed beauties in fascinating dances, and the "Mack Sennett Diving Girls" are all warranted to be mermaids with first-class references and irresistible charms.

Scribner's orchestra will furnish music for dancing which will continue till one o'clock after the show.

Mr. Luke P. Glenon, chairman, announces a Turkey Whist at White's Hall, Tuesday evening, Dec. 20. All interested in the success of the show are expected to attend.

POLICE CONVICT TWO CHECK OFFENDERS

The Winchester police had two men in the Woburn court Monday morning charged with obtaining and attempting to obtain money by means of forged checks and worthless checks. Breckenbridge Russell of Boston, well known here, was given 18 months on two counts, one for uttering and the other for endeavoring to cash a check knowing the endorsement to be forged and Frank Poor of Medford, an old offender, was given six months on two counts. He obtained money at the Stores of Piccolo Bros. and Miss Maloney on Washington street.

Russell attempted to cash a check at the Winchester Trust Co. for $66 Saturday morning. The check was payable on a New York bank. He was also charged with attempting to cash a check for $25. He was arrested Saturday night in the South End, Boston, by Sergt. McCauley.

Poor, who has been engaged in building a garage for parties on Irving street, bought groceries at the Maloney and Piccolo stores and tendered worthless checks in payment. He had previously been arrested for the same offence at Medford, where he had been staying for a short time. Russell appealed his sentence.

WOMAN'S BENEVOLENT SOCIETY

The Woman's Benevolent Society of the First Baptist Church held its regular meeting yesterday. The luncheon was in charge of Mrs. G. A. Felber and over fifty were served. At the business meeting Mrs. F. W. Blakesley of Roslindale gave an interesting address explaining the organization of a woman's union, combining into one society all the women's organizations of the church. Plans were discussed for forming such a union in one Winchester church. A nominating committee was appointed consisting of Mrs. Harry Winn, Mrs. Curtis Furlong and Mrs. Edw. Berry, to nominate officers for the ensuing year.

BUILDING PERMITS

The Inspector of Buildings has issued the following permit for the week ending Dec. 15: Gertrude S. Nash of Myrtle street. Wood frame garage at 10 Lawson road.

LIGHTING SITUATION NEARLY NORMAL

The lighting situation in this town is nearly normal. The big storm did uncountable damage, and a big crew of linemen have been steadily at work for the past fortnight restoring lights all over town. Today, practically every house in town has its electric lights.

Winchester is about the first of those places which were struck hard by the storm to have its lighting service restored. The Edison Company has spared no expense in repairing broken services or doing all that has been found necessary to give its customers the light. When it is reported that over 275 house services were down, not taking into account the many pipes which were pulled off other houses, the size of the job may be imagined. Added to this was the great number of breaks in the street lines, where one service wire was often broken in a dozen places on one, not very long, street.

To augment its own force and aid its customers, the Edison Company ordered E. C. Sanderson to put his whole crew on the work, laying out their work as seemed best to him in aiding the restoration of service. As a result Mr. Sanderson put his whole 40 men at work on house services, using four trucks with four gangs of men in various sections. The Edison Company put out two trucks and two gangs of men at nothing but repairing the high tension wires and trunk lines.

The town has been fortunate in having a concern able to handle such a call, but Mr. Sanderson was right on the job and the lights have been turned on with marvelous rapidity considering the magnitude of the job.

It is expected that the street lights, which have been out since the storm, will be restored within a day or so. Fortunately our moonlight nights have helped in this crisis.

The telephone company has also done a good job in restoring its lines. No attempt has been made to restore the wires in their original condition, but there are few houses where the telephone is not working today. In restoring this service the company has strung its wires on trees, posts and fences—but they are working. Meanwhile the company has a big gang of men replacing the broken and damaged poles, and as soon as this work is completed the attentions of the men will be given to putting the house services in condition to stand the winter storms.

COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS

The citizens of Winchester are invited to meet around the Community Tree Christmas eve, on the Common at seven o'clock.

The 6th, 7th and 8th grades of the public schools, led by Mr. R. W. Grant, will sing old English carols. Between their selections there will be singing by all of the familiar church carols, the words of which will be distributed. Let all who can join the celebration of Christ's birth and in so doing fill themselves and each other with true Christmas-tide spirit.

The financial co-operation is urged by the committee and contributions may be left at Parker & Lane's or the Star office.

If the weather should be stormy or extremely cold the celebration will take place on Sunday evening at the same hour.

WADLEIGH-PRICE PARENT ASSOCIATION

An important meeting of the Wadleigh-Price Parent Teacher Association was held Monday evening in the Prince School. A report was given of the progress of junior athletics, in which many children are taking part. The presentation by the Building Committee of the proposed school building program was followed by a lively discussion. At the close of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES

The following cases of contagious diseases have been reported to the Board of Health for the week ending Dec. 15: Chicken pox 17.

TELEPHONE COMPANY GIVES SERVICE

"Over 100,000,000 feet of various kinds of wire, or nearly enough to girdle the earth, has been temporarily laid on the ground or attached to fences and pole stumps during the past ten days, in order to restore our service at the earliest possible moment," said General Manager Driver of the Telephone Company yesterday.

"To show the magnitude of our problem, two orders for copper wire aggregated 400,000 pounds each. We have on hand or on the way 13 carloads of crossarms, six carloads of pole line hardware, and over 50 carloads of poles. Other material aggregates thousands of items."

"A conservative estimate shows that the storm will cost us upwards of $1,500,000. Fortunately we have a reserve large enough to take care of this expense."

"We have over 3000 men at work clearing up the wreckage, setting new poles, running lines and connecting telephones. They are doing a big job in an orderly and systematic way."

"In every section we are making rapid progress, but our task is tremendous. Already toll service in Maine, New Hampshire, Eastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island is nearly normal. In the western part of Massachusetts about 25 per cent of the toll circuits has been restored with temporary construction."

"In Greater Boston we have connected about 5000 telephones and we hope to restore service to about 10,000 others during this week. In other cities and towns local service is being restored as rapidly as possible."

"Every available man who can be spared has been rushed from Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont and a number of toll line crews and trucks have come from New York, Pennsylvania and other states to help in Massachusetts. We have been able to relieve the employment situation to the extent of taking on temporarily over 1000 unskilled men to do salvage work, dig post holes and assist in stringing wires."

"Our men are out to break all previous records in an emergency and they are going to do it."

"With so many poles and wires down scores of towns were completely isolated from communication with surrounding communities. We had to work quickly and so we adopted the method used during the war and laid our covered wires by the roadsides. Later all these lines must be placed on poles after the new poles have been erected, and still later the wires must be tightened and weak spots located and fixed."

"One of the first things we did was to make temporary connections from Boston to Worcester and points west, and from Boston to Portland."

"A new underground cable between Boston and Worcester was planned long ago. All the conduit is laid and a new cable containing 462 talking circuits will be in service within a few months."

"Our men were quick to devise new ways of routing toll calls. Within a few hours a Boston to Portland line was established by way of Rochester and North Conway, N. H. a Boston to Springfield line by way of Providence and Hartford, and a Worcester to New York line by way of Boston to New York under ground. These are typical of many roundabout routings as substitutes for direct toll circuits."

"Toll circuits from Burlington, White River, Bellows Falls, Rutland and Keene were immediately connected with our underground cable at Lowell and brought into Boston, thus establishing communication to points north."

"Our multiplex line between Boston and Bangor, which makes possible five telephone conversations on one pair of wires, was badly damaged, but in less than a week we had it working, stringing several miles of wire along the ground to bridge a section destroyed by the storm."

"To illustrate how earnestly our plant men are working, here is a typical incident reported from Haverhill. A combination man named Coleman went to work at 3 o'clock in the morning. About 2 hours later we asked him to go to Brandy Brow, about three miles from Haverhill, and connect five Boston to Portland circuits. With no supper, his 'river' frozen, he worked on a pole by the light of a lantern until 9 p. m., when the job was done."

"In our business we call that the 'spirit of service.' Such instances as this have been exemplified hundreds of times in emergencies. In a word, our plant men have done, and are doing, a magnificent job."

This is a custom which, without question, meets with the universal approval of all our citizens; and, with this end in view, contributions are solicited and will be received by Messrs. Parker & Lane at their office, and at the office of the Winchester Star.

Show a generous, Winchester Christmas spirit, and you will be fully repaid by the results. Send your contributions early.

Yours respectfully,

FRANCES JEWETT REPERTORY THEATRE

The Jewett Repertory Theatre is looked upon as an important factor in the artistic and literary life in the city of Boston. This theatre better, known as the Copley, is to be torn down upon need of a new street, and Boston must lose the repertory idea, or a new house must be built.

"Education has outrun the Schools, it has called every art to its aid, and now is calling to the theatre, which of all the arts holds up the mirror of humanity, and is a great factor in our midst."

In the spring of 1918, a small group of interested friends of this Repertory Theatre in Boston, having watched its struggles, and realizing its worth to the community, decided to raise a fund to sustain, encourage, and enlarge the scope of its influence and usefulness. This was to be in the form of an endowment built up by means of gifts from those who desire to foster this idea.

This fund is incorporated under the state laws of Massachusetts for "educational, literary, or artistic purposes," and as such is tax exempt. It is named The Jewett Repertory Theatre Fund, Inc., and the money is deposited in the Old Colony Trust Company.

A year later, in February, 1919, in order to supplement this fund and at the same time to increase, sustain and spread the interest in this repertory theatre, a club was formed by seven women on Lincoln's birthday. It was named the Frances Jewett Repertory Theatre Club. This Club has now a membership of over 1800, and through the untiring efforts of the Executive Board, the purpose for which it was formed is rapidly being carried out. It has added largely to the original fund, which now amounts to approximately $50,000.

Many of the Woman's Clubs have joined this club in recognition of its value from an educational point of view. The Fortnightly, is among them and under direction of the chairman of the Dramatic Literature, and Education Committees, held a reception in the club room, next door to the theatre, last Thursday afternoon.

About seventy club members attended the play "Bunty Pulls the Strings" and afterward the reception.

The President, Mrs. Hildreth, and vice President Mrs. Apsey received with Mrs. Abbott, the president of the theatre club.

Tea was served, Mrs. Edleford, Mrs. Gamage, Mrs. Getty and Mrs. Cole poured.

Some of the actors came to the club room, and a general good time was enjoyed.

DEC. 20, "FATHER AND SON NIGHT" OF THE AMERICAN LEGION

Editor of the Star:

It was my privilege last winter, to be one of a family in a shore town who entertained Felix Weiss after his lecture before the Club. His talk, which was of great interest, we had enjoyed, and very much liked the man. But the continued pleasure in the home was one not soon to be forgotten.

The morning hours tolled before we realized we had sat up all night listening to him. Of course that cannot be your privilege here, when he lectures in the Town Hall on the 20th; but I do hope everyone who can do so will hear him on that "Father and Son Night."

Seemingly a retiring, somewhat shy and delicate man, it is difficult to imagine him connected with the Secret Service.

I hope if there is time after the lecture, or talk, he may be persuaded to tell you something of his boyhood home life, and his struggle later in finding work in this country.

You will find Felix Weiss not only a most interesting speaker, but a most lovable man.

REV. GEORGE HALE REED CHAIRMAN

Rev. George H. Reed of the Winchester Unitarian Society has been appointed chairman of the church membership campaign in Winchester to recruit a 25 percent increase in members in a nation-wide "follow-up" of the successful financial canvass of last year when approximately $2,400,000 was raised within the denomination. The membership campaign in the United States and Canada is a project by the Unitarian Church "to awaken in the minds of Unitarians a consciousness of individual responsibility for increasing the service of Unitarianism to the world and to change irresponsible audiences to active congregations."

CHILD HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Miss Dorothy Osborne, the eight year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman V. Osborne of Brookside road, had a narrow escape from death on Tuesday when she was struck by an auto truck on Washington street just north of Forest street. The child was knocked down, and when the truck was stopped she was pinned by her clothes under one wheel. It was thought she was injured, but examination at the Winchester Hospital, where she was taken, revealed that she was unhurt. The truck was owned by the Crescent Leather Co. of Boston and driven by C. G. Burgess of East Woburn.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

By the Spectator

The sermon every Winchesterite likes is the one that seems designed to do their neighbor good. They like to say: "The minister has the courage of his convictions. He hits Mr. — hard and he deserved it!" Somehow they get familiar with the failings of every one excepting themselves, and we know the medicine they need. How much better it would be if we were conscious of our own faults and anxious to mend them. Now there is not a single Winchesterite in the church or out of the church, who would not pull the brim of their hats down over them if our faults were printed on our foreheads. It would be in the best form to praise the sermon that punctured our own helmet and prompted us to immediately make repairs. While we are seeing faults in every one else no one sees perfection in us. There are none who can show up our faults to us like an enemy. We all have them and he who thinks he has none is the most faulty of all. Get eagle-eyed for your own blemishes and charity will come and sit right down with you.

The sense of humor is lacking in large numbers of people, often in those who are most confident they have it. A sense of humor makes it easier for one to see things in their true proportions, to make a true appraisal of comparative values, and is an antidote to pompous solemnity and the arrogance of infallibility. A great gift or grace it surely is. The man who has it never poses, never pretends to be other than he is nor is he likely to be deceived by the pretensions of others. It did more than ease the strain to which Lincoln was subjected—it sharpened his visions and clarified his thinking. There is nothing clownish about it—on the contrary it is, when genuine, usually associated with true wisdom. One finds it in the philosophers—Socrates, for instance. Carlyle's "Sartor Resartus" is full of humor, as well as eloquence and pathos. Probably no man ever had a keener sense of humor than Benjamin Franklin; without it he would have been much less great and wise. It is not mere wit and does not consist in telling funny stories. These when they are a part of it, are only superficial manifestations. The thing itself goes far deeper, and has to do with the attitude of a man toward life and truth. Nor is it inconsistent with seriousness and earnestness. But it is at war with the spirit of exaggeration, and with the despair felt by those who think that failure must follow a refusal to be guided by their counsel and accept their leadership. In short, humor makes for sanity. It has been said that "humor was the only test of gravity, and gravity suspicious," while "a jest which would not bear a serious examination was certainly false wit." Thus there does seem to be some connection between even gravity and humor. George Eliot says of a man that "his smile is sweetened by his gravity." A sense of humor, however, is destructive of that gravity which is deepest and most gloomy when there is not reason to be grave. There is, we read in the Bible "a time to weep, and a time to laugh; a time to mourn, and a time to dance." Humor of course, is at its best when kindly, for then it has a persuasive power, which is something that satire or cynicism rarely, if ever, has. Of course there have been great men, men who have done great things, who have been almost wholly without it, so fierce and almost savage—was their earnestness. Perhaps even they would have accomplished more had they been thus dowered. On the other hand, there have been masters of a splendid invective who had it—as Carlyle. It is in truth a normal element in a well-rounded character. It is not merely an ornament, but a power, and when of the right sort, and rightly used, a power for good. There is no record of a sweeter nature than that of Charles Lamb, or one more instantly responsive to the challenge of duty. With all his humor, which often took the form of mere trifling, he had great capacity for grief—and also the capacity to bear it manfully. Brave, true and faithful, he met to the full every obligation that was imposed on him, or that he voluntarily assumed. Whether without humor one can "face" things as they are is a serious question. Arnold himself, who preached the duty of thus seeing things, was a delightful humorist, and yet his poetry—much of it—is saturated with melancholy. It has often been so, as with Lincoln. Even playfulness is by no means necessarily inconsistent with depth of character, or seriousness of aim and purpose. For the child heart can not be wholly a stranger to sadness.

Whatever else a Winchesterite may be led to expect do not let anything convince you to expect others to consider your troubles interesting. Your troubles are all your own and it is up to you to be their executioner and the only one to say a word at their burial. Nobody likes to listen to a tale of woe and the uses of the courts were designed to cut them short. You may make oath to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth till the day of doom, but you will never get a chance to tell it if the lawyer can prevent you. There is always trouble enough to go round, but those who cannot wait for their share will borrow trouble. Trouble is just as essential to life as joy, but man has no use for a superabundance of either. Trouble is said to have been divinely designed to just fashion us for better things. None of us thank God for our troubles, and we are careless about thanking him for our blessings. Our troubles are good to keep under our feet.

What's a bit of sadness
If you just keep going on
In the spirit of life's gladness
To the promise of the dawn:
Whistling thro' the woodland, climbing up
The lonely rise
Where the hills of hope are gleaming in the sunshine of the skies.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING

December 12, 1921.

The Board met at 7 o'clock P. M., all present.

The records of the meeting of December 5 were read and approved. Licenses 1922 (Dealers in Second Hand Motor Vehicles & Parts Thereof): An application was received from the Winchester Buick Co. for an Agent's License—Class 1. The matter was referred to the Chief of Police for report.

Coasting and Physical Training: Messrs. James Russell, Jr., Clarence J. Whorf, Raymond E. Pinkham and Joseph Sandberg, representing the parents of the children of the 6th, 7th and 8th grades appeared before the Board in regard to the request of the Citizens' Committee for Junior Athletics for a hearing before the Board for the purpose of bringing up the following two subjects for discussion.

1. "Will it be possible for certain streets to be set aside as coasting places for the school children this winter?"

2. "Will it be possible for the use of the Town Hall to be extended to the children of the 6th, 7th and 8th grades for their physical training?"

After an explanation by Mr. Russell as to just what this committee had in mind the Board passed the following vote relating to the use of the Town Hall:

VOTED: That free use of the Town Hall be granted to the Citizens' Committee for Junior Athletics for the purpose of athletics and games by students of the 6th, 7th and 8th grades of the public schools on such afternoons and Saturday mornings as will not conflict with other use of the hall is granted with the understanding that such games and athletic activity shall be under adult supervision, and with the further understanding that windows, clock and fixtures shall be properly protected. The Citizens' Committee must also make arrangements for janitor service as necessary. It is understood also that no expense shall attach to the town for such use of the Town Hall.

The General Clerk, Miss Mabel W. Stinson, is to make some arrangement with Mr. Pinkham about notification of free dates for use of the hall. The matter of coasting was referred to the Police Committee for investigation.

Eastern Mass. St. Ry. Co. Mr. Vard B. Leavitt, Supt. of the Melrose-Woburn District of the Eastern Mass. St. Ry. Co. and Mr. William J. Stevenson of 29 Hemingway street appeared at the invitation of Mr. Bond to talk over the matter of the fare charges in Winchester from the Woburn line to the Medford line. Mr. Leavitt stated that he will take up the matter with the Trustees of the Street Railway. The matter was referred to Mr. Bond to write the Street Ry. Co. about the matter.

Building Lines (Mystic Ave): Messrs. W. R. Cowdery, 6 Mystic Avenue and Francis J. O'Hara, 20 Mystic Ave. and all members of the Planning Board together with the Town Engineer appeared at the hearing held in regard to the Board's intention to lay out a building line on each side of Mystic Avenue its entire length beginning at Main street and extending to Mystic Valley Parkway. After an explanation by Mr. Cowdery that the establishment of building lines were asked for because of certain vacant lots on this street that might be built upon, it was finally decided to have the Town Engineer proceed with the obtaining of releases, having in mind a 15-foot set back on the north side of the street its entire length and a 20-foot set back on the south side, its entire length. Mr. Sylvester called upon the telephone that he is willing to do whatever the others on this street decide upon.

Street Lights 1921 Irving St: The matter of consideration of the petition of Fanny Doherty and John Peterson for a street light on Irving street was laid over one week pending report from the street light committee.

Arlington St: Mr. William I. Palmer appeared before the Board and presented a petition signed by himself and several others asking the Board to secure an appropriation at the annual town meeting for thoroughly reconstructing with Tarvia surface, Arlington street, from Cambridge street to High street. The matter was laid over until such time as the highway budget for next year is being considered.

Street Lights 1921: The Board voted to have the street lights turned on in Winchester on Christmas morning at 4 A. M.

Sidewalks 1921 (Granolithic) & Curbing: (Lawson Road): A letter addressed to the Town Engineer was received from Charles P. Dow asking that steps should be taken to have a curbing laid in front of his property. This matter was referred to the Town Engineer for report, estimate of cost and recommendation.

Meeting adjourned at 10:45 P. M.
George S. F. Bartlett,
Clerk of Selectmen.

The Northern Lights.

The name "aurora borealis" was first used by Cassendi, who, in 1621, observed one in France and wrote a description of it. The "aurora" is periodic in its manifestations, the finest displays being at intervals of 60 years, and less marked ones at intervals of ten or eleven years. It is asserted that the greater and lesser displays correspond with the increase and decrease of spots on the sun. This phenomenon is generally manifested in the following way: A dim light appears on the horizon shortly after twilight and gradually assumes the shape of an arch having a pale yellow color, with its concave side turned earthward. From this arch streams of light shoot forth, passing from yellow to green and then to brilliant violet. The name aurora borealis, while generally referring to the northern lights, also is applied to a similar phenomenon visible in the vicinity of the South pole.

RHODESIA: WHERE BARBARISM IS COMPLEX

He who complains of the complexities of civilization, or of the rapid changes in styles, or of the multiplication of laws and ordinances, and believe that the simple life is practiced among primitive tribes, will have a rude awakening if he examines the customs of the aboriginal Rhodesians, says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society, relating to the South African people who are reported moving back to their reserves to preserve their native institution.

Southern Rhodesia has some 40,000 Europeans among its three-quarters of a million people and these whites may be considered bona fide colonists in a land settling down after a somewhat disappointing gold boom to regular operations of agriculture and mining.

Laboratory for Tribal Study But northern Rhodesia is the happy hunting ground for the human geographer; where he may study the effects of a plateau region upon remote tribes that have been little affected by the encroachments of the white man. Here nearly a million natives inhabit an area greater than Texas where fewer than 3,000 Europeans have established themselves.

The illusion that all savage people do pretty much as they please is dispelled upon a cursory examination of a legal system that has penalties of mutilation for minor offenses, whose judges must fold their hands in a certain way when they try cases, and where every native male inevitably becomes something of a lawyer since the daily public trials furnish the principal village diversions.

"Mother-in-Law" Honored

The quips at women's extravagance in dress, and the variability of modes, which often provide the inevitable topical song at American musical shows find their prototypes in the minstrelsy of a Wemba swain whose metrical plaint is, "O Woman, you are like a greedy wagtail, pecking up all you can get." But a "mother-in-law" joke in this tribe would result disastrously for its perpetrator. So great is the reverence shown this relative that a husband must step aside out of the path if he meets her abroad. Should he come upon her unaware he must bow his head, cast his eyes upon the ground, and not dare look at her. Nor may he address her at all until after his first child is born.

Women anoint their bodies with castor oil, they whiten their faces with chalk at new moon time, but the variety of ways they dress their hair also is a subject for native humor. Deformation of their teeth forms another adornment; but the practice which their husbands complain about is their penchant for acquiring rings and bracelets. The latter range from bands of copper to spirals of metal that reach from wrist to elbow, and similar devices used as anklets.

Temperate Climate

With the ever increasing overflow of civilized populations Northern Rhodesia soon may be preempted by colonists. Indeed the movement of natives back to reserves may indicate that such an inflow already is taking place. Though it lies across the equator the Rhodesian plateau is adapted to the white man by reason of a climate that has no extremes. Moreover its boom cities of Bulawayo and Salisbury possess hotels, clubs, business houses and apartments, built in the flush of hope that it would be a second Rand and then deserted by the fortune hunters, and now waiting the coming of a more sober and sustained development.

Much of northern Rhodesia is suitable for farming; there are vast tracts of grazing land. Maize and tobacco are at present the principal crops. Wheat cotton and citrus fruits may be grown successfully. The timber awaits transportation facilities. Gold, copper, zinc and lead mines already are worked.

Don't miss the G. E. K. dance.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

It sometimes happens that when a woman loses her husband the loss is fully covered by insurance.

Some people are down on their luck, and others never have any to be down on.

An obliging person is usually very popular and is also usually imposed upon.

If a man does not possess enough money to speak of it certainly should be his privilege to do his own talking.

Gossip is like a cartridge fired from a gun of idle curiosity.

We note with pleasure that steps have been undertaken to have another community Christmas tree on the Common this year. This will be welcome news to many, for our last tree, at the beginning of the War, was a holiday feature that took with young and old, and almost universal regret was expressed when it was found necessary to abandon it. The tree this season will be set up within a few days, it being in charge of Selectman George E. Willy and Mr. Edmund C. Sanderson. It is to be about 40 feet in height and will be surrounded by a three-foot gold star. While we all will enjoy it, the work entailed by the two gentlemen mentioned should not be forgotten, and we have no doubt but what they will welcome your assistance in any way you may choose to extend it, either by contribution or otherwise.

HOLY NAME SOCIETY "SMOKER"

White's Hall was crowded to the Exits Wednesday night at St. Mary's Holy Name Society's "Smoker," the first in a series to be held on the second Wednesday of each month till June. Pres. Pat. J. Kenneally opened the proceedings at 8:30. Musical members were given by Messrs. Garby and Archie O'Connell and exceptionally impressive talks by Doctor R. W. Sheehy of Winchester, and the Hon. Daniel T. O'Connell of Boston and Washington, D. C. Dr. Sheehy took for his theme, "Modern Improvements in Medicine," while Mr. O'Connell appealed for "Faith in Race" and talked interestingly of his "Experiences at Washington" as the National Director of the United Societies at Washington for an Irish Republic. After an address by the Chaplain, Rev. Joseph M. Fitzgibbons, the "Smoker" was voted a wonderful success and admitted by all present a novel institution. Something Winchester and the Holy Name Society has looked forward to for a long time. The next "Smoke-Talk" will be held January 11th, 1922, the Speakers to be announced later.

WINCHESTER SCHOOLS

Winchester, Mass.
Dec. 16, 1921.
To the Friends of the Winchester Schools:

The teachers of Winchester have taken it upon themselves to raise a Milk Fund which will be shared by the children of the Elementary Schools of the town, and which will provide milk for every child needing it and unable to buy it.

The children of the Town of Winchester are our most precious asset. Every possible means to build them up physically should be utilized.

Many of our children are under the normal weight. Two years ago we began to give milk to some of the children and the gain in weight by the children who regularly drank the milk was marked. Unfortunately, many who most needed it were unable to buy it because of the limited incomes of their parents. The Fortnightly and the Mothers' Association have helped nobly, but many children are still unprovided for.

One dollar will provide one child with milk for a month. Will you contribute a dollar for this purpose?

Please make your check payable to Ethel R. Savage, Treasurer, and send it to Mrs. Ethel R. Savage, School Nurse, Prince School, Winchester, Mass., on or before Dec. 21, 1921.

Very truly yours,
Mary A. Lyons,
Edna M. Hatch,
Winchester Teachers' Milk Fund Com.

BASKET-BALL!!

Victory opens Season

St. Mary's Catholic Society, with its motto "Do all things well and well by Everybody" has progressed by leaps and bounds since its organization by Rev. Joseph M. Fitzgibbons in October of this year. The Society's Basketball Team with games scheduled for each week until April 16th promises to keep abreast with the Boys' and Girls' other achievements. Last Tuesday night in the High School gym St. Mary's star team defeated the accredited 130 lb champions, the Auburn A. C. of Boston, by the score 25-18.

Captain Joe Tansey and Joe Mathews played a splendid game with Joe Flaherty shooting Baskets with regularity, Francis Tansey and Clarence O'Donnell completed the Five. Others to be heard from later are Jim Fitzgerald, Tommy Gigliotti, and a host of more boys who are accepted to make the first quintet.

Mr. Lewis R. Smith, the wonderful left-forward of New England's picked professionals of fifteen and twenty years ago has been engaged as coach. All Winchester knows "Lewis Smith" and how, as a "Y. M. C. A." player and later with the famous "Lakesides" of Arlington, he pulled all to their feet by his long basket shots and defensive gang against the world's champion East Boston A. A. Stars in 1907.

"Louie" has promised to show Winchester and Boston and Salem how Basketball should be played by coaching the St. Mary team to play as he electrified the fans from 1900 to 1908. Next Tuesday night his team will meet the fast Fenway A. C. of Boston in the High School Gym. The game starts at 8 o'clock. Admission 25 cents. Dancing will follow each home game, music being furnished by Cullen's orchestra.

THE CONCERT—JANUARY 9th

The forthcoming concert to be held in the Town Hall, January 9th, by the Winchester Laundry Orchestra, assisted by the Lotus Male Quartet of Boston, and Bertha Morgan, Boston's finest reader, has developed a great deal of interest both locally and outside our town.

No pains will be spared to make this a most enjoyable evening and a most pleasing program has been arranged so varied in its character as to be a source of enjoyment to everyone.

The Lotus Male Quartet is so well and favorably known that no comment is necessary save to say that their numbers will be satisfactory and entertaining. Bertha Morgan is a gifted reader and those who have heard her will want to hear her again. The orchestra of 26 pieces will bring out some pleasing musical features under the able direction of T. Parker Clarke.

From the interest that has been manifested in this fine concert a limited number of tickets have been set aside for public subscription, and may be had by applying at the offices of The Winchester Laundries, Inc.

Your Christmas Dinner

Before Christmas Day arrives you must plan your Christmas Dinner. After the usual Christmas gifts have been distributed in the early morning hours, the Christmas Dinner will be the center of interest, and you will want it to come up to the expectations of your family and friends. You will find at our store just what you need to make a big success. Here are just a few of the good things we offer:

Mince meat—the word alone sounds good; we will venture to say that you can pay more than we are asking, but we know you won't be able to get better.

Cranberries, only the best that grow at Cape Cod enter our store.

Nuts of different varieties are, as usual, the best to be had.

Figs, the finest, whether they be in bulk, pressed in five or ten-pound boxes, or down to the one-pound package, will be found to be one of the most acceptable gifts to send to a friend.

Cluster raisins, done up in neat packages; you will not find better.

Candies, the regular Christmas varieties; you will find that we have a large assortment.

Seasonable fruits, such as grape fruit, oranges, bananas and the fancy table apple, in assortments to please everyone.

We could go on, but seeing is believing, and we ask you to come and see for yourself as to our qualifications to supply your holiday wants.

WHAT OUR ADVERTISERS OFFER

Our dry goods stores are carrying the best holiday stock in their history. At the Bancroft store can be found useful articles, fancy goods and toys. At Franklin E. Barnes' store one can get many things for the male member of the family, as well as attractive linens and baby articles.

Electric lamps and fixtures are always popular gifts. Sanderson will make over your favorite oil lamp to take electricity or will sell you a new lamp for living room or chamber. H. B. Macomber is displaying many of the useful electric conveniences, including chafing dishes, irons, toasters, etc., besides an attractive line of lamps.

Flowers and plants, together with holly, mistletoe and wreaths, always are eagerly sought for the holidays. Arnold the Florist has a line which will delight you at once. Beautiful, well conditioned flowering plants, and every kind of Christmas greenery can be found at this store.

Another feature attractive to many at this season is the attractive trips offered by the Temple Tours. This firm is listing some of the best trips in years, and many people are planning to spend the disagreeable winter months under their direction.

Without doubt, your Christmas will be brightened by "Blossom Hill Guernsey Milk." If you have ever tried this milk you will pronounce it the best you ever drank. Produced from some of the finest cattle found in this state and right in your own town.

More than one child will be glad to ride this Christmas with a term of riding lessons at Harry Good's stable. All children like to ride horseback. The Good classes are justly popular.

Of course you will go to the movies during the holidays. A fine selection of shows is offered you at the Regent Theatre, Arlington, the Woburn Theatre and at the Stoneham Theatre. All three will run special bills.

A new battery for the car is not amiss either for father or mother. You know of course that Napoleon Goddu is carrying the fine new Electrolyte battery, and he is selling a lot of them to satisfy customers. Oscar Heitler carries the Prestolite. He also has a full line of tires—and what could be more useful for the whole family and enjoyed any more through the months to come?

In listing batteries, Winchester is fortunate in having an up-to-date Willard Battery service station. The well known Willard battery, with its rubber separators, is something every car owner desires. The Willard people are showing some fine new batteries that will fit your car.

Another Winchester firm which has many attractive things for Christmas is the Winchester News Co. Cards, stationery and magazines are always acceptable. A subscription for a magazine carries thoughts of the giver through the whole year.

The Arlington Gas Light Co. has on display many attractive things for the house, from stoves to those little bright warm room heaters. A visit to their office will reveal many attractive gifts.

An automobile will delight the whole family. Our local Ford agency has a full line of this popular car, now considered one of the necessities of life. Our Buick agency is showing a line of cars which will certainly please you, Buick worth being as well known as Buick service. Walter L. Claffin is showing the Wills-Sainte Claire, the new car which has created such an interest among auto owners. He can place one of these fine cars in your home by Christmas morning.

When your friends visit you over the holidays, do not forget the Central Garage. Room for storage either over the holidays or permanently, under the very best conditions. Perhaps you are interested in a Dodge car, or the big King Eight. You can get either at this place.

For Christmas books no better line can be found than that shown by the DeWolfe & Fiske Company. This is the old Archway Bookstore and is located at 20 Franklin street, Boston. Just the place to go when buying your Xmas books.

Wilson the Stationer has his usual line of cards, wrappers and stationery together with the hundred and one things found in a well stocked store. His new film projectors are popular with the boys and girls, and do not forget that a diary makes a fine gift.

When planning your Christmas dinner be sure to visit the Hutchinson Market. This firm makes a specialty of its turkeys and can give you one of the nicest birds you ever ate. Along with the turkey, it can supply you with the best of everything else for your table.

Candy, nuts and fruit will also be needed. Piccolo Bros., has its usual big line ready for you, with nothing but the choicest variety. Gargas Bros., too, have a fine assortment of fruit, figs, dates and trees.

The many articles in the jewelry line can be found at Butterworth's store on Common street. He has a hundred and one things which will delight and attract. A gift of silver, gold or jewelry carries lasting worth.

More than one family will appreciate a ton of coal this Christmas. Keeping a house warm is something to be thought of this cold weather. The Parker & Lane Co., will send that ton wherever you order.

A savings account will start the youngster right. Remember that the Winchester Trust Co., besides its regular checking accounts, runs a savings department.

For the finest Christmas candies, made by experts from the best material obtainable, your will doubtless recall Clara & Catherine. Their chocolates and specialties are individual and distinctly out of the ordinary.

At Allen's Pharmacy, besides finding a line of Pace & Shaw candies and many attractive toilet articles all ready for your selection, you can purchase that ever-needed box of cigars for the "man." All the best brands to select from.

JAPAN'S PLACE IN THE PACIFIC

Japan, which from a position of isolation in the Asian seas, has emerged to become one of the dominant factors in the Pacific, might be termed the narrower and less compact Britain of the Far West, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Like the British Isles, the Japanese Islands form the fringe of a great continent; both were in the hands of petty kings and grew into a centralized nation; both looked abroad for expansion; and both have conceived of their safety and future prosperity as dependent largely on sea power.

Has Remained Center of Empire. But there are differences as well as likenesses between these two nations. Since she began to grow into an empire Great Britain has resolutely turned her back on Europe in so far as territorial acquisitions are concerned, and has sent her colonists into the remote parts of the world. Japan, on the other hand, has acquired large blocks of the neighboring continent, but has expanded somewhat in other directions also. Great Britain has become the headquarters of a scattered, distant empire. Japan has remained so far the center of her empire with her possessions drawn relatively closely about her.

Though Japan had imperial ambitions even in the early centuries, as indicated by the fact that she once conquered Korea, and laid claim in the sixteenth century to Formosa and even the Philippines, the national life, when Commodore Perry opened communications with the West in 1854, was confined to the three main southern islands of Japan proper and the small islets near their shores. Not until the seventies did the government begin development of Yezo, the big island to the north—the Japanese Scotland. Both Russia and Japan claimed Sakhalin, the fifth and northernmost of the large islands of the Japanese group, and there were similar double claims to the Kurile group, a chain of small volcanic islands, comparable to the Aleutians, which stretch from Yezo northeastward to the tip of Kamchatka. In 1875 Russia induced Japan to take the Kuriles and relinquish all claims to Sakhalin.

Wars Have Profited Japan. These expansions to the north were of little value, for the cold, black northern lands have never appealed to Japanese colonists. Yezo is sparsely settled, and the Kuriles have only a handful of inhabitants. Japan's next step was to the south. In 1879 she annexed the Lu-Chu archipelago, extending from the southernmost of the large Japanese Islands southwestward for 700 miles to Formosa. China laid claim to these small but pleasant and populous islands, as she did to Formosa, but she finally consented to Japan's annexing them.

Japan's victorious war with China in 1895 gave her immediate territorial advantage and in addition greatly heightened her prestige among the nations. China ceded the island of Formosa (now officially known as Taiwan) with its 13,000 square miles of territory and its 3,500,000 inhabitants; and the Chinese peninsula of Liaotung on which battle-scarred Port Arthur is now situated, and acknowledged the independence of Korea, Russia, France and Germany forced Japan to relinquish the Liaotung peninsula, and Russia later leased it from China; but the Russo-Japanese War placed it again in Japanese possession, and the island empire now holds it under a 99-year lease. By defeating Russia, Japan further extended her influence both on the mainland of Asia and among the islands. She obtained a protectorate over Korea, "sphere of influence" in Manchuria, and the cession of the southern half of the island of Sakhalin.

FARES FORTH INTO PACIFIC

As a result of the World War, Japan has made further territorial advances north, east, south and west. Her sphere of influence has included eastern Siberia, she has taken over the German lease on Kiaochow in China, and by receiving a mandate for the three archipelagoes of former German islands in the Pacific north of the Equator, she has fared thousands of miles eastward into the Pacific.

The magnitude of Japan's present interests in the Pacific can better be understood, perhaps, by imagining her island territories transferred to the more familiar Atlantic and the directions reversed. The various groups of Japanese islands would then extend from the Shetland islands southward along the coast of Europe and Africa for 2700 miles. Formosa would be situated just north of the Cape Verde Islands. The Marianas or Ladrone Islands of the mandate would occupy a position near the Azores; and the hundreds of islands of the Caroline and Marshall groups (the remaining mandate islands) would string out across the Atlantic from near the Cape Verdes almost to Cuba. Honolulu, under this transposed geography, would occupy about the position of Santa Fe, New Mexico.

As direct outlets for emigration, Japan's mandate islands, because of their restricted area, are of little importance. But as bases to facilitate naval operations and trading activities to the south and east they are comparable in importance to Hawaii as bases for the westward activities of the United States. And Japan means to make the islands "pay for their keep." She is stimulating the systematic planting of coconut groves, and her traders are fast replacing foreign goods in the islands with those of Japan. The islands add only a few thousand miles of territory and some 50,000 people to the Japanese empire. But the scattered points of land "fence in" approximately one million square miles of the Pacific.

ROBINSON CRUSOE SPOTS OF 1921

Crowded as the world seems to be getting, Robinson Crusoe could find a haven today, and he would not have to resort to the polar regions either.

Numerous islands still dot the seas where a visitor would find no living soul, and there are others where the inhabitants are living in almost primitive simplicity, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Nor is it necessary for you to choose a plot of land belonging to any other country than the United States. There is Baker's Island, 3,725 miles out from San Francisco, as well as many other such isolated dots in the Pacific, where there will be no chance of getting even a faithful Friday to share your lot. Vessels used to haul guano from the island, but today the deposits are practically worked out. If you feel that you must have your wife somewhere in the offing you can send her on to Howland Island, 25 miles to the westward, an equally deserted spot, and row over to see her when you get bored with your freedom.

Hunting and Fishing are Good. Fanning Island might interest a less exclusive individual. This elysium lies in the mid-Pacific about 235 miles north of the equator, is of atoll formation, and is thickly covered with coconut trees. There is a fair harbor on the southwest side out of which its 200 men and women ship their copra. Pearl oysters are to be found in the lagoon, poultry and cattle can be procured, the fish are plentiful and excellent, and duck, snipe, and curlew may be shot.

A British cruiser late in 1920 visited a spot which has had only one other caller at her port since July 1919. This isolated place is Tristan da Cunha, said to be the loneliest spot in the British Empire. The island, which is of volcanic origin, towers to a height of 8,000 feet above sea level in the south Atlantic. So thoroughly has the never-worry creed taken its hold upon the people that the men move in a listless fashion, only bestirring themselves enough to keep from starving, and let the women do what work there is to be done. There are only 119 inhabitants on the island living in its 22 stone thatched-roofed houses. Their wood is that which drifts in to them on the tide, they raise potatoes as the food staple, they make their meagres of soft bullock hide, they obtain a few clothes from an occasional ship which calls there in exchange for geese, fowls, milk, sheep, eggs, and cured albatross and penguin skins, and for months in succession they do without bread, tea, coffee, and sugar. The people are fast deteriorating in type due to interbreeding.

St. Helena Isolated but Inhabited. The nearest inhabited island to Tristan da Cunha is St. Helena of Napoleonic fame. This rugged bit of earth rises out of the south Atlantic 1200 miles from the nearest part of the African coast. Before the days of the Suez Canal it had some commercial importance, but today its excellent harbor shelters vessels only while they are coaling. Its ten thousand inhabitants enjoy a most equable climate, the mean temperature ranging throughout the whole year from 65 to 71 degrees.

A bit of land in the Pacific which, as did Yap, ruffled the surface of the Peace Conference is Nauru. Though only 12 miles in circumference, this pretty little island with its many beautiful lagoons which mirror its tall coral pinnacles and coconut palms in lifelike perfection, is a treasure house of millions of tons of rich phosphate of lime. It is perhaps one of the most livable of the Pacific islands, as the promoters of the phosphate industry have established free laundries, ice, electric lights, and refrigerators for the preservation of fresh foods. Employees have their own homes and there is an almost endless succession of social functions to keep them alive and happy. In fact, the place is known as Pleasant Island.

A People Lacking Curiosity. If there is a skeleton in your closet, rest assured that the few inhabitants of Easter Island, 2300 miles off the coast of Chile and the easternmost inhabited island, will make no effort to bring it forth into the light, as one traveler says of them that they are not curious enough to turn around on the dock to look at the boat that calls there about once in eighteen months. Gigantic statues, stone houses, and sculptured rocks, relics of an ancient people, are found on the island.

One rather isolated spot that owes its fame to the elder Dumas is the little island of Montecristo, which lies 25 miles south of Elba. The King of Italy now has a hunting lodge on the island, which is interesting to visitors on account of the ruins of the Camaldulensian monastery.

First Concrete Building.

The first extensive use of concrete construction and its extraordinary development by the Romans from the First century, B. C., came in direct response to a demand for building construction as a means to an end. That is, construction of a nature as much utilitarian as ornamental. Practically all the world, as known in those days, paid tribute to Rome. Its conquests were many. Triumphal arches, temples, theaters, aqueducts, bridges and roads were constructed on a vast scale to indicate to the newly acquired provinces, which were naturally restive, the power and administrative energy of the Romans. It was the most intensive building period the world has known and, according to some opinions, has gone without parallel for 20 centuries—until the introduction of present-day methods of building.

Orang Outang.

The huge apes (anthropoids) known as orang outangs are incorrectly named, probably owing to the difficulty of pronouncing Malay. Orang means a man, and outang a debt, so that orang outang means a man in debt. But the Malay word outang means forest, so that orang outang means man of the forest, in distinction to orang dusun, man of the village, civilized man.

DID YOU VISIT US?

How a Blind Woman's Friendly Call Left With Us A New Vision and Understanding

ONE of the most interesting of the many interesting incidents of our recent Telephone Week was the visit of an aged blind woman, one of our central offices.

My telephone means much to me!" she said. "The world could certainly be a better place for me without it; yes and much brighter and cheerier. So I thought I'd accept your invitation to call, in order to tell you that. Of course I can't see how you make all these connections, but I'd like to feel the switchboard and see if I could understand the process."

This and other incidents of Telephone Week gave us telephone people a new vision of our job, and a new conception of what telephone service means to those we serve. We appreciate more keenly than ever that the world would be much madder for almost everybody but for the service which we are a part.

And, being human, we desire to do what we can to make the world bigger and happier by giving the best possible service.

The good-will and understanding resulting from these visits make us wish that our patrons would feel that they are welcome to call on us during any week of the year.

We plan no special preparation and desire no formal notification. A call to the Chief Operator or Manager will be sufficient. That will enable us to fix a time when service demands will be least pressing and when our Service Committees can best arrange to show you around.

Don't feel that this is a bid for sympathy or praise. If you are having service troubles, come and tell us about them and see if in a spirit of friendly cooperation we cannot find a way to correct them.

You will be welcome at any central office in the Boston Division. Please plan to call in the afternoon, if possible.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

On Monday last we listened to a very interesting, instructive lecture on Porto Rico by Byron Wm Reed, illustrated with pictures and music. Mr. Reed is a lawyer by profession, but has made music his avocation, "just for fun" he says.

While on the faculty of the High School in Ponce, Porto Rico, he spent much of his spare time studying the Island music, and finally became director of music in the University of Porto Rico.

His many beautiful pictures, taken by himself, sometimes with great difficulty, met with much enthusiasm, they gave strong contrasts between buildings of 1500 before time of Columbus, and those of the present day. His views of tobacco fields, sugar plantations, and sugar factories were very instructive.

The native instruments, the oldest a gourd used as a drum, the "Sweet Potato" of our time and the native guitar used to accompany his songs, were very interesting and in addition he gave us some choice selections of their native melodies on the piano. The Club Cook Book is well under way. Please have your recipe that you have not yet handed in, ready for next Monday Dec. 19th or mail to Mrs. Simons, 38 Church street. The club adopted the recommendation of the board, and voted to have an entertainment of some kind on Jan. 23rd instead of the proposed luncheon.

The next meeting of the Literature class will be held at the home of Mrs. A. J. Wallace, 9 Calumet Road. The program is in charge of Mrs. Ely, and the subject will be "American Contemporary Drama."

Our next meeting will take place on Monday, Dec. 19th, our fortieth birthday. This will be a family party, we shall have a reception and tea with founders, past presidents and honorary members as our guests.

The short business meeting will begin sharply at 2:30, the program will follow immediately.

Mr. Bicknell's orchestra will play throughout the afternoon, Mr. Herbert Wellington Smith, Baritone soloist, will give groups of songs.

WINCHESTER WOMAN MARRIED IN CALIFORNIA

The following clipping from a California paper reports the wedding of Mrs. Martha Amy Wyman, formerly of this town. Mrs. Wyman left here last month to wed her old childhood friend, being given a great send-off by her neighbors at Winchester Highlands.

Charles A. Reed of Santa Barbara, aged 74, and Martha Amy Wyman of Winchester, Mass., age 74, were married Saturday night by Rev. Alfred J. Hughes, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, at the home of the brother of the groom, A. L. Reed, on 1108 Santa Barbara street.

It is sixty years since the bride and groom have seen each other, till she stepped off the train at Santa Barbara Saturday night and was met by Charles A. Reed and Rev. Mr. Hughes at the station. She immediately went to the residence where the ceremony was performed with only a few intimate friends present. Charles A. Reed is a widower.

The couple expect to make their home with the groom's brother in Santa Barbara, for they feel this is the real land of perpetual youth, it is declared.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Several members of the junior and senior classes enjoyed the illustrated lecture on Porto Rico at the Fortnightly on Monday afternoon.

The Underwood Typewriter Company has made the following awards to members of the Commercial Department during the week. Test for fifteen minutes, certificates—Aby Winer, writing an average of 31 words; Jessie Nauffts, writing an average of 32 words.

Bronze medal—Marion E. Smith, writing an average of 48 words.

The junior class is planning a Christmas party for the school on the evening of Saturday, December 17. Hints as to the arrangements promise a very good time. Because of lack of room only pupils at present in school are invited. As at all high school gatherings parents are very welcome as spectators.

Under the direction of Miss Helen Bronson about forty members of the freshman class have organized a Chapter of the Junior Red Cross. The following officers have been elected: President, Edward Mansfield; Vice-president, Erskine Kelly; Secretary, Marietta Barnes; Treasurer, Margery Kimball.

Marion Smith of the present sophomore class has been elected Captain of the Girls' Field Hockey Team for next year.

THE POSTMASTER SAYS:

Postoffices having carrier delivery are not supposed to make window delivery to individuals until after the carriers have returned from their second trip. Window delivery in the morning takes time that should be used in sorting mail for the carriers. Such delivery causes a great loss of time, and is unfair to the clerks and to the general public. From the recent date until after Christmas patrons will kindly refrain from asking the clerks for mail until after 4 o'clock in the afternoon. It is our desire to give the people of Winchester the best service they have ever had but it cannot be done unless the public generously do their part.

G. H. Lochman,
Acting Postmaster.

SHOP IN WINCHESTER

NO PRO-GERMANS WANTED

No pro-Germans are wanted; outside of that one limitation, every man in Winchester is invited to an open meeting of the Local Post of the American Legion, next Tuesday evening, December 20th, at 8 P. M., at the town hall.

As has been previously announced, there will be two speakers on that occasion, Mr. Henry J. Ryan, popularly known as "Sailor" Ryan of the American Legion, and Mr. Felix Weiss of the U. S. Department of Justice.

During the war, Mr. Ryan was a regularly enlisted seaman in the Navy, but the value of his services as a speaker was soon realized, and he was sent out through the country, speaking during the Loan drives, and in plants doing war work. His stirring appeals helped to sell thousands of Liberty Bonds, and to break many a strike which would have seriously affected the production of war necessities. His great ability in this service was not overlooked, and, on two occasions, he was recommended for promotion to the rank of Captain, but he preferred to keep the title the people gave him, "Sailor Ryan. The Silver Toned Orator of the Navy."

Since the ending of the war, Mr. Ryan has given himself to public service, principally by advancing the cause of education. He was, until recently, National Chairman of the Americanization Commission of the Legion, and became known throughout the country for his work of Americanism.

Mr. Weiss, whose broad experiences and varied services to his country during the war were mentioned in last week's "Star," will have for his subject, "On the Trail of the Spy." At the time of the war, little could be told of the activities of the Secret Service men of Uncle Sam. They were working, as we all knew, but very few of us knew what they were doing, or the details of absorbing interest which led up to their big exposures. Now the truth can be told, and Mr. Weiss will tell of his part in trailing Dr. Muck and his gang, the agitators, the reds, the bomb throwers and the spies.

In addition to the speaking, Mrs. Nan Fynott will entertain at the piano, and lead in singing some of the songs which were so popular during the war. Mrs. Fynott sang and played at the army camps throughout the country during the war, and was received with enthusiasm by the boys wherever she appeared.

There has been some misunderstanding regarding this meeting, inasmuch as some have thought an admission would be charged. The Legion wishes it understood that the meeting is free to all the men of Winchester, and that they will be the guests of the Legion. Others have thought that the purpose of the meeting is to raise money. This is not so. No contributions will be solicited or favors asked.

The purpose of the meeting is to combat pro-German propaganda, which is again creeping into our country, and which has recently appeared in a virulent form, even in one of our Winchester churches. The purpose of the meeting, further, is to revive that spirit which existed in the days of 1917-1918, the period of the country's test and sacrifice. Again the purpose is for the townsmen to get acquainted with the Legion members of Winchester, and to learn of what they and their organization stand for in the further service to their country.

Unlike the town meetings, attendance will not be restricted to those over 21 years of age. The boys of the town are welcome to attend, if they care to. Brothers and friends of Legion men are especially invited. The Boy Scouts have been asked to be present, and will attend as a body, the north balcony being reserved for this purpose.

The Legion officials have spared no effort to make this event a success and a worth-while night for all who attend. Remember, there will be singing, smoking, good-fellowship, and good speaking at the Town Hall, Tuesday, December 20th, at 8 P. M. Everybody come.

WINCHESTER HIGH SCHOOL TO PLAY ALUMNI BASKET BALL TEAM

The High School basket ball team will start its season Thursday, Dec. 22, at 8 p. m., against an Alumni team composed of stars of former years. Captain Van French of the Alumni team expects to have in his line-up such players as Skinner, Raynor, Eldredge, the Hart twins, Cullen, and others of corresponding ability. Most of these men are now in their second year in college. This team will be practically the same one that defeated the school team last year about this time by the score of 31 to 15. The line-up of the latter team has likewise remained almost unchanged, but the boys feel that with the experience gained during the past year they are going to show the Alumni and the fans some playing that will astonish them.

The High School squad has been practicing for about two weeks now. The squad has been cut to about twenty men, and another cut will soon be made to reduce the number to about sixteen, the number needed for the first and second teams throughout the season. J. Tansey, A. Winer, H. Gray, F. Tansey, J. Flaherty, C. Prime, and C. O'Donnell are out for the forward positions. Mathews, Fitzgerald, and A. French are showing well at center. The guards include R. Mortenson, G. Chapman, G. Kendrick, J. O'Connor, J. Kelly, and French. The team which will probably play against the Alumni on the 22nd will be J. Tansey and A. Winer, forwards, Mathews, center, and R. Mortenson and G. Chapman, guards. An inter-class game will be played between the halves of the first team game.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Crawford and daughter, Georgiana, have returned from a seven weeks trip to Chicago and western Pennsylvania.

PRIZES AWARDED

The Conservation committee of the Fortnightly proposed a prize essay contest to pupils in the Winchester High School on the subject of conservation; each contestant to choose his, her own subject. There were one hundred written. These were carefully judged by the teachers and eighteen selected, which were forwarded to the Conservation committee of the State Federation, and the prizes were awarded according to their judgment, on Thursday evening in the High School assembly hall. Mrs. Woodside presided, and very gracefully presented the prize winners, each one of whom read her well written essay without notes.

Mrs. Hildreth, President of The Fortnightly presented the prizes as follows: First prize to Miss Dorothy Smith, Subject, "Conservation of the Forests," prize, four volumes of Thoreau's work; Second prize to Miss Kathleen Case, Subject, "Conservation of Municipal Garbage," prize one volume of stories of the Operas, and one on Opera Composers; Third prize to Miss Caroline Breen, Subject "Preservation of Birds," prize one volume of history of the United States. Honorable Mention, to Miss Ronald Locke, Subject "Waste on Back-woods Farms," a certificate was given to her.

Mrs. Harriet U. Goode then gave a charming talk about our native birds, illustrated with beautiful pictures taken at her home "Birdacres" in Sharon.

WINCHESTER JOINS IN PETITION FOR TICKET PRIVILEGES

A spirited hearing was held before the Division of Public Utilities in the State House last week, lasting from 10:30 till one o'clock on the matter of ticket office accommodations at Cross street and Woburn Highlands. Winchester officials joined with Rep. Samuel W. Mendum and Ald. William H. Weaver in urging that the Boston & Maine railroad be instructed to restore the privileges.

Senator Lewis Parkhurst, Rep. Coolidge, Selectman George M. Bryne of Winchester, James B. Hartnett of Woburn, Secretary Frank Sheeran of the Woburn Chamber of Commerce, William E. Greaney, Woburn were among those who appeared before the committee.

The matter was taken up in all its details and the Winchester officials gave their full support to the petition. The railroad was represented by General Passenger Agent Grant and Supt. Robinson of the Southern Division.

The petition was based on the action of the railroad some time ago in closing the ticket offices in the early afternoon, obliging the patrons of the stations to either buy their tickets before the closing hour or buy them elsewhere. It was claimed to occasion much inconvenience to the patrons, forcing them to pay cash fares on the trains and necessitating the inconvenience of redeeming the rebate checks given at the time of the cash fare.

FIVE DOLLARS FOR A WADLEIGH LIFE

The Christmas number of the Wadleigh Life will come out Monday, December 19th. The unusual thing about this issue is the fact that it is the first from the Wadleigh Press.

During the two years that the Wadleigh Life has been published, the editors have collected their material with more or less of the difficulties and anxieties that fall to editors and then, with a sigh of relief, they have consigned their copy to Mr. Wilson at the Star Office. There the transformation has taken place which has given us the paper familiar to many homes in Winchester.

Now the boys and girls are to realize that the change did not come about by some magic, but that it was the result of a painstaking process. To the little group of printers (in the making), capitals and commas, periods and paragraphs, are to assume an importance heretofore unknown. Right here all connected with the Wadleigh Life wish to acknowledge their indebtedness to Malcolm Stewart, Wadleigh '19. He was the first editor of the paper, and, with a small corps of helpers, has printed this issue.

Santa Claus, as generous and thoughtful as he is, did not send this printing press. It must be paid for in hard cash, much of which will come from the sale of the paper. The pupils of the Wadleigh and Prince schools have courageously undertaken to do their part in meeting this need, and Mr. Pinkham is ready to disclose the name of a public-spirited gentleman, who offers five dollars for the first copy that comes from the Wadleigh Press. There can be but one first copy, and it will be his unless some one offers more than he is willing to give. It may be that good old St. Nicholas wants to have a hand in this after all.

WILLIAM PARKMAN OFFICERS ELECTED

The annual meeting of William Parkman Lodge, A. F. & A. M., was held in Masonic Hall Tuesday evening. The following officers were elected: W. M. Percival B. Metcalf, S. W. Harris S. Richardson, J. W. Preston E. Corey, Treasurer, Harry T. Winn, Secretary, Ernest R. Eustis.

Mr. George H. Barron, for 28 years treasurer of the lodge, tendered his resignation, and at the close of the meeting a gift of flowers was sent to Judge George S. Littlefield, former secretary of the lodge, together with a letter of regret at his absence from the meeting.

THE PHILIPPINES: UNCLE SAM'S FAR EAST

The Philippines, 7,000 miles from the Pacific coast of North America, furnish at once the greatest stake and the most difficult territorial problem of the United States in the Pacific, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

This is no tiny island territory like some of those that fly the Stars and Stripes in mid-Pacific, continue the bulletin, but a country of nearly 115,000 square miles—a greater area than that of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, and Maryland combined; or among the islands, greater than the three large southern islands of Japan upon which the life of that nation centered while it grew to imperial status.

This far-away territory of the United States is inhabited by 9,000,000 people of many races and different religions, less than a quarter the present population of the three most important Japanese islands. But the tropical Philippines with their ample rainfall and luxuriant vegetation are capable, in spite of their mountainous character, of supporting a much larger population than at present.

A Turbulent Land for Spain

Magellan, who sailed almost around the world, and whose name has been given to the famous strait to the south of South America, discovered the Philippines, sailing among them from across the Pacific in 1521. He was killed shortly afterward in a skirmish with the natives. Magellan, though a Portuguese, was operating for Spain but the Spanish were slow in asserting their sovereignty. They captured the native city of Manila in 1570 and founded the Spanish city the following year.

With only one slight break, Spain remained in control until Dewey defeated the Spanish fleet in Manila Bay in 1898, but it was not a peaceful possession. The Dutch attempted time and again to capture the archipelago; Chinese and Japanese pirates made raids on the island cities; and in the sixteenth century a Japanese Shogun actually demanded that the Spanish governor of the islands acknowledge the sovereignty of Japan. The British captured Manila in 1762 and held it until the following year, but their control did not extend outside the city. In addition the Spanish had to cope with the piratical Moros-Mohammedan Malays—of the southern islands, who were continually raiding the more developed lands to the north. Finally insurrection broke out; and it was in the midst of one of these that the United States took control.

Education America's Hobby

Since pacifying the islands, the United States has given the Philippines steadily increasing political control of their affairs. The appointive commission which ruled over the islands at first under the America regime has now given place to an elective House and Senate, and five of the seven members of the cabinet are Filipinos. The Governor General and Vice Governor are still appointed by the President of the United States.

Education has been the center of the American policy in the islands. A very small percentage of the natives were literate in 1898; numerous languages and dialects were in use only a minority understood Spanish. It was determined to make English the common language and to open the necessary public schools to reach the great mass of children. By 1917 more than 4000 primary schools were in operation in charge of 13,377 Filipino and 417 American teachers. About half the estimated total of the children of the islands 600,000 were enrolled in that year. By 1920 the enrollment had reached 791,626.

Rope Users Pay Tribute to Islands

The trade of the Philippines has increased tremendously since 1899. In that year the combined total of exports and imports was $32,000,000; in 1917 the total was $161,000,000. Nearly every man in the world who uses a rope pays tribute to the Philippines, for "Manila hemp" is of the best rope materials known. It is harvested from a species of banana tree. Nearly $47,000,000 worth of it was shipped in 1917. Coconut products—"meat" and oil—come second. Much of America's butter substitute is made from Philippine coconut oil. Shipments in 1917 amounted to $20,000,000. As a producer of sugar, the Philippines cannot yet be compared with the famous "sugar isles" Cuba and Java, but its production entitles the group to be classed with Hawaii, Porto Rico and Formosa among the world's sweeteners.

The Philippines might be said to be a jagged land both vertically and horizontally. They are very mountainous and their coasts are much indented, only about one-twenty-fifth the area of the United States exclusive of Alaska. The Philippines have a coast line twice as great.

Commercially, Manila on a commodious bay and with a good harbor, has an excellent strategic position. It is a sort of oriental center, less than a thousand miles from important Chinese ports and less than 1500 miles from southern Japan, southern Korea, Singapore and the ports of the Dutch East Indies. It is estimated that within a radius of 3,500 miles of Manila live three-quarters of a billion inhabitants more than a third of the total population of the earth.

Don't miss the G. E. K. dance. Selectman George M. Bryne has moved from Glengarry to the brick apartment house adjoining the Winchester Trust Co.

We note this week a most attractive window at the Post Office, dressed in keeping with the holiday season.

Don't miss the G. E. K. dance.

A curious sight was witnessed by many people last Sunday on Mystic lake, when on the upper, or Bacon's pond, an ice boat was carrying its jolly load, while on the middle lake a sail boat was giving equal pleasure to another party.

ICEBERGS

Coast guard cutters have been scouting the North Atlantic all summer so passengers and crews of ships sailing in northern seas may sleep without fear that an iceberg will creep up on them in the night.

These floating white castles of the North with their fantastic glamor and threatening, death-dealing portent sometimes wander down to latitude 38 degrees as far south as such sunny shores as Lisbon in Portugal or the shores of Delaware Bay, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society, from its Washington, D. C. headquarters.

The icebergs which are to be seen during the early spring months in the Atlantic are great frozen fresh water glacier-ends which have broken loose from the ice fields of Greenland and floated with the current into warmer seas. They herd quite often off the coast of Newfoundland. The warm waters of the northwestern coast of Europe keep them back on that side as far north as 70 degrees. There are few of them also in the North Pacific except near northeastern Asia.

Monster Floating Palaces

Georgiously trickled out in white that gleams and sparkles in the sunlight, these monster palaces push out from the great sheet of ice that covers Greenland. No architectural feat of the ancient Egyptians or of the Byzantines, or of a Sir Christopher Wren can compare with the Karnaks and hundreds of other temples which are carved in their sides by the agents of erosion. No marble possesses the rainbow-tints of their columns, and no man-made edifice has so fairylake, capricious, and bizarre a character. The whole gamut of blues and greens plays hide and seek over their surface, and sometimes in summer little cascades tumble over the sides to hide themselves in the waves. But their ghostlike emptiness and the chill of their breath make mariners shiver with dread.

Most of the icebergs of the North Atlantic are pushed out from the coast of Greenland between Disco Bay and Smith Sound or from the east coast south of 68 degrees latitude. Some of them are as much as 445 feet above the surface of the water, this being about one-seventh of their volume.

Debris Soon Lost

As they sail away they necessarily start with some of the debris which was originally in the bottom of the glacier. Much of this immediately falls to the bottom of the ocean, having melted its way out. Often they capsize or flop over on one side when the breaking or melting shifts their centers of gravity. The debris, when it is on the top quickly plows its way through the icebergs, having absorbed more of the heat of the sun than the ice does. When it is on the side it soon slides into the ocean. At any rate the debris seldom stays with the berg far on its journey. Nothing seems to mar the purity of the iceberg exterior. They support little life, a minute worm and the simple microscopic algae, which gives a red color to snow, being their only inhabitants.

The icebergs of the Antarctic regions are larger than those of the Arctic, but not so tall perhaps. They are portions of the enormous ice sheet around the South Pole, which break off in tabular blocks and float away as grim sentinels of the southern waters. One explorer reports that at one time he counted as many as sixty from the deck of his steamer, while more than that could be seen from his masthead.

Like mighty derelicts, dwarfing our largest battleships into utter insignificance, their sides sometimes measuring from thirty to forty miles in length when they first break off from the Ross Barrier, they float out into the depths, where the warmer winds and seas eat out their very cores, undermine them, make them turn turtle, and finally break them up into smaller bergs and hard small chips called growlers. The growlers are as dangerous as the mother icebergs.

Invented Jinrikisha.

The "jinrikisha" is a man-power carriage, a light vehicle balanced on two wheels, with projecting shafts and crossbar, within which a man steps and pulls. The naming of the carriage is due to the Japanese. The vehicle was invented in 1871 at Yokohama, by the Rev. Jonathan Goble, who died in May, 1898. He was an American Baptist missionary and formerly a marine in the United States navy, under Commodore Perry. With meager salary, and having a sick wife, and desiring to give her gentle outdoor exercise, he showed to a Japanese carpenter a picture of a baby carriage in Godey's Lady's Book, and suggested the plan and form. The jinrikisha quickly displaced the kago and palanquin, and is now in turn being displaced in Japan by the electric trolley car.

Somewhat Flimsy.

A boy had told his master a thumping lie—a concoction so evidently false that there was no difficulty in exposing its character.

"How on earth did you come to tell me such an untruth?" inquired the master.

"Well, sir," replied the culprit, "I'm very sorry; but the other boys were making such a noise that I couldn't hear what I was saying."

Restraint.

"An eminent stateswoman says men talk too much."

"That's Henrietta's opinion," said Mr. Meekston.

"Didn't you protest against the charge?"

"Why should I? It would merely add to the volume of useless conversation."

Various Kinds of Spider's Silk.

Most spiders spin more than one kind of silk. Seven kinds, in all, are recognized, though no one species produces all of them.

Polynesians Not Dying Out.

Contrary to popular belief, the Polynesian people as a race are not dwindling, but are being reinvigorated by the infusion of alien blood. The offspring of the mixed marriages are taking wives from among the full-blooded Hawaiian strain, thus preventing the Hawaiian blood from losing its identity.

Dream Lore.

For a man to dream of beating some one denotes good fortune; if he is in trade, he will thrive; if he is in love, he will marry the present object of his affection, who will bring him money; if he is a farmer, it denotes good crops and an addition to his farm.

Waterproofed Silk Ribbon.

The bureau of standards says it is impossible to waterproof silk ribbon and yet have it remain soft and pliable, for the reason that anything that would make it waterproof fills up all the spaces between the fibers of the silk.

The Christmas Dinner

When the Phantom disappeared, and Old Scrooge found that he was still on earth, and that he could make amends for his past stinginess, the first thing he did was to buy at the Poulterer's the big Prize Turkey—twice the size of Tiny Tim—and have it sent to Bob Cratchit's, for the Cratchit Christmas Dinner. "It was a turkey," Old Scrooge knew—and so do all of us—that about the most important thing in the celebrating of Christmas is the CHRISTMAS DINNER.

Is there any part of the Christmas festivities to which the children—and perhaps the grown-ups too—look forward to with greater anticipation than the enjoyment of the good things so bountifully provided for the family Yuletide feast?

If this is so, then a very important part of the Christmas preparations is the buying of the CHRISTMAS DINNER—where to buy it and what to buy become questions of the utmost importance.

We do not claim that ours is the only market where you can buy a good Christmas Dinner; but we know that you can buy one here, and that nowhere can you buy a better. And if the money that you have to spend on it is somewhat limited, then SELLER'S MARKET is the place to come to; for it is here that you can get the BEST GOODS FOR THE MONEY TO BE HAD IN TOWN.

We think we can help you to answer the question of "What to buy?" We certainly have all you could need to set the most bountiful Christmas table.

FOR POULTRY—We have Turkeys, Geese, Ducks, Chickens and Fowl. These will all be fresh-killed and of the finest quality.

FOR VEGETABLES—A full line of the freshest and best. FOR FRUITS—Grapes, Grape Fruit, Oranges, Cluster Raisins, Cranberries, Dates, etc.

WINCHESTER LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

Should prisoners now in the custody of the county together with the county penal institutions themselves be transferred to the care and administration respectively of the State? This was the subject of debate by Mr. Sanford Bates, State Commissioner of Correction, and Mr. Alfred S. Cutting, Middlesex County Commissioner of Prisons, at the December meeting of the Winchester League of Women Voters.

This issue was brought up actively as one of the most important questions of policy for the Commonwealth at the last session of the Legislature. A special committee has been making a thorough study of the question for nearly a year and will report its findings at the coming session of that body.

Mr. Sanford Bates is one of the leading proponents of the plan for State control of those penal institutions now under the jurisdiction of the various counties. As reason for this change Mr. Bates argued along economic and welfare lines. He said that in a majority of the counties the population in the local institutions is too small to permit of an economical administration or to provide organized and developed penal industries. As a general policy throughout the country there has been a decided trend, for the last fifty years, toward State control because it furnishes uniform and expert direction of diet, of employment and of physical and moral development. With a greater prison population to deal with, the State could make the necessary segregation of women and of those physically and mentally unfit, as the tubercular and mentally deficient.

Mr. Alfred S. Cutting speaking for County control of prisons showed that in a large county such as Middlesex it is possible to give prisoners the benefits of modern scientific oversight. Moreover, he said that over 95 percent of those cared for in county penal institutions were persons awaiting sentence, or confined for terms so short that they could not be advantageously employed in highly developed prison industries. Obviously the reasons advanced for unified State direction would not apply in the case of prisoners of this kind. So far as the cost to the taxpayer is concerned Mr. Cutting showed that for a period of twenty years, from 1900 to 1920, the cost in County institutions has been less than in those of the State. Taking the last four years alone, the expense has been slightly greater in county institutions owing to abnormal conditions. Part of this increased expense went to the State in payment for products of State prison industries needed in the County prisons.

After a short rebuttal by each speaker there was open discussion of the subject.

A brief business meeting preceded the afternoon program.

Mrs. A. S. Higgins gave a ten-minute talk on the proposed new school building plan.

A sale of Christmas wrappings was held at the close of the meeting.

The National League of Women Voters has invited the Conference of Pan-American Women to meet in conjunction with the Third Annual Convention of the League at Baltimore, April 20th to 29th. Secretary Hughes, of the Department of State, cooperated with the League to the extent of sending invitations to the State authorities of Latin-American countries. Already official acceptances are returning.

APPRECIATION EXPRESSED

The directors of the Home for Aged People desire to make known their appreciation of the deep interest shown by the community in making possible the happy condition in the Home described by the Matron to the directors for the month of November.

Home for Aged People
 November brought sorrow and pleasure in the family life at the Home. Mrs. Page passed away Nov. 10th after a short illness, in her 88th year. She had been one of the family over six years, and we all miss the gentle little lady from our midst.

Then "Donation Day" came Nov. 16th. It was a success. Weather right—spirit right. Many friends came to show their personal interest in the Home. Gifts that were brought or sent were of great value also a great help. The family received in their own rooms, that had been made ready for inspection by the most fastidious guest that would call, but all certainly had a good time and are grateful for the memory.

Then Thanksgiving day. Several went to friends, but the stay-at-homes had a nice dinner. Nearly everything on the table, even to the turkey, was given. I think the family that stayed here appreciated the nice dinner.

At the monthly meeting held last Tuesday evening it was voted to admit two new members; this action made possible by the death of Mrs. Page and Mrs. Lytton.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

At the last meeting on Monday, Dec. 12, Byron William Reed gave an illustrated musical lecture on Porto Rico. Mr. Reed is a graduate of the Harvard Law School but has made music his vocation. He was chosen director of music in the University of Porto Rico, and there became interested in the native songs, most of which are sung in Spanish. Since coming to Boston to take up his professional work he has kept in close touch with the island. He used a set of slides most of which are made from his own films, and colored under his direction. They covered the island thoroughly, not only in outward appearance, but in its customs, and the peculiarly striking features of island life from the standpoint of one who loves Porto Rico.

He has procured examples of every native instrument and his collection of native songs and dances is unrivaled.

On Dec. 19th, the Fortnightly will celebrate its 40th birthday. The founders, past presidents and honorary members will be our guests. Among these is one lady who has reached the one-hundredth mile stone and two who have reached the ninety-fifth.

Save the date, Dec. 20th, for the dance given by the Hospitality Committee. Plans are in the making for fascinating cabaret singing and other attractions.

In the absence of Miss Susie Guernsey, Mrs. C. W. Morrill has been appointed acting chairman of the Legislation Committee.

At the last club meeting, the club adopted the recommendation of the board that the afternoon of Jan. 23rd should be filled with some entertainment in place of proposed luncheon.

The Literature Class held its monthly meeting last week. The program was in charge of Mrs. Carrier who gave a charming intimate talk upon the life and work of Ibsen, quoting Horson:

There and there the color of expanse,
 There a vast black beard Henrik Ibsen.

He chose two plays to illustrate his work "The Viking of Helgoland," a rugged picture of early Norwegian life read by Mrs. Ely and Mrs. Sacke, and "The Master Builder" written at the age of 64; wonderfully beautiful and painting, showing how the tragedies of his own life had affected his writing. This was read by Mrs. Getty, Mrs. Thompson and Miss Weeks.

WHEN NERVES ARE UNSTRUNG

Gude's Pepto-Mangan Builds Up Vigor and Strength

There are times when men and women cannot help losing strength. They try to do too much or they lose sleep or do not eat enough food that nourishes. Blood becomes sluggish because poisons clog it. Faces grow pale and pasty looking. It is not long before nerves get unstrung.

The best way to start a change for the better is to take a course of Gude's Pepto-Mangan. It builds the blood. The weakness from a lack of red cells in the blood is overcome. Gude's Pepto-Mangan sends a fresh supply of red cells streaming through the blood. Good blood, pure and free from poisons, starts building vigor and strength. Sleep is better, appetite keener, so that the body becomes properly nourished. Druggists have Gude's Pepto-Mangan in both liquid and tablet form. The name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" is on the package.—Advertisement.

FOGG DID SOME GREAT FLYING

Closes Season With Exceptional Record

Lieut. Robert S. Fogg, the aviator, formerly of this town, who during the past season has made many flights in Manchester, Concord, Hampton Beach and at the mountain resorts, as well as many other places, has completed his flying for this year after a most successful season, having made 475 flights, for a total of 125 flying hours. The total number of miles covered by the aviator he has figured as 12,500.

Probably one of the most remarkable records in his compilation for the season is his breakage record, which shows that he punctured only two tires while making landings and breaking one tail skid. Mr. Fogg stated that to translate the breakage in dollars and cents meant in reality about $10.

The statistics made public by Mr. Fogg clearly show the great possibility for the airplane and the practicability of its adaption to a much greater extent in the commercial world, when the machines are piloted by competent and conservative people.

Lieut. Fogg will resume flying in the spring and expects to conduct an aviation school during the months of May and June.

MRS. ABRAHAM B. COFFIN

Mrs. Mary Ellen Coffin, widow of the late Abraham B. Coffin, formerly of Forest street, this town, died in Winthrop Centre on Sunday, Dec. 4, after a short illness. She was 56 years of age.

Mrs. Coffin was widely known among residents of the Highlands during her residence here. She was an accomplished musician and a talented singer. It was her custom to give frequent musicals at her home on Forest street, and for many years she was soloist at the Arlington street Church, Boston.

The funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon, the interment being at Newport, R. I.

The Inspector of Buildings has issued the following permits for the week ending Dec. 8:

M. P. Meskill of 3 Clark street. Wood frame garage at 5 Clark street, 7x12 feet.

Richard R. Higgins of Winchester, manager of the 1921 football team at Harvard, has been nominated for the office of treasurer for the class day festivities in June. His name is included in the announcement of class day officers made by the nominating committee of the senior class.

DIVISION OF UNIVERSITY EXTENSION MASSACHUSETTS DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

News Letter to Students

If you were to line up a dozen University Extension students and ask each one what he expected to get out of the course he was taking, you would probably receive a dozen different answers. One would expect help in business; another, entrance credits into some university; a third, an increased power for service in his community. Yet every serious student, whether he realizes it or not, has a reason that is bigger and broader than any of these. His first business is living; he studies first and foremost to learn the rules in the business of life. No subject unrelated to living is worth a moment of study.

When you complete an assignment in the course that you are taking, stop, think over what you have learned, and consider how it is going to help you in your daily life. Look for opportunities in your regular work to use the knowledge you have gained. Connect your learning with your living. A few moments of sober thought about each assignment will make the material easier for you to remember and will give the course an interest which you never discovered in it before.

Much education is absolutely wasted because students think of it only as a necessary means of passing examinations. They fill their heads with subject after subject as though brains were created simply for the storage of unrelated facts. A good mind, quite to the contrary, is not a tank, but an engine. If you give it facts for fuel, you can expect it to produce work.

As you develop the habit of linking up your studies with experiences of every-day life, you will come to realize that you are not only getting more out of your studies, but more out of life itself. Practical habits of study are of real value in relation to successful accomplishments in any kind of business or industrial activity.

The Division of University Extension is ready to help you to establish that relation between your daily living and the course that you are taking. The personal information sheet which you sent to your instructor is for that very purpose. The instructor thinks of you as an acquaintance; his comments and advice are based upon what he knows of you as a person. And he is heartily interested in making the instruction fit you.

Before you take up another assignment think back over what you have already done. Keep this news letter where you can refer to it when you have finished the present course and are ready to choose another. It will help you in your choice. And bear in mind that the aim of study is the aim that Thomas Jefferson expressed—"To enable the people to understand what is going on in the world, and to keep their part of it going on right."

James A. Moyer, Director.

Our Christmas Greeting

WITH Thanksgiving past we all naturally turn our thoughts to the happy Christmas season. Young and old look forward each year to the holiday festivities. Beginning with baby's first Christmas, when he is too young to realize what it is all about, we instill into the minds of our children a realization that this is the biggest and grandest event of the year. And no matter how many years pass over our heads, even way beyond the "three score and ten," the Christmas spirit still persists, and as the season approaches our hearts are filled with "good will toward men."

No more fitting time in all the year could be chosen than this Christmas season for us to extend to our many friends and customers our good wishes. We feel sure that most of you have found more of good in the past year than in those immediately preceding, and it is our sincere wish that prosperity and happiness will be yours in even greater degree during the coming years of 1922.

Let us each do our part in every way to make this the best Christmas yet for others, and in making it so for others we will find that what we do will come back to us many fold, making it by far the best and happiest Christmas we have ever had. Then if we start this right now and keep it up every day, it will grow on us, and if we try real hard, we will find the Christmas spirit in our lives throughout the year, and how much better all of us will be for it; how much better and happier the world and our individual lives will be.

ELEVEN VALVE - IN - HEAD MODELS

THERE are five factors that should influence the buyer in the selection of his motor car.

First, of all, what are the manufacturer's facilities and policies, as evidenced by the manufacturer's standing in the industry?

Second, what are the production plans and the system of manufacture? These are important, for they bear on value received for money expended.

Third, is the chassis mechanically correct in preserving the proper relation between power and load, comfort and safety, performance and durability?

Fourth, does the manufacturer furnish a body type exactly suited to the buyer's motoring requirements?

And, fifth, what is the extent of the manufacturer's desire, once the car is bought to guarantee the owner uninterrupted transportation?

One would hardly be justified in purchasing a car solely on the strength of one or even several of these factors. Only when the five are properly co-ordinated is true motor car efficiency found.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING

December 19, 1921.

The Board met at 7:30 P. M., all present.

The records of the meeting of December 12th were read and approved.

Hearings: A letter was received from the Town Council relative to the petition of the Mayor of Boston for a reduction and rearrangement of the rates charged by the Edison Electric Illuminating Co. The Town Council explains at some length the situation relating to rates, and states that it does not seem necessary for the Town of Winchester to enter its formal appearance in the proceedings, and consequently he has not done so. The Board decided that the Town Council is to be requested to keep the Board posted as to further developments pertaining to this matter.

Eastern Mass. St. Ry. Co.: A letter was received from the Supt. of the Eastern Mass. St. Co., for this district enclosing a copy of a Proclamation which has been issued by Mayor Parkman B. Flanders of Haverhill ordering smoking in enclosed electric cars to be a practice that is disagreeable to a great many of the traveling public, and also that it may be injurious to the public health. Letter was ordered filed.

Street Lights 1921: A letter was received from the Edison Electric Illuminating Co., acknowledging the Board's order to have the street lights in Winchester turned on, on Christmas morning (Sunday) at 4 A. M.

Street Relocations & Building Line (Symmes Road): At a meeting of the Board of Selectmen duly held this 19th day of December, 1921, it appearing by the return of William R. McIntosh, a Constable of the Town, upon the foregoing order of notice, that he has served notice of our intention to relocate Symmes Road its entire length, and of a hearing to be held thereon the 9th day of January, 1922, by leaving at the usual place of abode of all the owners of land which will be taken for such purpose.

Street lights 1921 (Irving St.): The matter of consideration of the petition of Fanny Doherty and John Peterson for a street light on Irving St. was laid over again for two weeks pending a report from the Street Light Committee.

Street Lights 1921 Dunster Lane: A petition was received from Jas. C. Mitton and several others, residents of Dunster Lane and Henry st., asking that a street light be relocated on Dunster Lane. The light in question, which the petitioners ask be relocated, in the first light from Forest. The petitioners ask that this light be changed to a pole situated just beyond the house of J. C. Mitton and in front of the house of E. Larson as shown on a sketch submitted with their plan. This matter was referred to the Street Light Committee for report. The meeting adjourned at 11:05 P. M.

THE RED CROSS

The annual meeting of the Winchester Chapter of the Red Cross was held in the High School Library, Thursday evening, December 15th and the following officers were elected, President, Miss Natalie Jewett; Vice President, Mrs. George H. Root; Secretary, Mrs. James Nowell; Treasurer, Mr. William E. Priest.

The total amount received from the Roll Call was $2266.46, of which $182.46 were donations, $100 for 2 life memberships, $30 for 3 sustaining memberships, $175 for 35 contributing memberships, and $1779 for annuals, 15% was contributed for the express purpose of investing in layettes to be shipped overseas, which has been done. Mrs. Bond, chairman of the Roll Call committee wishes to thank all who contributed to making Winchester's part successful and also to commend workers who were of such assistance to her.

The committee consisted of Mrs. Waldo Bond, chairman, Mrs. Fausey and Mrs. Sewall E. Newman, and Mrs. Walter H. Balcke who has charge of the Industries.

The Captains were: Mrs. W. E. Schraft, Mrs. J. A. Laraway, Mrs. E. W. Comfort, Mrs. C. M. Deloria, Mrs. Herbert Goff, Mrs. Howard Wright, Mrs. Joseph Butler, Mrs. Eben Caldwell, Miss Ruth Phippen, Miss Ellen A. Seales, Mrs. Ernest Luce, Miss Jean McLellan.

Reports were read by the teachers of the Grade School of the splendid work done by the Junior Red Cross.

Mr. Thompson reported that a branch had just been organized in the High School.

Miss Savage told of the very satisfactory work the Dental Clinic was accomplishing and what a great asset it was to the town.

Mrs. Root told how the Home Service Work had been done. This must now be carried on by the Red Cross. The number of cases is increasing because men who thought themselves well have found they could not stand the strain of work, the State has reopened cases and there is no other way by which our men can be cared for while their claims are being proved before the government will help them.

LADIES' AFTERNOON BRIDGE

A very successful afternoon bridge was held at the Calumet Club on Friday afternoon, there being 15 tables of cards, with an attendance of about 75 ladies. Prizes were won by Miss Powers of Arlington, Mrs. Ernest Dudley Chase, Mrs. Powers of Arlington, Mrs. James C. McCormick and Mrs. High.

At the close of the cards refreshments were served, the committee in charge being assisted by Miss Linda Tredennick, Miss Esther Hollins, Miss Ruth Chamberlain and Miss Mary Whittington. The committee for the afternoon was composed of Mrs. Henry E. Crowley, Mrs. S. W. H. Taylor and Mrs. Guy H. Sargeant.

Among the neophytes at the 68th annual banquet of the Kappa Chapter of Tufts College of the Zeta Psi fraternity Saturday night was Mr. Evander French of this town.

MIXED TOURNAMENT HAS FOUR ON TEAM

The bowling committee at the Calumet Club announces that this year the teams in the mixed bowling tournament will consist of four couples. This makes a larger team than on previous years, it being so arranged that the teams will all bowl each other, instead of being divided into two classes, as previously.

The tournament is to start early in January, entries closing this week.

The Friendly Glow

It is not man's fallibility that means so much as a sincere desire to right any wrong he unconsciously commits.

SECOND STORM DAMAGES LIGHTS AND TELEPHONES

A violent wind and rain storm, developing Saturday night and continuing until noon Sunday, again caused trouble about town with telephones and electric lights. The wind was probably the highest of the fall. Coming up from the south east, a warm wave accompanied the storm, but fortunately the gale was accompanied by rain instead of snow. Many of the broken tree limbs were blown down, breaking wires and endangering life and property, it being necessary to shut off the electricity until Sunday noon.

Morning services in the churches were held without artificial light, and at the Church of the Epiphany the afternoon service was discontinued, it not being thought possible to use the light.

The heavy rain itself did quite a little damage, the water short circuiting the current, both in telephone and electric wires. As many of the telephone connections are only temporary, this phase of the storm was fully as responsible in putting lines out of commission as the falling tree limbs.

SPOKE AT MEN'S CLUB

There was an attendance of nearly a hundred at the meeting of the Congregational Men's Club Friday evening to listen to the talk given by Captain W. Lombard on the Philippines and the "Far East." Capt. Lombard recently returned to America from the Far East, where for fifteen years he lived through thrilling experiences as a soldier, sailor, trader, pearl fisher and judge of tribal board courts. He spoke at length on his varied experiences. A lunch was served at the close of the talk.

Five Year FIRE LOSS in U. S. $1,416,375,000

Property worth $1,416,375,000, the equivalent of 283,275 new houses at $5,000 each, or more than enough to shelter the total population of a state as large as Connecticut, was destroyed by fire in the United States in the period from 1915 to 1919, as shown by the quinquennial analysis of 3,500,000 adjustments made public by the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

Electricity, the chief cause of fire loss, led with a total of $84,086,471 for the five years.

Matches and smoking stood second with $73,474,348. Defective chimneys came next with $56,650,915.

Other causes in their order were: Stoves, furnaces, boilers and their pipes, $55,133,181. Spontaneous combustion, $49,702,886.

Lightning, $39,828,489. Sparks on roofs, $29,271,585.

Petroleum and its products, $25,910,434.

Incendiarism contributed $21,596,965 to the damage, and miscellaneous unknown causes completed the total.

Howlin' Storm

Jack Frost's big brother—how he howled through the woods snapping trees like pipe stems—tangling and twisting wires in his fiendish glee. At a blast from his icy throat clothes lines squirmed and writhed in his belching wake. Howlin' storm is in his lair for the moment, but he is an uncertain fellow and may roar again. CALUMET BOWLING TOURNAMENT

Teams Start on New Ratings Again
This Week

This week saw another revision of ratings in the Calumet bowling tournament, a list of which is given elsewhere. Under the new figures the bowling shows keener competition and closer scores, and the results evidently prove conclusively that the scheme used this year brings the teams into a fairer basis of rolling than any previous rating.

On Monday night team 3 took a string from 12 by seven pins, while 12 took the following string from 3 by four pins. Team 2 took a string from 1 by a single pin. In the matches none of the teams had a cinch. Team 15 won all four from 17, 12 three from 3 and 1 three from 2.

Goldsmith was high roller with a total of 341 on a string of 116, Gendron made 336 with 115, Newman 330 with 118, Stephenson 327 with 116, Berry 319 with 112, Higgins 306 with 113, J. E. Corey 303 with 115, Murphy 108, Wilson and Seller 107 each, Taylor 105 and Richardson and P. E. Corey 101 each.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Some men who waste their time would not do so if they timed the waste.

With the exception of a fussy woman, there is nothing on earth so disagreeable as a fussy man.

Don't become too busy giving advice that you have no time to mind your own business.

Some people are never pleased so they derive their enjoyment from knocking.

Most men like to be called a hero, because it helps him to believe he is one.

The STAR wishes its readers a Merry Christmas.

A difference of 144 votes changes the majority election in Lynn. Certainly an opportunity for a revision of the methods of counting votes in that city.

The first gun in the political battle of March 6th is fired this week. Mr. William R. Cowdery announces himself a candidate for Assessor. He was born in Winchester and has always lived here, and is widely known to many citizens.

And now the Governor of the Commonwealth! Luckily for Massachusetts the citizens of the State know Channing Cox—as well as gathering daily a further insight into politics. The right enforcement of our prohibition laws is gratifying.

Those of us who are enjoying our community Christmas Tree should not forget that as we all enjoy it, so we all should pay for it; for everyone must realize that there is some expense attached. To commission a few gentlemen to give us a tree, expecting that they shall buy the tree, buy the decorations, trimmings, arrange the music, attend to all the details—and then go out and raise the small sum necessary to pay for it, is—well, it's impossible in a way. Our Town has been invited to leave contributions for the tree at the STAR office and at the Parker & Lane office. These contributions have been mighty few. No large sum is necessary; if all of us who want the Tree and who are enjoying it contribute just a little, the sum needed to pay the bill will be quickly made up. We have residents in this town—just as they always are ready to do more than their share for Winchester, but they should not be called upon to give more than their proportion in this instance.

Improvement.

The rowing coach of Blank college had a very sharp tongue. A member of the crew who had got into it through favoritism said to him: "Do you think it would improve my style if I were to acquire a first stroke?" "It would improve the crew," replied the coach, "if you got a lightning stroke."

YESTERDAY a man with whom I was settling an endowment policy said, "I have kicked myself many times lately because I did not take a larger policy."

I could have carried it as well as not."

As he left he said, "Make 'em do it."

You may profit by his experience.

Not to Be Blamed.

"So that pretty widow is married again, eh? I thought her late husband's will read that if she took a second husband her legacy was to go to his most distant relative." "So it did, but a little thing like that didn't faze her. She married the relative and married him."—Boston Transcript.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE
IV.—GEORGIA

ON JANUARY 2, 1788, Georgia accepted the Constitution and became the fourth state in the Union. The settlement of Georgia was conceived as a buffer against the depredations of the Spaniards and Indians, whose invasions of South Carolina had reached a climax in 1715 with a raid in which four or five hundred settlers had been massacred. To protect South Carolina from future invasions James Oglethorpe planned a colony to the south, and in 1732 he obtained from George II a grant of land. The new territory was consequently named Georgia, after the king. The deed stated that the land was granted "in trust for the poor." This referred to Oglethorpe's plan to have as the settlers the insolvent debtors who, according to the laws of that time in England, were cast into prison. Many of these were released from prisons and, re-enforced by some Germans and Scotch Highlanders, founded the town of Savannah in 1733 and rapidly spread up and down the coast, where successful plantations of rice and indigo soon became established. Georgia continued to prosper until the population of its 59,265 square miles entitles it to a representation of 14 presidential electors. (© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

MODERN MENACE IN CHINA

Living in House Equipped With Gas Ranges and Faithful Servants, Has Its Good Points.

Our two-story house consisted of two big rooms downstairs and sleeping apartments and a tiny roof garden upstairs. In this roof garden I spent most of my time, and there my son Wilfred and his amah passed many afternoons. It was a pleasant, sunny place, furnished with painted steamer chairs, rugs and blooming plants in pottery jars, writes M. T. F. in Asia Magazine. At the back, rather removed from the main part of the house, were the kitchen, servants' quarters and an open-air laundry. We were really very practical and modern and comfortable. Our kitchen provided for an admirable compromise between old and new methods. It had an English gas range and a Chinese one. But the proper Chinese atmosphere was preserved by three well-trained servants, who called themselves Ah Ching, Ah Ling and Ah Poh. Most Shanghai servants are called simply "Boy" or "Amah" or "Coolie," but ours chose those names as distinctive for servants there as James and Bridget are with us. Ah Ching did most of the housework and the running of errands; Ah Ling did the marketing and cooking, giving us a pleasantly varied succession of Chinese and foreign dishes; Ah Poh, the amah, looked after Wilfred and attended to my personal wants.

From the first I was fond of Ah Poh, with her finely formed, intelligent features, her soft voice and gentle, unhurried manner. She had served an American mistress before coming to me, but showed a surprising willingness to adopt my particular way of doing things, whether in making beds, in keeping my clothes in order, or in entertaining Wilfred. On the other hand, Ah Ching, elderly, grave and full of responsibility, was very partial to his accustomed way of arranging furniture and of washing windows and floors. If left to himself he would dust odd nooks and corners faithfully, but if I made any formal inspection of his labors he would invariably slight them—to intimate that I should not be suspicious, as a friend explained—a form of logic that I found highly amusing. Ah Ling, aside from his culinary ability, was chiefly interesting because his eyes were really oblique—as Chinese eyes are supposed to be, and usually are not, and because his hair really curled—as Chinese hair is supposed never to do, and does occasionally.

He Beat It.

C. Tom Johnson, chief clerk of the city board of health, recently completed a course in the Benjamin Harrison Law school, passing his final examination with high honors. Consequently his two small children, Vivian, age nine, and Jerry, age six, credit him with considerably more than the usual wisdom.

"I went home the other night," Johnson said, "and found the youngsters sitting on the front steps waiting for me. I hadn't been there five minutes till they had asked me as many questions in a row that would stump the fellows who pass Thomas A. Edison's examination. Jerry started out:

"Is there any ending to the sky?" he asked. Vivian had been to school, and heard something about gravity, so she asked: "If gravitation would stop, would the earth bump into the sun?" Jerry came right back with: "Who is God?" and Vivian wanted to know where the devil lives. Then she asked whether the people on Mars are like us, and I gave up and beat it."—Indianapolis News.

Chills Good for Plants.

Strange as it may seem, a period of chilling is a general requirement of northern plants. Ripe blueberries were gathered in February, March and April in the greenhouses of the United States Department of Agriculture as a result of experiments in the stimulation of plant growth by a period of chilling. These plants were of the large hybrids, developed from wild blueberries through 10 years of selection and breeding. The largest berries reached a diameter over three-quarters of an inch. At various times from midsummer to autumn the plants were placed in glass frames artificially chilled. After two or three months' chilling, they were brought into a greenhouse and began growing and flowering at once, while similar plants that had not been through the chilling period continued dormant in the greenhouse. It has only recently been discovered that a period of chilling produces such beneficial results.—N. Y. Times.

Transmutes Metals.

Dr. Charles Benson Davis of New York city claims in a paper which he has prepared and submitted to Engineering Foundation, that he can make and has made some of the chemical elements, such as gold, silver, platinum and copper, by transmutation of a common element, the Scientific American says. He has shown samples of the metals he claims to have made to members of the Engineering Foundation, and has requested that body to investigate his claims and his methods.

Pride of Position.

"We've decided to invite our football coach to become a member of the faculty," said the dean.

"Do you suppose he will accept the invitation?"

"I doubt it. I don't believe he would care to place himself on an equal footing with a mere professor."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

RIGHT METHOD OF TRAINING

Youngster of Bold Spirit Does Not Need Curb So Much as Inculcation of Courtesy.

A bold spirit is invaluable, but an impertinent manner is an abomination in a child, says the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin. And parents, unconsciously, are many times at fault, and actually inculcate boldness in their little ones, quoting their clever remarks while the children are around, insisting that they "show off" some accomplishment.

The forward youngster is not apt to be brighter than the shy one, but he receives the credit because of his readiness to do and to talk. Perhaps nature's recompense for less ability is the courage to exploit what one has. Sheer initiative alone—with, of course, sufficient ability to back it up—is bound to make a leader.

Do not too summarily curb the youngster with the bold spirit—rather train him in courtesy and in common sense and so teach him the valuelessness of foolhardiness.

Factory 6,000 Years Old.

Ruins of a large ammunition factory, in which workers made stone axes for warfare 6,000 years ago, have been dug up in Wales.

"The factory covered hundreds of acres," reports S. Hazzledine Warren in a lecture before the Royal Anthropological society, London. "We found a big scrap pile—stone axes finished but broken by a last blow."

This is one of the earliest known instances of men banding together to work. What caused primitive men to pool their labor? The same thing that causes wolves to run in packs—war. War seems to be as firmly implanted in man today as it was 6,000 years ago. Civilization is savagery—plus intellect. Nor do the causes of wars change. It's a pretty sure gamble that most primitive wars were for possession of the best hunting ground. Trade wars, we call such things today.

Sausage Not for Nervous.

"No doubt sausage and scrapple-makers put into their product parts or all of ductless glands from motives of economy," writes Dr. R. L. Pittfield of Germantown, Pa., in the Medical Record. "Some of these tissues are not destroyed by heat, notably pituitary extract. But even though they may be rendered inert by heat, sausage is often eaten raw or partly cooked. A large dose of thyroid might thus be eaten by some one with hyperthyroidism with uncomfortable and deleterious results. The thyroid is sold as sweetbreads in many butcher shops. It seems wise, therefore, to forbid such indiscriminate and heterogeneous products as sausage in nervous and endocrinopathic people. Such food may explain unaccountable symptoms in them."

Two Good Reasons.

Hippocrates, who lived about the fifteenth century B. C., in answer to the question why he was always happy, said these words: "Love of my fellows and love of my job."

Your Christmas Dinner

Before Christmas Day arrives you must plan your Christmas Dinner. After the usual Christmas gifts have been distributed in the early morning hours, the Christmas Dinner will be the center of interest, and you will want it to come up to the expectations of your family and friends. You will find at our store just what you need to make a big success. Here are just a few of the good things we offer:

Mince meat—the word alone sounds good; we will venture to say that you can pay more than we are asking, but we know you won't be able to get better.

Cranberries, only the best that grow at Cape Cod enter our store.

Nuts of different varieties are, as usual, the best to be had.

Figs, the finest, whether they be in bulk, pressed in five or ten-pound boxes, or down to the one-pound package, will be found to be one of the most acceptable gifts to send to a friend.

Cluster raisins, done up in neat packages; you will not find better.

Candies, the regular Christmas varieties; you will find that we have a large assortment.

Seasonable fruits, such as grape fruit, oranges, bananas and the fancy table apple, in assortments to please everyone.

We could go on, but seeing is believing, and we ask you to come and see for yourself as to our qualifications to supply your holiday wants.

IT PAYS to Advertise in the "STAR"

Christmas Collars

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union

LOVE him, I love him, I love him," Agnes Allen said. And as she was alone in her room, and as no one could hear her, naturally there was no answer to her statement which she had repeated several times.

She was speaking of George Farwell. George was so good looking with his wonderful blue eyes, his brown hair, his fine erect figure.

Wherever she saw men she thought how insignificant they looked beside George. She was glad that she thought that way. She hoped others thought that way about the men they cared for. Then everything would be so smooth and so simple.

She wanted everyone to like her George immensely. But it would be embarrassing if everyone thought just the same about him as she did.

The wedding was to be Christmas afternoon. Then they had planned to go to their own new little home which they had just finished furnishing and fixing up. They were going to have their own little Christmas tree there—quite by themselves, and their friends had left their wedding presents and their Christmas presents there, though almost all of the former they had seen, of course.

"Are you almost ready?" it was Mrs. Allen calling up the stairs.

"Almost, mother dear," she answered.

"You'll be late," her mother called. "I'll hurry," she said.

"Do you want any help?"

But she had taken longer than she had thought. Yes, if she didn't hurry she would be late! Still she would have George all her life now. How wonderful it would be! She wondered if that was why brides were so often late because they felt they had so much time!

It was a gloriously happy thought to realize how much time she had.

She was only ten minutes late. The few friends were at the Christmas day wedding. And her bouquet was of holly and mistletoe. She had always said she would love to have such a wedding bouquet. It would be so merry and Christmasy and such a happy, gay kind of a bouquet.

George had consented of course. He agreed to everything she said, because he loved her so, and she was so fair with him, too, because she loved him so!

The ceremony was over. They drove away in a low sleigh with jingling bells to the small house. There, by themselves, they opened presents. What a glorious time they had.

And she had a little surprise for him. Just a little bit of a surprise. But she knew he would like it.

"Open that box, there, George," she said.

He opened it.

And looked at some collars, many, many collars, all much too big for him.

"When I was buying my wedding clothes in town that time, George, I remembered that you'd spoken of a wonderful kind of collar you liked. I remembered the name too. I was a little puzzled when the man asked me your size. I told him though that as long as he had the right kind the size didn't make any difference. When he asked me if you were big or small I told him you were big of course!"

"Why, George, what is the matter? Won't they fit you? Is the size so important?"

"My darling little girl," he laughed, "what does it matter what the size is. That is—it does matter about wearing them I'm afraid, my love, for to think you thought of me even when you were getting the wedding fineries and remembered the name of the collar."

"They're my Christmas collars," he exclaimed, "and I'll put them away in the box with the Christmas bouquet we're going to save. Such a Christmas gift from a dear little bride should never be mangled by any laundry!"

"What a silly I am," she laughed gaily.

"But such an adorable silly," George answered as he kissed her.

THE MEANING OF CHRISTMAS

Vice President Coolidge Places Construction on the Greatest Event in Human History.

CHRISTMAS has but one meaning—the Nativity, writes Vice President Calvin Coolidge, in the New York Evening Post. The goodness, the justice, but also the mercy, the helping hand of God. This, the greatest event in human history, has a spiritual meaning. The Savior came to minister to the spiritual nature of man. He showed the true glory and importance of man—and helping him showed the duty of helping one another. Endowed with the power, yet He did not bestow material blessings or set up an earthly kingdom. But to follow Him gave the power to command all those.

To get the word to see the true meaning of things, that is the redemption. The creation was all declared good. It can be perverted. The enemy forever strives "out of good still to find means of evil." The material welfare of men does not come first—to make it first makes it to be destroying and destroyed. Christmas is not instituted for the purpose of earning the reward of gifts, but for giving them in their true significance. "The wages of sin is death, eternal life is the gift of God."

GUIDES BABE OF BETHLEHEM

Lighted Candle in Window on Christmas Eve Will Bring Happiness, an Old Tradition.

AN OLD tradition has it that a lighted candle set in the window on Christmas eve will guide the Babe of Bethlehem to your home, that He may bring you happiness." In some countries it has long been the custom so to mark the coming of Christmas, and John H. Stedman of Rochester, N. Y., has originated a movement to spread it in this country. In a pamphlet urging all to light the "Christmas candle" on Christmas eve he says:

"The Irish will tell you that the Christmas candle was always lighted in their homes in the Emerald Isle as it has been for years and years in Norway and Sweden. Boston has had it for a decade. In Rochester 1916 was our third celebration—the first year a few houses shone—the second over a thousand—the third nearly every one; and it has spread to town, village and country over a 40-mile radius. Many far-away homes, Wisconsin, Maine, California, Florida, kindled their candles from ours, and when you have lighted yours you will appreciate why."

The Truer Things of Life.

We stand together at another fullness of time; perhaps it is a fullness in which material things, the man-made things, bulk largest. Perhaps it is a time in which confidence in the human seems to excel confidence in the divine. It is becoming increasingly evident that there must speedily come to men the visions of life and real values as they find their finer and larger interpretation of him whose birth the world celebrates at Christmas. There is a tragic, if inarticulate, appeal being made today for a return to the homelier, stronger and truer things of life; we are looking for a new birth of goodness that shall restore our lost peace and bring back again to earth the deeper satisfaction of the human heart.—James E. Freeman.

CHRISTMAS IN PIGVILLE
Papa Pig—My how the children will appreciate this nice bag of mud!

Christmas Cookies.

Cream together two cupsful brown sugar and one-half cupful butter. Add one well-beaten egg, eight tablespoonfuls sweet milk, one saltspoonful salt, one-half teaspoonful soda dissolved in one-eighth cupful boiling water, one teaspoonful cinnamon, 2½ cupsful rolled oats, two cupsful flour. Mix all together and let stand for an hour, then drop a teaspoonful at a time on greased tins. Press a fat raisin on the top of each and bake in a moderate oven. This amount makes about four dozen cookies.

Novel Christmas Tree Decorations.

Effective Christmas tree decorations can easily be made at home. Take candy sticks and dress them up in crepe paper and ribbons and thus convert them into novel candy dolls. Gilded nuts, acorns hung from the branches with colored ribbon and l balls of cotton sprinkled with diamond dust, as well as rings of tiny gumdrops strung on white thread, make effective trimming.

Should Remember the Needy.

There is another thing than Christmas shopping that should be attended to as early as possible by those who can afford it, and that is the making of Christmas donations for the poor.

GIFTS OUT OF THE ORDINARY

Frying-Pan for Queen Victoria—Man Gives Wife Five Pounds to Buy Washstand.

THE king of Siam used to send Queen Victoria a very curious gift every Christmas. It may have been want of imagination, or he may have heard that the frying-pan was the curse of the English cook, and thought they must want constantly renewing. Whatever the reason, her majesty received a silver frying-pan as regularly as Christmas came round.

Thomas Carlyle once quite forgot to buy a Christmas gift for his wife. There is nothing unique about this. Other men have done the same. Nor is there anything particularly generous in the way he made up for his neglect to remember the day. He wrote the following letter:

"The prophecy of a washstand to the nearest of all women. Blessings on her bonnie face, and be it ever blithesome as it is dear, blithe or not.—T. Carlyle. December 25, 1850."

The great man did really give his wife five pounds with which to buy the promised washstand, at which he, no doubt, washed quite as often as she did. But that's a man all over.

UNDER THE MISTLETOE SPRIG

Punishment Meted Out by Oxfordshire Maids to Men Who Refused to Obey Commands.

IN SOME places in Oxfordshire, every maid-servant had the privilege and frequently exercised it, of asking a man for ivy to decorate the house. If the man assented, well and good; but if he refused the maid stole a pair of his breeches. The next day they could be seen nailed to the gate of the highway. But a worse punishment than this was sometimes meted out to him; he was deprived of the privilege of the mistletoe.

The first maid to pass under this evergreen on Christmas day was sure to be married within the year, and equally sure of being kissed—for that was the penalty, if it can be called such, to be paid by any maid who passed under it. After each offense a berry was plucked, while the privilege was supposed to end with the last berry.

"Christmas Past."

IT WAS indeed a "gracious" time, and as we read of the revels and ceremonies and find foolish beliefs of Christmas Past, we might regret what we have lost in this tamer and less picturesque age. If we did not know that never before in history was Christmas kept so truly and heartily in the spirit of the day as it is now. We have dropped a good many rude and some pretty customs, but we have gained a broadening spirit of almost universal charity, a feeling of real brotherhood, that it is held in check a good deal during the rest of the year.—Charles Dudley Warner.

The Great Giver.

Christmas is the birthday of Jesus, who never gave the world a dollar, and bestowed upon mankind no other material gift. "He carved no statue, painted no picture, wrote no poem, composed no song, fashioned no piece of jewelry, built no edifice, founded no city, erected no triumphal arch; but He stands in history as the Great Giver." Such as He had He gave: the sympathetic hand, the genial mind, the generous heart, the courageous spirit, which all worked together to build up out of the human the divine. The Father gave us first His universe; then He gave His Son; now He offers His Spirit.—Adapted.

Sweet Sauces.

It is usual in England to serve what American housewives call "soft sauce" with the Christmas plum pudding, but the delicious "hard sauces" which we ourselves affect make a nice change. Soft sauces take the form of a thin hot custard, which will be all the more creamy if a few spoonfuls of condensed milk are stirred in after the custard is made in the ordinary way. Another favorite sauce is made by adding sugar to melted butter.

AS USUAL.

The Portable Lamp.

The cheapest and most generally useful electrical appliance and at the same time the one most seldom taken advantage of in the ordinary household is the portable lamp. This simply consists of a few yards of flexible insulated wire, at one end of which is fixed in ordinary plug to screw into a wall or chandelier socket and at the other a lamp socket. The cost is very little.

Here's an International Case. In a case recently before a London court the presiding judge was English, the plaintiff was an American, his counsel a Welshman, the defendant a Dutchman and his lawyer an Irishman.

When the King Tips.

When the king of England goes to stay with one of his subjects there is a fixed rule for his tip. He, or rather his equerry, leaves with the house steward the sum of $500 for distribution among the staff.

The Christmas Dinner

When the Phantom disappeared, and Old Scrooge found that he was still on earth, and that he could make amends for his past stinginess, the first thing he did was to buy at the Poulterer's the big Prize Turkey—twice the size of Tiny Tim—and have it sent to Bob Cratchit's, for the Cratchit Christmas Dinner. "It was a turkey." Old Scrooge knew—and so do all of us—that about the most important thing in the celebrating of Christmas is the CHRISTMAS DINNER.

Is there any part of the Christmas festivities to which the children—and perhaps the grown-ups too—look forward to with greater anticipation than the enjoyment of the good things so bountifully provided for the family Yuletide feast?

If this is so, then a very important part of the Christmas preparations is the buying of the CHRISTMAS DINNER—where to buy it and what to buy become questions of the utmost importance.

We do not claim that ours is the only market where you can buy a good Christmas Dinner; but we know that you can buy one here, and that nowhere can you buy a better. And if the money that you have to spend on it is somewhat limited, then SELLER'S MARKET is the place to come to; for it is here that you can get the BEST GOODS FOR THE MONEY TO BE HAD IN TOWN.

We think we can help you to answer the question of "What to buy?" We certainly have all you could need to set the most bountiful Christmas table.

FOR POULTRY—We have Turkeys, Geese, Ducks, Chickens and Fowl. These will all be fresh-killed and of the finest quality.

FOR VEGETABLES—A full line of the freshest and best. FOR FRUITS—Grapes, Grape Fruit, Oranges, Cluster Raisins, Cranberries, Dates, etc.

Also Nuts and Christmas Candy.

We have a fine line of Christmas Trees and Evergreen Wreaths for Decorations.

Remember you can buy more for your money this Christmas than you could last.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

Seated one warm morning in the quiet of his "den," alone with his thoughts after the week's activities, the Spectator heard in a neighboring home a voice in song. At once he was enthralled, not merely by the sweetness of the voice but by the words which in clearly distinct accents resounded upon the air and the Spectator sat spell bound until the last echoes had died away. Meanwhile his thoughts, swift as the shuttle of a weaver, flashed back to the days when he often heard in his own home a mother's same lullaby to her first-born.

"Rock-a-bye baby on the tree top
When the wind blows the cradle will rock,
When the bough breaks the cradle will fall,
Down will come baby, cradle and all."

The Spectator well recalls how no other song in the full tones of a joy that would not be restrained when love of the dear ones poured its richest blossoms into her life and through motherhood the lullaby weaving strands of gold, a back ground later for two sweet little faces lifted with smiles or tears for the Kiss of mother. The Spectator well recalls too, the white, calm little face of the one who will never on earth smile or weep again and the lullaby ever after running in that mother heart until her own and ages wept and smiled no longer. Having been reunited with her first-born treasure, they sing together their precious songs in the "choir invisible." The power of mothers' songs, the memories woven about them. No troubadour ever sang to more appreciative ears or more gladdened hearts than it reaches. No influence is more potent for good than the memory of one's own mother's songs, for in the strange way that memory crowds years into minutes they are like the restraining power of a holy spell echoing through the intervals of loneliness and gloom, the experience of everyone, like the presence of her protecting spirit. From the cradle to the grave one hears those songs reverberating through the low sweet songs of love, through the wailings of grief, an undertone of harmony. Sing on, dear Winchester mothers, you who are happy or bowed with care, you in whose heart the love of home and dear ones has a holier significance than in all of the rest of humanity. Let the boundless wealth of your love, your soothing lullabies, your mother's songs all assure to their lives a perpetual sweetness and fragrance, and that tinge the world with a brighter lustre. Their indelible impress is no more remarkable than are the stars from the vault of heaven.

A very intellectual Winchester gentleman points out to the Spectator that our popular systems of ethics are wholly inadequate, and that all thinking men and women are coming to see that those traits of decency in the obvious relations of life that one have been accustomed to regard as morality are in great part of secondary importance, that "we wonder people do not see something more important to exercise their conscience upon." Secondly important or not, those traits of decency which pass for morality are sufficiently difficult for a good many persons to live up to. To be honest and truthful, to be loyal to trust and confidence, to be courteous and kind, to be thoughtful and considerate of others, to avoid scandal-mongering, to be industrious, and generally to be decent in the treatment of other persons, may not be of much account, and yet The Spectator suspects that so far as men and women square their lives by such ideals they do as much toward making bearable and happy the lives of their fellows as they would if they cast about for something more important to exercise their consciences upon. The Spectator remembers hearing of a resident of Winchester some years ago whose sense of his social obligations was so intense that he devoted much of his time to performing kind offices for a large number of more or less deserving beneficiaries. One of these beneficiaries, however, a woman of some self-reliance and discernment observed that perhaps he was doing a vast amount of good, but that for her part she thought it would be fully as much to the purpose if he were occasionally to bring up a hodful of coal from the cellar and not leave that task entirely to his wife. He was an illustration of the propensity, deeply imbedded in many humans, to seek the important rather than the obvious.

Plenty of men and women here in Winchester are looking all the time for something important to exercise their consciences upon, and neglecting little things which are close under their eyes. What these people need is the enforcement of the truth that he who is faithful in a few little things stands in the long run, the best chance of being the ruler over the many great things. The dispositions to be contemptuous of the small and ordinary moralities is not a good preparation for being loyal to the large obligations.

MOUNT LANE

Announcement that the U. S. Geographic Board has decided to name a peak in Mount Rainier National Park for the late Franklin K. Lane lends interest to a communication written by the former Secretary of the interior concerning the physical features of Washington State to the National Geographic Society, of which he was a trustee.

This extract, from an article "A Mind's Eye Map of America" which was among the last published writings of Mr. Lane, follows:

"You come down the coast to the State of Washington. There we have at one point the largest rainfall of any point in the United States—150 inches. And on the other side of the State is or was a great desert. Land that I could have bought for $1.25 an acre is today selling for $1,000 an acre. Why? Because a little money has been invested in turning waters upon that land and planting apples. One of the apples planted here comes from the Hudson River. The people of New York State did not care for and love this fruit as those people did out there. They have taken the delicious apple as you know it, pruned it, watered it, sorted it, cared for it, until now it makes that land worth $1,500 to $2,000 an acre.

Tacoma, "The Feeding Breast"

The dominant feature in the landscape in the State of Washington is Mount Rainier. I like the name Tacoma because it is an Indian name. Rainier was the name of an Admiral who saw this splendid place. Tacoma was the Indian name and means 'The feeding breast'; and when you see the mountain you will realize where the Indians got that name, because from every side come down rivers which make for the strength, the beauty, and the wealth of the country.

Here is one of our great parks; and I have stood therein with the snow of the glacier in one hand, and touched with the other the blossoming wild flowers.

That State is rich in mines, rich in agricultural land, rich in power possibilities. It has hundreds of thousands of acres of land that are practically desert and that can be reclaimed and brought into usefulness by use of the water of the Columbia River. Frontier Town Now University City

And yet the most significant thing in that State is the State University. I saw Seattle when it was a frontier town, and there was little thought then of its possessing a great university; but there are 6,000 students in the University of Washington today, and that State is only 30 years old. This fact indicates better than anything else can the trend of American life. America has in her mind the purpose to do things that make for a richer country not only materially but also intellectually.

You come down from Washington to Oregon, with its long line of mountains, its majestic river, its vast forests. There is one outstanding scenic feature of novelty, Crater Lake. The top was blown off a volcano, and in the center of that crater we find the most exquisite bit of water—a thing without parallel in color in this country, perhaps in the world.

And there is abundant land yet to be had 'where rolls the Oregon.' We have recently brought back to the United States a strip of land ten miles wide and 300 miles long which was granted to the Oregon and California Railroad, and that land has been thrown open to homesteaders.

Healthful Vigor In Strong Blood

Rich Red Blood Built Up by Pepto-Mangan—Liquid or Tablet

Blood is strong and full of life-giving vigor when there are plenty of red cells in it. Anemic people have little strength because there are not enough red cells in the blood. It is thin and watery. Weak blood makes faces pale, pulls down the strength and leaves the body tired, weak, and sickly.

A course in Gude's Pepto-Mangan restores weak blood to its normal strength. Taken regularly for a while it adds red cells to the blood. Then with good blood, the strength and vigor of health return. There is pleasure in living, with good blood running through the veins. Gude's Pepto-Mangan is put up in liquid and in tablet form. They are the same medicinally. Physicians have prescribed Gude's Pepto-Mangan for years. The name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" is on the package. Advertisement.

Blossom Hill Guernsey Milk

is the Best Milk Value you can buy in WINCHESTER

because

GUERNSEY MILK has the richest flavor of any milk. It also is very high in butter fat content and other solids. The average butter fat in ordinary milk is about three and three-quarters per cent.

The actual November average butter fat content of Blossom Hill Guernsey milk according to tests made by the Massachusetts Agricultural College was over five per cent or about 33 1-3% more value than ordinary milk.

This coupled with the fact that it is the only milk produced and sold in Winchester from a Federal Government Tuberculin tested herd makes it a very low cost milk, quality considered.

LEGION MEETING

700 Men Attended Lecture at Town Hall

There was a big attendance at the lecture given under the auspices of Winchester Post, American Legion, at the Town Hall on Tuesday evening, some 700 odd men being present to listen to two inspiring and interesting talks by Henry J. (Sailor) Ryan and Felix Weiss of the U. S. Department of Justice.

The evening was in the nature of a smoker, the audience enjoying pipes and cigars. Commander William E. Ramsdell presided and introduced the speakers, the program opening with community singing, with Mrs. Nan Fynott at the piano. Mrs. Fynott was remembered by some of the ex-service men as a popular entertainer during the War, as she played and sang in many of the army camps. She was assisted later in the evening by Selectman George E. Willey, who led the singing. Terrance Cullen assisted with his drums.

Seated on the stage with Commander Ramsdell were the officers of the Post: Vice-Commander Marshall J. England, Adjutant Louis E. Goddu and Finance Officer Henry B. Harris. The hall was decorated for the evening with Christmas wreaths and red and green streamers.

Mr. Ryan gave a very inspiring talk upon Americanism, touching upon the emigration problem and the duty of the vast number of members comprising the American Legion in making the United States of America the leading nation of the earth. Mr. Weiss spoke along similar lines, illustrating his talk by humorous and graphic descriptions of some of the phases of his work in examining emigrants and investigating socialistic and enemy propaganda both during and after the War.

ORCHESTRA CONCERT JANUARY 9th, TOWN HALL

Unusual Talent to Assist Laundry Orchestra

The Lotus Male Quartet of Boston, which will appear at the concert of the Winchester Laundry Orchestra in the Town Hall on January 9th is one of the best known male quartets hereabouts. People who have heard the quartet delight in hearing them again and the program in which they will participate has been arranged to bring out some of the most pleasing numbers which they render. Bertha Morgan, Boston's favorite Reader, is another well known artist, and to secure her services for this affair the Orchestra was obliged to engage her weeks ahead of the event.

The committee in charge of the concert is sparing no pains or effort to make it one of the best that has ever been given in Winchester. The Orchestra numbers on the program will appeal to not only music lovers, but those who perhaps cannot appreciate the very fine selections which they will render. In other words, the program will be so varied as to appeal to everyone.

The limited number of tickets set aside for public subscription are having a ready sale and may be had by calling at the offices of the Winchester Laundries, Inc., or request for them can be made by mail.

1921-1922 CLASS PLAY

Activities have begun on the annual Junior-Senior play, which will be staged the latter part of January—a far better date than the one chosen last year, which was so near the holidays. We are fortunate in again securing the assistance of Alice Eudora Chapman, which fact alone, gives assurance of a grand success. Miss Chapman has already been identified with two of our successful productions, and has had a long successful career as teacher of dramatic art, and her method in developing a play is fully appreciated in the public school, as she works carefully with the individual, thereby accomplishing much without interfering with the regular school work. Miss Chapman has already begun her selection of people for this year's production, which is to be a charming comedy of recent phenomenal success on the professional stage. All agree that she excels in her ability to select a cast of characters who seem singularly fitted for the respective roles, and we feel justified in expecting a dramatic entertainment well worth seeing, regardless of the fact that every good citizen should consider it a duty as well as a pleasure to support this effort of our High School, to raise funds for a most worthy cause.

NO FIREMEN'S BALL

Editor of the Star:

At a meeting of The Winchester Woman's Relief Association held last Sunday afternoon, it was agreed to take into consideration the numerous appeals for charity that our many friends have had to meet the past year, and also feeling that owing to the fact that we have been very fortunate lately in regard to the number of claims against our Association, and are not urgently in need of funds, we can conveniently postpone our annual entertainment and Ball this year.

It was, therefore, unanimously voted to postpone the same indefinitely.

"It came upon a midnight clear" Rogers

"A Child is Born in Bethlehem" Hadley
Mr. Chidley will preach on "The Romance of Infinite Love."

At four o'clock in the afternoon the Christmas Story will be told in pageant and carol. Those who saw the exercises last year will wish to be present for this beautiful Christmas service.

The public is invited to attend a free lecture on Christian Science to be given in the Winchester Town Hall on Friday evening, Jan. 6th, at 8 o'clock by Wm. W. Porter, C. S. B., of New York City.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR LIEUT. TUTEIN

Funeral services were held over the body of Lieut. Chester Robinson Tutein, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Arthur Tutein of Wildwood street, who was killed while flying in France in 1918, last Saturday afternoon at 2:30 at the Unitarian church. Rev. George Hale Reed, pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. Joel H. Metcalf of Portland, Me., a former pastor, officiated. There was a large attendance and many beautiful floral tributes. Selections were rendered by a male quartet and Rev. Mr. Metcalf gave an eulogy on the life and character of the young aviator, whose body arrived here from France last Thursday. The burial was in the family lot in Wildwood cemetery.

The Benedict Club started their season Friday night at Sullivan and McKenzie Alleys. Candle pins were used in the matches and some good scores made. Pilkington was high man with a good three string total of 282 with Pratt next and with 281. Pratt was also high man for the night with a single of 108. Fernandez also did some good hitting, getting 279 for three, while Rufus Clark surprised himself by getting 91 for a single. Besides Pilkington the following led their teams Stedston of Team 1, 264; Fernandez, Team 3, 279; Pratt, Team 6, with 281; Carr, Team 4, with 256 and Small, Team 5, with 244. The next match will be held Tuesday night, Dec. 27th.

Miss Emma Freeman of Highland avenue, a member of the family at Mr. Edward Comfort's, will leave Monday for Pasadena, Cal., where she will spend the winter.

The Winchester K. of C. basket ball team was defeated by Wakefield Saturday night 31 to 7.

Our Christmas Greeting

WITH Thanksgiving past we all naturally turn our thoughts to the happy Christmas season. Young and old look forward each year to the holiday festivities. Beginning with baby's first Christmas, when he is too young to realize what it is all about, we instill into the minds of our children a realization that this is the biggest and grandest event of the year. And no matter how many years pass over our heads, even way beyond the "three score and ten," the Christmas spirit still persists, and as the season approaches our hearts are filled with "good will to men."

No more fitting time in all the year could be chosen than this Christmas season for us to extend to our many friends and customers our good wishes. We feel sure that most of you have found more of good in the past year than in those immediately preceding, and it is our sincere wish that prosperity and happiness will be yours in even greater degree during the coming years of 1922.

Let us each do our part in every way to make this the best Christmas yet for others, and in making it so for others we will find that what we do will come back to us many fold, making it by far the best and happiest Christmas we have ever had. Then if we start this right now and keep it up every day, it will grow on us, and if we try real hard, we will find the Christmas spirit in our lives throughout the year, and how much better all of us will be for it; how much better and happier the world and our individual lives will be.

LAST OF THE "TWELVE DAYS"

Epiphany, Originally, Was Celebrated Rather Than Christmas, According to Some Authorities.

EPIPHANY is the last day of the "Twelve Days" of which Christmas is the first. Authorities on this subject tell us that originally it was Epiphany which was celebrated rather than Christmas. It was the baptism of Jesus (or the spiritual birth) which interested the early church fathers rather than Christmas (or the physical birth). In some circles in early Christianity the baptism appears to have been looked upon as the true birth of Christ, the moment when, filled by the spirit, He became the Son of God.

For some time the two events were celebrated together on January 6. Gradually the western church began to stress the physical birth, and eventually the two events were celebrated separately, December 25 being fixed upon as the date for the Nativity. In the East the celebration of the two events continued for some time after the separate feast of Christmas had been instituted. The Church of Jerusalem stood out until the Seventh century, refusing to adopt the new feast. The Armenian church knows nothing of December 25, and still celebrates the Nativity with the Epiphany in January. Epiphany is a greater festival in the Greek church than Christmas.

Such in bare outline is the story of the spread of Christmas as a separate festival.

THE GIFTS OF THE SEASON

Christmas Customs, Wrapped in Dim Traditions, Bright With Happiness and Beauty.

ASIDES the presents wrapped in crackling white tissue paper, bright with scarlet ribbon that will be put into eager hands from Christmas trees, there are countless other gifts of the season, writes Elizabeth R. Kingsley in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. These come wrapped in the dim traditions of hundreds and thousands of years, they have traveled from far away countries, they are bright with the happiness and beauty of long-ago Christmases—they are our Christmas customs.

Christmas carols have come to us from the Holy Land itself, the Christmas tree from the East via Germany. Santa Claus has sped from Holland on the reindeer loaned him in the Far North, our stockings hung first in the chimneys of France and Belgium; even the Christmas cards with their cheery greetings have crossed the ocean—from England. Perhaps the only purely American product is the Christmas turkey.

The First Christmas Card.

The exchange of greeting cards, though now such a recognized part of Christmastide ceremonial, is a custom of quite recent origin. The honor of its invention is claimed for three men, all famous in other connections. Rev. Edward Bradley (better known as Cuthbert Bede, author of "Verdant Green"); J. C. Horsley, R. A., and the late W. C. T. Dobson, R. A. Cuthbert Bede had a card printed from his own design for circulation in 1845, and two years later his printers, a Newcastle firm, put a number of cards on the market. About the same time, in 1846, J. C. Horsley designed a card for Sir Harry Cobe of Summerly's Printing house, Old Bond street. The subject was a typical scene of feasting and jollity. One thousand copies were printed and one of the few survivors sold a few years since for £50. According to some authorities Mr. Dobson was really the first in the field.—Westminster Gazette.

WHAT DID SHE MEAN
Tom—I'm going away Christmas.
Alice—is that so? Won't that be nice?

Old-Fashioned Doughnuts.

One pint of sugar, one-half cupful of butter, two eggs, one pint of fresh milk, one teaspoonful of soda dissolved in hot water, half a teaspoonful each of salt, nutmeg and cinnamon, flour enough to make a stiff dough. Stand in a cool place 24 hours, then roll, cut and fry. The dough will keep a week and a few can be fried every day if one likes them fresh from the pan.

Prompt Settlement.

"Indeed, Cousin Jack, we owe you a great deal for helping to decorate the room for our Christmas party."
"Then, as you acknowledge the debt, come over here under the mistletoe and let me collect some of the overhead charges."

For Youngsters.

Youngsters enjoy working with colored beads and for them a gift of a box of assorted colored glass beads is quite appropriate. These beads are used for kindergarten work and are quite inexpensive.

CHRISTMAS FOR THE POOR

The Overseers of the Poor are making their customary appeal for contributions for the "Christmas Cheer" provided for unfortunate families. The Holiday Season is a time of Christian unity and fellowship and the committee earnestly requests that as many as possible join in the plans for the extension of the Yuletide spirit of abundance to the less prosperous section of the town. They make the suggestion that any individuals who contemplate giving Christmas dinners to needy families send the Department of Overseers such information, thereby co-operating and avoiding duplication, and assuring a more even distribution. It is particularly requested that contributions be made at an early date.

If anyone desires the names of families who would welcome a dinner the list may be obtained from the Overseers of the Poor Department, Town Hall.

Any contributions of clothing or other articles will be called for upon request or notice to the Poor Department.

Office hours 1 to 3 p. m.

(Every day except Saturday).

One of the annual events of the holiday season, and one which is eagerly anticipated by a large group of children is the Christmas Party. There is always a tree on which is hung a bag of candy and a toy or book for every child. Then to make it a real party ice cream is served to all. There are also games, songs and a magician to add to the fun. None of the children who are invited to this party would have any such pleasure at home. In some homes sickness or want of work makes it impossible to provide for the children. Many of them have no parents to care for them. Would you like to help in giving such a party this year? If you are interested in sharing some of your Christmas joys with those less fortunate please send a contribution of money, to, or communicate with Mr. Nathaniel M. Nichols, 10 Hillside avenue; 158-W. Dec. 23

THIEF STOLE NEW TIRES

Mr. George H. Root lost two brand new tires from the rear of his auto Friday night while it was standing in front of his house on Lloyd street. The chain securing the tires was cut by a powerful cutter, and all that was left were the two ends. The theft is thought to have occurred at about eight o'clock.

Miss Isabel Beggs is home from Smith College for the holidays.

It is of interest to note that one resident, Mr. Newton Shultis of Winthrop street, gathered no less than 20 different specimens of wood from broken trees on his street a fortnight ago following the big sleet storm. Although he knew that there were a number of various kinds of trees on his street, Mr. Shultis was as surprised as anyone else at the number.

After the storm, when younger members of his family asked what they should do, he suggested that they gather a piece of wood from each kind of a tree. The 20 specimens resulted. He expects to have them properly cut and labeled, and will place them in the STAR office window later.

COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS TREE

Over 1000 Attended Exercises in Stormy Weather

Rain, sleet and snow did not deter over 1000 persons from attending the exercises at the Community Christmas Tree on the Common Christmas eve, and although many were kept away by the storm, the program was carried off most successfully. There was some question during the day regarding holding the exercises in the storm, it having been previously announced that in case of inclement weather the following evening would be used. The postponement was found to be impracticable however, for many of those who had agreed to sing and who had rehearsed for the program, had made arrangements precluding their attendance on the following night.

The exercises were scheduled at seven, but at that hour the attendance did not warrant opening the program. By seven-thirty the crowd had reached a good thousand, and to the accompaniment of a display of red fire, the first number on the list was sung. Leaflets of carols were distributed among the audience and the carols were sung by everyone, although the school children, led by supervisor of music Richard W. Grant, provided the bulk of the volume of music, accompanied by the cornetists.

The tree was very beautiful with its varied lights of Christmas colors, and the half-hour program was greatly enjoyed by the big throng, which filled the Common, Church street and a part of the Congregational Church lawn.

Many residents went about town during the evening, finding numerous beautiful sights to reward them for the trip. The carolers visited the Hospital and the Home for Aged People, where they sang to the great pleasure of the inmates, and both of these places were especially illuminated for the occasion.

There were private trees in any quantity, all showing through the windows ablaze with lights. In some instances residents erected trees on their lawns, there being one especially beautiful at the residence of Mr. George R. Townsend on Everett avenue. An especially attractive scene was the Gleggery neighborhood, where brilliantly lighted houses attracted much admiration. The residence of Mr. Francis J. O'Hara on Mystic avenue and that of Mr. Frank W. Winn on Euclid avenue, excited comment over their beauty, while there were hundreds of other places which were hardly less attractive.

N. M. NICHOLS IN COLLISION

Last Friday noon, during the sleet storm, automobiles driven by Mr. Nathaniel M. Nichols, supervisor of the schools, and Harry O. White of Waltham were in a collision at the junction of Mt. Vernon and Washington streets. The White car, a Buick touring car, was travelling east on Mt. Vernon street and the Nichols car was going north on Washington street. The latter car, a Chalmers touring car, was struck amidships, its running board being sheared off and its mudguards bent and broken. It was thrown onto the sidewalk by the force of the impact. The White car was badly damaged at the front, the wheels being broken and the steering gear damaged. No one was hurt.

FORDS CLASH ON CAMBRIDGE STREET

Two Ford cars travelling in opposite directions could not get by each other on Cambridge street Saturday night at 7:45 near the Winchester Boat Club, and as a result the Ford touring car owned by Armand Beaulieu of Woonsocket, R. I., and the Ford coupe driven by Maurice Witditch of Roxbury and owned by David S. Winnison of Boston were badly damaged. No one was hurt. The touring car had a bent carrier, bent mudguard, bumper ripped off, wishbone broken and running board smashed. The coupe had its front axle bent and its running board smashed.

WINCHESTER AIDED AT MEDFORD FIRE

Early Saturday morning the Winchester fire department did good work in assisting the Medford department in fighting a hot fire which destroyed the big 100-foot barn of George W. Russell on Main street near the Oak Grove Cemetery. Although the barn was destroyed, together with two horses and many farming implements, the adjoining buildings were saved.

The fire was discovered shortly after 2:30 a. m. by a farm hand. He succeeded in getting three of the four horses out, but one, a young colt, ran back again and perished. Mr. Russell telephoned the Medford fire department, but for some reason could not convey the location of the fire. His call set the firemen out hunting for the blaze however and box 57 was rung in by a patrolman.

It was shortly after the Medford alarm that an alarm was rung in by someone from box 27 in this town. When Chief DeCourcy reached the fire he found he could be of service, although the barn was well inside the Medford city limits. He ran 1300 feet of hose and set the pump at work. At that time the adjoining barn had caught, and it was largely through the aid from Winchester that this was saved.

It was Medford's busy night however, for no sooner had Chief Harvey notified Chief DeCourcy that he could handle the fire alone than an alarm came in from box 47 for a fire in the Usher block at West Medford. That fire was so threatening, and the Russell fire having taken out so much hose, that assistance was called from Arlington, Somerville and Malden. The second fire gutted the Usher block badly, entailing a loss estimated in the vicinity of $22,000.

The two fires, and especially the Russell barn, made a great illumination, the rain and mist spreading the glow over the sky so it could be seen for miles. Many visited the fires from this and surrounding places.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

The next meeting of the League promises to be one of special interest to the citizens of Winchester in view of the fact that it is to be under the direction of the Americanization Committee.

Mr. John Mahoney, State Director of Americanization, and Mr. Joseph Spano, Field Secretary for the North American Civic League, will speak on "Immigrant Education," in the High School auditorium, Thursday evening, January 12th, at 8 p. m.

For the past two years Americanization classes have been conducted in the Chapin School under the direction of Miss Jane Davis. At present there are five classes with a total enrollment of fifty-nine pupils and six teachers. Citizenship work is being carried on with the State course in Citizenship as a basis for training. The State reimburses the town to the extent of paying one-half of the expense of adult education.

This is an open meeting. Everyone is invited to come and hear these well known speakers on a subject which is of primary importance to every American citizen.

GARAGE FIRE FRIDAY NIGHT

Fire in the one-story barn used as a garage by Fred N. Pauline at 30 Pond street called out the fire department Friday night at 8:55 in response to an alarm from box 51. The apparatus was considerably delayed at the centre crossing, the gates being lowered just as it reached the tracks, and holding it up for several minutes. The inside of the garage was considerably burned, although the fire was extinguished by hand chemicals. It is thought the fire was caused by an oil heater. There were no cars in the place and the damage was not large.

GIRL SCOUTS ARE ENTERTAINED

One hundred and fifty children were entertained and made happy on Tuesday afternoon at the High School under the direction of the Girl Scouts, aided by the efficient work of Mr. Nathaniel M. Nichols. Many of the children had neither father nor mother, and the Christmas entertainment was in such instances doubly appreciated.

The children were treated to pop corn balls, candy and ice cream. A real Punch and Judy show kept them in humor for the occasion, and when each was presented with a real brand new gift, their day was full of overflowing. In addition to these good things, the Scouts kept the children interested in games between courses.

WINCHESTER BOYS AT HARVARD

Two Winchester boys, Richard R. Higgins and Arthur J. Conlon, have been honored by their classmates at Harvard. In the recent election of officers by the Senior class, Higgins was chosen treasurer, and Conlon was elected a member of the Class Day Committee for the class day festivities in June. Conlon is captain of the baseball team; Higgins was manager of the football team this fall.

WINCHESTER LAUNDRY ORCHESTRA CONCERT

To Be Held in Town Hall, Monday Evening, Jan. 9th

The tickets allotted for public subscription for the forthcoming concert of the Winchester Laundry Orchestra to be held in the Town Hall on Monday evening, January 9th, are having a ready sale. This certainly manifests a goodly public interest on the part of our townspeople in this real musical event.

The orchestra of this well-known plant has given a splendid account of itself not only here but elsewhere, and while it has been pointed out in these columns that the organization is not in the concert field, it has proven itself to be a musical organization of exceptional merit, and its services have been requested in many places. Engagements of this sort, of course, have to be declined for primarily the social welfare work of The Winchester Laundries, Inc. However, by special request, the orchestra is to appear in a concert here in the Town Hall.

The Lotus Male Quartette of Boston, who are to be the assisting artists, and Bertha Morgan, Boston's favorite reader, will add greatly to the fine program that has already been arranged.

As announced in a previous issue of the Star, tickets set aside for public subscription for this event may be had upon application at the general offices of The Winchester Laundries, Inc. either by mail or in person. The seats range from 50 cents to $1.00 according to location.

MR. SAMUEL F. GRAY

Mr. Samuel F. Gray, aged almost 87 years, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George E. Willey, on Wildwood street, Friday forenoon.

Mr. Gray was a native and a former prominent resident of Danvers. He was born in that town and was the son of Josiah and Eunice (Fuller) Gray. For the past fourteen years he had made his home with his daughter in this town. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Abigail (Foster) Gray, four daughters, Mrs. Lawrence Goldthwaite of Dunstable, Mrs. William J. Richardson and Mrs. Marion Mackenzie of Danvers, and Mrs. George E. Willey of this town, and two sons, Mr. Arthur F. Gray of Watertown and Rev. Francis A. Gray, D. D., of Bath, Me. Three sisters and a brother also survive him.

He was a charter member of Amity Lodge of Masons at Danvers and served in the Civil War with the Salem Cadets. He was a Universalist by faith and a prominent member for many years at the Danvers church.

Funeral services were held at the residence on Christmas day, conducted by Rev. Howard J. Chidley. The interment was at Danvers, where committal services were conducted at the grave by his son.

SPECIAL FEATURES AT CHARITY BALL

Woburn Lodge No. 908, B. P. O. E., will hold their annual ball, State Armory, Monday evening, Jan. 2, 1922. Among the features will be music furnished by O'Neill's full military band, which is widely known and very popular amongst those who enjoy good dancing music.

A concert of exceptional merit will be furnished, consisting of special musical numbers by well known artists of the band.

The Kilties, Scotch entertainers, will present a musical and dancing specialty. "Pettes" an entertainer with a personality will offer a high-grade classical dancing act with a gorgeous display of dazzling costumes.

Following the concert, the grand march will be held in which all are invited to participate, after which dancing will be enjoyed.

At eleven o'clock, the important and solemn tribute of every Elk, the toast to their absent brothers, will be delivered by Mr. Frank Conroy, of Boston Lodge No. 10, assisted by the members.

During the dancing, novelties will be distributed.

SIGMA BETA DANCE

On last Friday evening, December twenty-third there was held at the Winchester Country Club a dance under the auspices of the Sigma Beta Sorority. The Christmas dance is an annual affair of the Society, but this year it was particularly notable as a social success. The committee in charge of the evening was made up of the following: Mrs. Carroll Hilton, Lorna Bugbee, Phoebe May, Phyllis Tutein and Ruth Whittington.

Mrs. Joslin, Mrs. May and Mrs. Page were the matrons. During the evening a lucky dance was held, the prize an old-fashioned bouquet and cigarettes, being won by Miss Georgiana Crawford and Mr. Burdette Poland. About fifty couples attended.

HORSE WAS SHOT

Editor of the Star:
This morning about 7:45 a. m. I was taking my wife and little baby along Mt. Auburn street on my way to Cambridge when as I was passing Winchester place, Kelly and Hawes' team drove out and ran into the side of my machine. The ground was slippery and I guess the horse wasn't shod very well, as he could not be held back. The horse hit my machine at the right door, shattering the glass in the door and cutting the baby's leg. Luckily my wife's and baby's eyes were not cut by flying glass. In running into me the horse broke his leg and I understand had to be shot.

Very truly,
Edw. V. French.

THE POSTMASTER SAYS:

I wish to thank the people of Winchester for their response to the "mail early" campaign, their care in tying and wrapping packages, and also for their uniform patience and good nature during our Christmas rush.

During Christmas week (19th to 26th inclusive), there were sent out from this office to other offices, over 90,000 letters and cards; 213 registered packages and letters, over 700 special delivery letters and packages, and over 1500 insured packages, 237 letters were redirected and sent to their proper destination, 60 or 70 stamps were placed on letters and cards by the office force (paid by themselves) that such letters and cards received without postage might go forward to their place of address.

One letter addressed to "Santa Claus" was delivered where it would receive proper attention. Letters addressed to parties with no address given were looked up and in most cases were delivered where they belonged. This, all in addition to regular parcel post matter of which we have no way of keeping count of the number of parcels received. The incoming mail was the largest in the history of the office, over 100 largest size sacks of parcel post mail were received in one day!

Besides our parcel post truck, and our rural delivery truck, we had one Ford truck three days, and a 1 1/2-ton truck five days to handle the incoming packages. The clerks worked 18 hours a day six days in succession, all day Sunday up to 8 p. m. and Monday the 26th, up to 5 p. m. The carriers were never so heavily laden, making deliveries Sunday the 25th, and Monday the 26th.

The total cash receipts for the month will be over $5000. This is a long story, Mr. Editor, but I thought the public might like to know what their postal clerks had to do this "Merry Christmas" time.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

The Christmas season has been a busy one for the Girl Scouts. Girls from all the troops took an active part in the very successful Christmas party given in the High School gymnasium under Mr. Nichols' efficient management. At this party one hundred and fifty children were given the happiest kind of a Merry Christmas. The Girl Scouts made and filled the candy bags and decorated the Christmas tree. They also helped in distributing the gifts, playing games and serving refreshments.

In Troop 7, Ruth Stone and Lorna Nicholas have recently been invested, and two new girls are just beginning their work to become Scouts. Under the supervision of Captain Mann, this Troop furnished a Christmas dinner to a large family together with clothing and toys suitable for the various ages of the children.

Troop 4, with Miss Downer as Captain, also contributed a Christmas dinner to a needy family.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Next regular meeting will take place on Jan. 9th. Debora Knox Livingston will speak on "The Open Door."

The Art committee plans to hold an exhibition of Antiques and Handcraft on January 25th in the Town Hall. Any lady in Winchester who has interesting things of this kind and would be willing to lend them, may be assured they will be looked out for very carefully. Please phone Mrs. Doane 697.

The class in Parliamentary Law under Mrs. Electa Sherman will hold its first meeting on Jan. 11th at 10 a. m. in the Fortnightly Room.

The Dramatic committee will hold a meeting this week to decide upon a play to be given in February. Rehearsals will begin immediately. The class in Psychology begins the second week in January.

The recently organized Winchester Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, held its constitution and installation on Wednesday evening in Masonic Hall with an attendance of about 250 persons, there being 90 of the 95 members present and about 160 guests. The affair was in charge of Past Worthy Matron Mildred Sanford.

The evening opened with an early meeting, held at six-thirty, this being followed by a banquet served by Schlehuber of Lynn. During the banquet there was music by the Lotus Quartet and by a trio composed of Mrs. Anna Lochman, piano, Mrs. Chas. Hagel, cello and Mrs. Woodsum of Malden, violin. The musical program was greatly enjoyed.

The chapter was constituted at 7:45 by officers of the grand lodge. Remarks were made both by the visiting officers and Winchester Chapter officers, past and present.

The decorations of the hall and chapter room were a feature of the affair, and in the banquet hall these will remain until after the New Year. Winchester Chapter is in a most flourishing condition and had grown importantly since its organization.

CHILD DIES FROM AUTO ACCIDENT

Paride Iunacci, 9 years old, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincenzo Iunacci of 54 Swanton street, died at the Winchester Hospital Wednesday morning as the result of being struck and run over by an automobile Tuesday noon. The child received a fractured skull and other injuries.

This was the first serious coasting accident in this town this season. The boy coasted down the incline from Quigley court, a narrow passageway off Swanton street, directly into the car of Dr. William H. Keleher of Woburn, who was passing. Nothing could be done to avert the accident, and the car passed over the boy. Dr. Keleher took the child into his house for a hasty examination and then took him to the Hospital, where he was treated by Dr. Brown. He was so badly injured however, that little could be done to save his life.

ABATEMENTS TO BE MADE

"Telephone subscribers will not have to pay for the time their telephones were not working as a consequence of the big sleet storm in November," said Manager John W. Wilson yesterday. "Abatements will be made for the time each telephone was out of service. In taking this action we are following our usual practice in such cases."

"In the Boston Division the storm caused the interruption to service of over fifteen thousand telephones. In other parts of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, where the storm was the most severe, the service of nearly one hundred thousand telephones was interrupted. Many of the troubles were cleared in a day or two, but it was nearly three weeks before the last telephone was reconnected and placed in service."

"Restoration of our toll lines is progressing rapidly. Many thousands of miles of temporary wires have been laid on the ground or attached to temporary poles and fences, and our toll service is now sixty per cent restored. It will be a month before we can give complete toll service all over territory; even then the work of repairing the storm damage will not be completed, for later we must go over all this temporary work and make it permanent by setting thousands of poles, stringing new wires, and tightening weak connections."

ST. MARY'S LOST

St. Mary's basketball team learned at last it's bitter result of over confidence by a defeat of 22 to 21.

They now know to their sorrow, but with no disgrace, that the heavy Colonials of Cambridge, one of the best floor-working teams in the State, can come from behind and win even in the last run of play. A return game has been staged between these teams for early Feb. and even though the High School gymnasium is now taxed to capacity by the crowd attending the games, yet a larger gathering is anticipated on the second battle. Next Thursday night, St. Mary's will play the fast Seneca team of Boston, who have already defeated St. Mary's conqueror, the Colonials. Dancing follows each game with music by Cullen's orchestra.

The glass this morning stood at an even zero.

SELECTMAN WILLEY PRESIDENT

For a long time Selectman George E. Willey has been moving in and among the residents of Winchester with an air of mystery bordering on haughtiness which has puzzled a number of his friends; not those however who formerly lived in Chelsea. The secret is now out and the mystery cleared. A representative of this paper interviewed citizen Fred Avery about the case and learned that a year ago George was elected President of the Old Williams School Association of Chelsea, and the twenty-first annual reunion over which he will preside is to take place on Valentines Day, Tuesday, February 14, 1922, at the Boston City Club. It appears that George is very proud of the position in view of the fact that his old-time friends still think a whole lot of him, as is evidenced by the election.

The mystery with which he has surrounded himself has two sources: One, pride in holding the position, and the other that he is rehearsing his speech of welcome to his old associates while going to and from the train. It is hinted that if there be any resident of Winchester who formerly attended the Williams School and who does not put in an appearance at this reunion George may use his influence with the Board of Selectmen to have them ignore him. And as a word of warning it may be well for all those who would be subject to this levy to engage their tickets at once and thus avoid the possible burden. As to the program, no one so far has been successful in getting a line on it, but from what is known of George's ability and experience, it is fair to presume that his endeavors will be to out-do all previous records of past presidents. Under all these circumstances and as a friend of Mr. Willey we plead with the populace to be considerate of him, for we have no doubt that his success will reflect credit upon our own town.

AUTOISTS WARNED OF COASTERS

This holiday season, owing to the conditions of a medium light snow which stops skating and is not heavy enough for skiing or snowshoeing has resulted in more coasting than usual. The snow not being heavy enough to properly cover the rough fields, has resulted in the children using the public streets. Numerous accidents have already occurred in surrounding places, some fatally, and although Winchester has thus far escaped, all car drivers should exercise special caution to the conditions, for we have had a number of very narrow escapes.

Auto drivers should note that coasting is not stopped on Oak street, Mystic Avenue, Winthrop street as far as Washington street, Bridge street or Highland avenue. When using these streets care should be taken. It has been noted that there is coasting at other places also, and at some places streets the coasters have stationed a companion to give warning of approaching autos. Drivers noting such a scout should look out for coasters.

Joseph Rania, a Winchester Italian, again made a "Christmas Picture" this year at his home on Emerson court, the largest he has yet undertaken. This year's picture is 15 feet long, occupying one entire room at his house. For a number of years Mr. Rania has made his pictures, cleverly fashioned out of bark, real cedar trees, grass and closely woven straw, but the last two seasons he has only made small ones. Two years ago he made one of his pictures for St. Mary's Church, which was greatly admired.

His picture gives a history of the biblical meaning of Christmas, beginning with the birth of Christ in the manger of the stable and showing the wise men following the guiding star, the soldiers in the background and the flight into Egypt. The idea is an Italian custom, and through many years of making the picture, Mr. Rania has acquired many of the little figures and images portraying the history, which have been preserved and used each season.

Lighted candles and burning incense make the picture far more attractive at night, the lights being cleverly set about the picture to show it off to advantage.

He will keep his picture this year until after Sunday, January 8, and anyone who would like to see it will be welcome at his home at 5 Emerson court, near the Washington street end of Swanton street. As he is away during the day, he requests that any visitors call during the evening.

The Scout movement has shown a very encouraging increase during the past year. The three troops in force at the beginning have been filled to the required number of members and a new troop has been started with 28 new boys.

The chief difficulty lies in securing the necessary Scout Masters and a suitable place for the new troops to meet, but with the plans as now laid it is hoped this will be overcome and that the coming year will show the formation of at least one more troop.

DOUBLE WEDDING

A double wedding was solemnized at the Unitarian Church by Rev. George Hale Reed on Saturday evening at six o'clock, when Miss Gertrude Snow of 265 Washington street was married to Dr. Harold Spaulding of Roxbury, and Miss Nettie Moses of Brighton became the bride of Dr. Earl Bowen of Providence, R. I.

Both of the brides are nurses, Mrs. Spaulding being a graduate of the Winchester Hospital Training School and school nurse for the town of Stoneham, and Mrs. Bowen a nurse at the Brighton Hospital.

They were unattended other than each couple acting for the other in the ceremony. The double ring service was used. They will make their homes in Roxbury and Providence.

MILK FUND

The Winchester Teacher's Milk Fund Committee wish to state that it is not too late to contribute to the fund. Many may have overlooked to in the Christmas rush. Up to date about $311 from 100 contributors have been received.

Miss Mabel Wingate was the solo violinist at the Christmas services of the Second Congregational Church last Sunday and her playing of Wieniawski's Romance from Concerto No. 2 was greatly enjoyed. Miss Wingate played with much feeling and artistic skill.

K. OF C. NOTES

At the last business meeting of the Council a report of progress was given by the Building Association and from all accounts, the new building will be ready for occupancy in about two weeks. Many of the members are taking advantage of the opportunity to buy shares and a very prosperous New Year is anticipated by all.

The Athletic committee reported the arrival of new uniforms ordered for the local team and Manager Murphy announced a basketball game at the Woburn Armory with dancing after the game. A complete schedule of games for the new year is being made up and announcement of the same is expected at the next meeting, Monday evening, Jan. 2, at White's Hall.

Tickets for the Minstrel Show, Thursday evening, Jan. 12th, are now on sale at Piccolo's fruit store on Maine street.

Reserved tickets not called for before Sunday, January 8th will be auctioned off on that date at 2 P. M. at White's Hall. Any further information in regard to holding tickets beyond that date may be obtained from Chairman Luke P. Glendon. Rehearsals for the show are being held twice a week in White's Hall, and the program promises to surpass anything yet given by the Knights in the minstrel line. Among the soloists selected for the occasion are "Sonny" Murray, well known favorite, and Mr. F. Thornton, a professional soloist of Boston. Royal McCarthy will lead the "Wedding-Bell" sketch. Tom McKee, the Irish sketch and Jimmy Wall will be the jazz-leader in the "Dancing Doll" sketch. The Misses Lucy Glendon, May Kennedy and Josephine Mullen will do the Bowery sketch in the regulation "East-side" style, and Billy McKee will "solo" for the dainty and graceful galaxy of stars in the "Divine Girl" sketch. The end men are a live bunch and a chorus of fifty "extras" will support the circle. Mr. Glendon will give the full program in next week's Star and expects by that time to have a full list of all who will take part in the performance.

A very successful whist party was held in White's Hall Dec. 29th and the proceeds were turned over to the Minstrel Show committee to help defray expenses. Mr. John Demsey won the foot-rest and Mr. Arthur Humphrey was the lucky winner of the turkey. A whist for the second week in January is being arranged by the committee in charge.

LECTURE AT TOWN HALL

The Parent-Teachers' Association announces a lecture to be given in the Town Hall on Friday evening, Jan. 13th, at 8 o'clock, by Mr. Alfred E. Stearns, principal of Phillips Andover Academy, on "The Modern Boy his Problems." This is an interesting and important subject, and one given considerable thought by many residents of this town. It is anticipated that the lecture will be largely attended.

Free lecture in the Winchester Town Hall on Friday evening, Jan. 6, on Christian Science by Wm. W. Porter, C. S. B. of New York City, at 8 o'clock.

Five Year FIRE LOSS in U. S. $1,416,375,000

Property worth $1,416,375,000, the equivalent of 283,275 new houses at $5,000 each, or more than enough to shelter the total population of a state as large as Connecticut, was destroyed by fire in the United States in the period from 1915 to 1919, as shown by the quinquennial analysis of 3,500,000 adjustments made public by the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

Electricity, the chief cause of fire loss, led with a total of $84,086,471 for the five years.

Matches and smoking stood second with $73,474,348.

Defective chimneys came next with $56,650,915.

Other causes in their order were: Stoves, furnaces, boilers and their pipes, $55,133,181.

Spontaneous combustion, $49,702,886.

Lightning, $39,828,489.

Sparks on roofs, $29,271,585.

Petroleum and its products, $25,910,434.

Incendiarism contributed $21,596,965 to the damage, and miscellaneous unknown causes completed the total.

CALUMET TOURNAMENT

Games Resumed After Week-End
Recess

Calumet bowling tournament matches were resumed on Wednesday night after a short recess over Christmas, the teams rolling on the newly announced ratings based on figures made during the previous five matches. As a result of Wednesday night's bowling team 5 dropped all four points to team 12, teams 9 and 15 split even and team 18 won three from 21. The match of the evening was between 5 and 12, the latter team rolling very high, with a total of 1600 pins. The revision of ratings showed in the closeness of several of the matches, 15 winning its third string by two pins, 18 its first by four and 21 its second by one. Davidson led in individual work with a total of 334 on a string of 119. N. W. Purrington got 333 with 121, Seller 315 with 114, G. F. Purrington 304 with 115, Emery 303 with 118, Hildreth 301 with 104, Owens 118, Downs 111, Tarbell 109, Pitman 109, Brown 107 and Metcalf 103.

BOWLING

In the matches Tuesday night at Sullivan-McKenzie's Alleys between teams of the Benedict Club, Team 6 was high roller with 1026, Fernandez was high man for the club with a single of 112, followed by Hunkins of Team 6 with 138. Rufus Clark surprised himself and the club members by rolling 277 for three strings. Grosvenor had a few practice strings before the matches and did some good pin toppling but fell down in the matches, getting only 192. Team 4 won from team 1, 976 to 972; Team 2 beat Team 5, 927 to 875 and Team 6 beat Team 3, 1026 to 969. The teams are getting used to the alleys and from now on some good scores should be made.

KENYA: A MUSEUM OF STRANGE RACES

His hair is the most precious heritage that can be left to his son by a man of the Suku, one of the tribes of the Kenya Colony, British East Africa, where, dispatches state, the natives of the colony are claiming equal representation with the whites, says a bulletin issued from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

It is unwomanly for the Suku women to have any hair at all on their heads, but the increasing supply of hair passed down from father to son is woven into a great chignon, in which he can carry all of his valuable possessions, such as his ornaments and his snuff-box. This head-covering is the only garment which he deems necessary.

An Assortment of Peoples

The Suku belong to the Nilotic race group, which is only one of the divisions of the interesting inhabitants of this newest colony of Great Britain. We find the Swahili, or coast folk, a hybrid race formed by the union of Arabs who have pushed into the country with the negro tribes, the Somalis and the Gallas. There also are the Bantu-speaking population, many of whom dwell in the regions around Mount Kenya, which was for a time believed to lie in the fabled regions of the "Mountains of the Moon," as well as more of the Nilotic group, consisting of the Masai, the Nandi and others.

Though Kenya calls itself the newest of the British colonies, it is one of the oldest lands of the earth. Theodore Roosevelt, in speaking of his African hunting trip, said that the Masai often reminded him of the pictures of the soldiers of Thothmes and Ramesses made by the ancient Egyptian sculptors, in that their faces were resolute and had clear-cut features. The same noted traveler said of this tribe that though the women were scrupulously clothed, "the husbands and brothers, very ostentatiously wear no clothing for purposes of decency."

From Raiders to Farmers

Reports concerning this particular people have constantly made their appearance in the civilized world because they persistently pillaged neighboring tribes, having decided that they no longer cared to till their own fields, but would get their sustenance by taking the cattle and supplies of weaker tribes, and in this way have been responsible for the depopulation of large districts of British East Africa. Today, however, they are doing excellent work in cultivating the soil.

The greater portion of the Masai now live in the districts around Nairobi. They have perhaps the most definite religious beliefs of any of the East African tribes, praying to two gods, one black and benevolent and the other red and cruel, but they believe that when they die, they go out like a puff. Some of the Bantu tribes, however, hold to witchcraft and the witch-doctor's business is to detect the culprit so that she—for the accused is nearly always an old woman—may be put to death.

Cow Ate Sacred Book

The Gallas, though they are now of little importance either politically or economically, take great pride in their past. They say that they once had a sacred book, like the Bible or the Koran, but a cow ate it, and not being certain about the particular animal, in their search they are opening the stomach of every cow that dies.

The most effective weapon of the Masai and Andorobo is the arrow which they poison with the Acoanthera schimperii, a small tree. They boil the leaves and branches until the mixture becomes thick and pitch-like in appearance, and place it on sheets of bark which they hide high on the branches of trees away from the children, until it is needed. When an animal is shot with an arrow dipped in the poison, it dies almost immediately. The natives cut out the flesh around the wound as soon as possible and throw it away. The remainder is eaten and the blood is drunk. This love of blood as an article of food is common among many African tribes, several of them going so far as to bleed their cattle and drink the blood hot or mix it with their porridge.

The mixed breed known as Swahilis, who live along the coast of the mainland and among the thousand-and-one representatives of other peoples of the world to be found in Zanzibar, have one claim to prominence among Kenya tribes—their language is the one in common use in the Colony. If one speaks Swahili he can find some one to converse with him from Natal to Aden and from Mombasa to the Congo.

NEW MEXICO HAD FIRST APARTMENT HOUSES

The first summer's work of the National Geographic Society's expedition to study Chaco Canyon, New Mexico, where vast apartment dwellings housed one of the most thickly populated and highly cultured communities in North America before Columbus came, has just been completed, according to a report made to Gilbert Grosvenor, President of the National Geographic Society by Neil M. Judd, leader of the expedition, upon the latter's return to Washington this week.

While details of the summer's findings must await formulation to be presented to members of the National Geographic Society it is stated that the results of the first season's work fully justify the belief that the studies in New Mexico, which will be continued through several summers, will rival such expeditions of the society as those which revealed to the world that Pompeii of South America, Machu Picchu, and made known the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes, Alaska's vast natural cauldron, which has been set aside as a National monument.

A bulletin from the society explaining the significance of the aboriginal apartment houses, which are veritable treasure chests of pre-Columbian history, says:

Chaco Canyon is that segment of the Chaco River which is cut out near the borderland of San Juan and McKinley counties, New Mexico. Its sheer, but sometimes crumbling, walls of sandstone rise from its floor anywhere from 100 feet to a height nearly equal to the United States Capitol dome. From their upper ledge stretch semi-desert wastes, making for an isolation which adds another mystery to the bygone metropolis of the canyon's maw: Whence came the lumber to build and whence the water to cultivate the corn, beans, and squash of these aboriginal farms?

From an airplane this gash in the desert surface might resemble a magnificent sector of the Panama Canal. Closer inspection would disclose, however, not an expanse of water, but an unwatered canyon, in or bordering which are a dozen huge ruins that look to the casual observer like remains of giant apartment houses, containing hundreds of rooms, with associated temples or sanctuaries, known as kivas, and lesser dwellings, the true significance of which is not yet known.

More astounding still, some of these larger structures, such as the Pueblo del Arroyo (arroyo-wash), one of the two ruins upon which the society's expedition is to concentrate its investigations, are built after the familiar E-shaped ground plan of the modern office building, with the addition of a curved wall binding the ends of the E projections and forming inner courts. The other ruin to be studied, Pueblo Bonito (bonito-beautiful), is a D-shaped building, with its curved wall 800 feet long.

Archaeologically this ancient Island of Manhattan, surrounded by a sea of sand, may accurately be described as a hundred miles from anywhere; for it is 100 miles north to the cliff of the Mesa Verde, 100 miles south to the ancient Zuni towns, and 100 miles west to the ancestral site of the Hopis.

Within an area less than half that of the District of Columbia there are eighteen enormous community houses having from 100 to 800 or more rooms. There also are other structure types, such as the three to twelve-room dwellings, groups of talus pueblos under the wall of the canyon, in the immediate vicinity of the large buildings, and tiny cliff houses and storage cists under the canyon wall itself.

Then there are circular structures, adjacent to both large and small dwellings, and a semi-subterranean home built of mud instead of stone—the last mentioned found by the Geographic's reconnaissance party and which point to a possibility of other ruins of greater antiquity that will be invaluable in tracing the development of this aboriginal civilization. The existence of these last mentioned in the Chaco Canyon region had not previously been suspected.

If the major groups were inhabited simultaneously, it is estimated the canyon population could not have been less than 10,000. This Indian city lay in a region so unfriendly that even the nomadic Navajo has not attempted to cultivate it. Hence the question, What has happened there? Did the climate change? Were the surrounding arid wastes once fields of cotton, corn, squash, and beans? Or did these aborigines of northwestern New Mexico have an irrigation system akin to that of the Ifugaos of the Philippines or the rice terraces of China?

Was the American Indian independent of any Nile, toward whose delta such an ingenious people as the Egyptians tended; and did he build apartments no less colossal and of more immediate service than the Egyptian race of undertakers constructed for their dead?

One fact is fairly certain, that this people of a period variously placed between the time of Julius Caesar and William the Conqueror had a democratic form of government and elected a governor every year.

SILESIAN COAL CITIES: WHERE POLISH INSURGENTS REIGN

Four cities of Upper Silesia, which are reported to have been seized by Polish insurgents who feared that the bulk of Upper Silesia was to be turned over to Germany, are experiencing real war for the first time since they became cities, say a bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society.

The cities are Tarnowitz, Beuthen, Koenigschutte and Kattowitz. Though they are situated practically at the meeting point of pre-war Russia, Germany and Austria-Hungary—a rather precarious position on the outbreak of the World War—so valuable is the mining and industrial district which surrounds them that Germany took care to keep them outside the zone of hostilities.

The four cities lie within a few miles of each other and in the heart of the coal fields for which the country is famous. None is more than five miles from the old Russian border, now the boundary of Poland; and all are almost equally close to the old Austrian line, now that of Czecho-slovakia.

Of these cities, Beuthen alone is of appreciable age. The others are the direct result of the development of coal mines and metallurgical industries in the vicinity after the middle of the 19th century; and Beuthen itself received a great impetus from mining and industrial development. It is the capital of a district, and has a population of about 68,000. When Silesia was a part of the old Kingdom of Bohemia, Beuthen has capital of the duchy of Beuthen. The title, Duke of Beuthen, is one of the mediatized titles among the German nobility.

Koenigschutte, with nearly 75,000 inhabitants, is the metropolis of the Upper Silesian mining district and may be considered the Silesian Pittsburgh. It lies only three miles south of Beuthen. In Koenigschutte is situated the largest iron works in Silesia. Half the population is said to consist of Poles.

Kattowitz, three miles south of Koenigschutte, is supreme as a coal market. It is perhaps the strongest Polish center among the Upper Silesian cities. Zinc, as well as coal, is mined in the neighborhood. The place was only a village in 1815. Its population is now about 45,000.

Tarnowitz, a few miles north of Beuthen, is the smallest of the group. Its inhabitants number close to 15,000. In addition to iron works it has other metallurgical factories and lime kilns. It is also a Polish center and its vote in the Plebiscite is reported to have been markedly adverse to Germany.

When the World War broke out the Russians were able to push through the German-Russian frontier in its northern portion, but the line which ran a few miles west of the Silesian coal cities held firmly. Only twice was this rich and important district in danger of passing from German hands: when the Russian offensive against Austria advanced to Cracow, less than 50 miles to the east; and when the Cossacks made a raid into Posen a short distance to the north, threatening to cut off the Upper Silesian wedge. On both occasions the Germans realizing that one of their most important centers of munitions manufacture was endangered, drove the attackers back.

THE DANUBE: MAIN STREET OF EUROPE

One of the most significant indications that Central Europe is on the road to better economic conditions is the report of a commission of experts that Danube shipping is increasing, notes a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Economically the Danube is to the landlocked nations of Europe what the Mediterranean is to the countries of Southern Europe. Once the northern frontier of the Roman Empire; later the path for conquering hordes of Huns, Slavs and Magyars, now the commercial Main street of Central Europe, the Danube may claim to be the most important river of Europe, though it is exceeded by the Volga in length.

Course Marked by Human Contrasts

Human activity attains extremes along the Danube's course even more marked than the contrasts along bizarre Broadway, New York. Its waters see the revels and destitution of Vienna and flow by flat rocks on which Hungarian women pound their clothes with wooden mallets and bear them away in tubs on their heads. They pass mills like those of Minneapolis, bear vessels like those on the Hudson, and turn the waters of boatmen water wheels to which peasants bring grain in primitive ox-carts with even the wheels kept in place by wooden pins.

The river halves Budapest and courses by busy Belgrade where it receives the waters of the Save. It carries barges on which families live as they do on canal boats. Grim castles, great estates, and tiny cottages stand along its banks.

Scenery Is Diverse

Scenically the Danube possesses variety almost as infinite. Rising in the Black Forest, some of its waters seep through underground fissures to a stream of the Rhine basin. Sometimes it is pressed between high hills. Smaller craft appear on its waters in Bavaria. In Austria it splits into many arms and forms a whirlpool. In Hungary plains it sprawls wide, receiving many important branches, remnant of a prehistoric inland sea. It resumes a wild, torrential aspect again when it pierces the Kazan defile and the Iron Gates. It receives nearly as many tributaries as there are days in the year and drains an area almost equivalent to that of Egypt.

Along the steep right bank of the Kazan defile can be traced a road built by Trajan early in the second century. Not until recently has the construction of a modern road made the defile passable upon either bank. Recognition of the international importance of the Danube was attested by placing it under a commission in 1856, and further provisions regarding it are contained in subsequent treaties, including that of Versailles in 1919.

Tallest Men in Britain.

According to medical records, the tallest men in the British Isles are the villagers of Balmacellan, in Galloway, a district in the southwest of Scotland. Their average height is 5 feet 10½ inches, the tallest giant being a young man of twenty, who measures 7 feet 8 inches and weighs 308 pounds.

Don't forget the hearing on the proposed War Memorial at the Town Hall Thursday evening, Jan. 5, at 8 o'clock.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Please do not over look the fact that offering to make a bet that you are right, is a poor kind of argument.

The more often a man gets sold, the cheaper he feels.

Sometimes it happens that the proof of the pudding is a Doctor's bill.

Nothing is more disgusting than a young man trying to act old or an old man trying to act young.

The man who continually growsl can blame no one but himself if he lives a dogs life.

We note by a Boston paper that Winchester's Community Christmas tree was ignited Sunday evening. Our poor Christmas tree! Are you one of the odd ones who is enjoying it and all it means?

Our Community Christmas tree, by the way, will not cost $450 as has been reported. Rather less. It will cost some actual money—as most things of today do, but it is our opinion that our town as a whole has already received more than the cost in pride and pleasure.

The recommendation of automobile registrars Goodwin that places permitting coasting on their streets should provide ample protection for the coasters is well taken. Hardly any traveled way is safe from automobiles today and we have already had a number of bad accidents.

We note that Santa was especially thoughtful in his selection of gifts for two of our dominies this Christmas.
Rev. Murray W. Dewart of the Church of the Epiphany is thoroughly enjoying his fine new Essex touring car and Rev. Clifton H. Walcott of the First Baptist Church is likewise obtaining considerable satisfaction in mastering the whims of a shiny Ford sedan.

Although the committee having the matter under consideration has not formulated any opinion, we understand that present sentiment regarding a War Memorial in Winchester leans strongly towards a library building. Where such a building would be placed, its size and design, has not been discussed, but it looks as though the majority favor such a type of memorial. However, when the recommendation for the memorial is made, it will be following an expression of the opinion of the citizens, and if you are interested in what this town is to do in the matter, you should attend the public hearing at the Town Hall, January 5.

The practice of dragging sleds by autos is strongly to be condemned. It has been seen about town several times during the past week, and we doubt if the car driver would be so ready to run through the centre and over thickly traveled streets if he knew the danger involved. The sleds are not seen by approaching cars, which are liable to cut in back of the car after passing, and on slopes and curves the sleds swing out to one side to the danger of being struck by passing cars. We noted that one police officer held up a driver who had no less than four sleds trailing behind his auto, and probably steps will be taken to stop others who are trying the experiment. It may be good fun for the car driver and the children on the sled, but it is a very dangerous practice, and one accident will not stone for the pleasure involved.

FORTNIGHTLY CABARET

There was an attendance of about 400 persons at the cabaret given last evening in the Town Hall under the auspices of the Hospitality and Social Committees of The Fortnightly.

The hall was decorated in Christmas greens, with festoons, wreaths and red ribbon. Ninety small tables were placed about the floor, under the balconies and in the small hall, the centre being left open for dancing.
Each table was decorated with a conventional Christmas tree and refreshments were served by a large group of young ladies under the direction of Miss Ruth Chamberlain. The affair was in charge of Mrs. Walter E.
Chamberlain and Mrs. Irving E.
Gamage. Between the dances an entertainment was given.

The ladies in charge included the following:

THE TRANSVAAL OF PERU

While tear gas, bombing planes and long range guns now commonly figure in European war news, one outbreak finds its way into newspapers which probably is marked by poisoned arrows, maces known as head-breakers and a form of wireless telegraphy which antedates civilized aerial communication if natives are taking part in it, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society's Washington, D.
C., headquarters concerning the reported revolution in Northern Peru.
The revolt referred to is that Yuri-maguas, Peru, a town lying southeast of Iquitos, Peru's great inland port.
Yurimaguas lies in the Transvaal of South America—a Transvaal which awaits a Cecil Rhodes or a Daniel Boone to be its pioneer, the bulletin continues. Spaniards found gold in the fastnesses of the Montana, as their region is called, but modern commercial prospectors are more interested in the black gold, meaning the rubber, which abounds in its forests.

The Farthest Inland Port

The Marañon, as the Peruvians call the Upper Amazon, pierces the Montana region, and its tributaries form a vast network of natural waterways which already are beginning to bear treasure laden carriers. Yurimaguas lies south of the Marañon, along one of this river's most important Peruvian tributaries, the Huallaga. Remote Yurimaguas is 500 miles from Iquitos, whence cargoes are transferred to ocean steamers which must crawl across a continent for a distance equaling that from New York to North Dakota before reaching salt water. To the west the Andean peaks bar the waterway to the Pacific; but surveys have been made for a trans-Andean railroad which will gird Lorenzo, where the Huallaga empties into the Marañon, to Paita, the Pacific port of Northern Peru.

Growing appreciation of this land of commercial promise is indicated on the National Geographic Society's new map of South America, wherein a vast territory, larger than our State of Montana, and bounded by the Marañon on the south, Ecuador on the west, and Colombia to the north, now is claimed, in parts, by all three powers. Iquitos, where the revolutionary activities began in early summer, is held by Peru, but lies on the side of the Marañon, where Ecuador's claims extend.

Potatoes Vie With Gold

Reference frequently is made to this region as the Land of the Incas.
The designation would be more nearly correct were it called an outlying land of the Incas, for the surprising civilization of pre-Pizzaro days had its center some 600 miles farther south, at Cuzco, near which the Pompeii of the western world, Machu Picchu, was unearthed by a National Geographic Society expedition.

Long it was a question whether the people who built white granite mansions, temples, and staircase farms along the canyons of the Urubamba, and probably gave to the world the humble potato, a far greater gift than the gold which the Spaniards sought—whether these people with a Roman love of urban refinements penetrated the plateau wilderness in the region of the Marañon and the Huallaga.

Here geographic explorers were the van guard of fortune seekers, for the expeditions to northern Peru brought back not only report of tribes which had recognized Inca rule at Cuzco, but fuller accounts of the rich timber treasures awaiting development. Tribes now inhabiting the Montana are thought to be descended from those which massacred early Spanish adventurers and thus discouraged further penetration into the Andean foothills, the grass covered plains, and the impenetrable forests which constitute the terrain of this territory.

A Language With Two Words

The murderous Chunchos, terror of Montana travellers, are only one of many tribes to be found there; and the human geographer already has found a treasure store of his own in the primitive customs of peoples who live as they did long before Columbus set foot on American soil. These tribes cover an octave of civilization ranging from the Inje Injes, who have but two words in their spoken language, to several which the the ingenious wireless telegraphy device referred to above.

In each dwelling among these tribes there is a hollowed out tree trunk, with holes of various sizes and at varying distances from each other.
Hence the residents had an instrument with a scale of five notes which, however, was not used to produce music, but to signal their messages in code from house to house. In view of the high and complex civilization found at Machu Picchu it is not so surprising to learn that savages devised a way to gossip, and perhaps to trade, before white men began to use the telephone.
When these instruments were placed in the open long distance signals could be exchanged; and an important use was to rally the tribal warriors when attack threatened. One observer tells about a friendly conversation carried on across the Marañon, at that point nearly a third of a mile wide.

Blossom Hill Guernsey Milk

is the Cleanest Milk you can buy in WINCHESTER

because

THE COWS which produce it are kept perfectly clean. Their hind quarters and flanks are kept closely clipped. Every day all loose hair is thoroughly brushed out of their hides, and their udders are washed. They are bedded in clean straw which is changed twice daily. Even the box stalls in which they are kept are washed every day.

Blossom Hill Guernsey milk is subjected to very little handling as it is bottled in our modern dairy within a few minutes after it is milked from our healthy Government Tuberculin tested cows.

It is bottled, cooled and stored until delivery in the most sanitary manner possible.

Why not have the finest milk that can be produced, when it costs but little more than ordinary milk. A single trial quart will convince you of its superiority.

CALIFORNIA GULF: THE CHESAPEAKE OF THE PACIFIC

The new Mexican harbor at Rocky Point, on St. George's Bay, which dispatches state, is to be developed very soon, will open to passenger traffic and commercial development a rich portion of southwestern United States, as well as a part of the North American Continent on the Gulf of California that is little known and explored, according to a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its Washington, D. C. headquarters.

The Bay of St. George marks the northern limit of deep water in the Gulf of California, and when its new harbor is connected by a short spur of track with the railroad already in existence, there will be an all-water outlet through the Panama Canal to eastern United States for the mines of Arizona. Once, just after the Civil War, the people of the Arizona mines had all their supplies brought them from California by water, the ships steaming down the California coast up the Gulf and the Colorado River to Yuma, and now it seems that the old method of handling their products will come into vogue again.

Among World's Largest Gulfs

The Gulf of California, of which we Americans hear so seldom, ranks among the largest in the world. If it were stretched out inland over our country from New York Harbor, it would swallow up a broad stretch of country from 30 to 150 miles wide back as far as Detroit and its busy factories. It was shown on the early maps of North America as the Sea of Cortez (since this bold corsair explored it first, its depth carries from 600 to 6000 feet, its coast line on both sides is irregular, and in it are many islands, Angel de la Guarda and Tiburón being the largest. The latter island points its rocky crest 7000 feet above the level of the sea, and is inhabited by a fierce and warlike tribe of Indians, the Seris, who, it is claimed, have cannibalistic instincts.

Attracted Treasure Hunters

The Bay of St. George itself is a broad open sheet of water on the eastern side of the Gulf, about two hundred miles north of Guaymas, a town of 25,000 inhabitants, on Guaymas Bay, one of the most beautiful harbors in the world. Rocky Point lies on its northern edge not far from the mouth of the Sonora River. From its shores back into the country there are vast areas of sand-dunes, or los medianos, as the natives call them. In fact, this term is applied to the whole of the upper part of the Gulf east of the Colorado. The name recalls sensations of burning heat, trackless wastes, parched throats, rattlesnakes and other reptiles. Though stories of the fabulous deposits of gold and silver existing in this barren region are rife in the neighboring country, little is actually known of what wealth it contains, as most of the prospectors who have ventured into its lonely reaches have never returned to tell their stories.

The whole of this upper northwestern part of the Mexican State of Sonora is included in what is locally known as Papagueria, the home of the Papago Indians—a broad region which slopes down from the mountains in southeastern Arizona toward the Gulf of California and north to the Gila River and is much the same that the tribe held at the time of the coming of the Spaniards. These natives are strong and healthy, possess force of character, and are industrious and of an even temper. They have almost completely adopted the white man's garments and are fast acquiring his customs and modes of living.

Where Natives Get Salt

On the southern edge of the Bay of St. George is the Salina de St. George, a salt deposit, usually measuring about 325 feet in diameter but sometimes entirely covered by the sea, which is a favorite with the Papagoes. When they need salt, the customary method is to ride to the foot-hills of Chujubaki, perform a certain ceremonial rite peculiar to the gathering of salt, and then walk the fifty miles to the salina in about a day and a half. There is no water to be had between the two places. The Pinate salt deposit, about fifty miles farther north on the Gulf shore, however, has always furnished the major portion of the salt supply of the Papago Indians.

The building of the harbor and the establishing of lines of trade through the Gulf of California will probably furnish anglers with a few more rare fish stories. There is a wealth of fish and a multitudinous variety of fish in its waters. Today these fish which would furnish the material for running large canneries are feeding innumerable pelicans, and other fish-eating birds. The natives and the Mexicans are without skill and the facilities for catching them. They usually still fish at great depths for the jewfish and tortuava and kill their catches by pounding them on the head when they get them near the surface.

La Paz, the capital of the southern district of Lower California and Santa Rosalia, the shipping point for millions of dollars worth of copper each year—both lying on the western coast of the Gulf—will probably profit by the development of the new harbor.

Emperor's First and Last Smoke

Napoleon hated smoking, and was only once persuaded to try a pipe. "The emperor could not manage to light it," relates Constant, his valet. "So at last he told me to do so. I obeyed and gave it to him. Scarcely had he drawn in a mouthful than the smoke, which he knew not how to expect, turned back into his palate, penetrated into his throat, and came out through his nose, nearly blinding him. As soon as he recovered breath, he exclaimed, 'Take the abominable thing away!' For at least an hour afterward the emperor felt sick, and then and there determined never to adopt a habit which he declared was only fit to amuse saggards."

CHINA'S FOREIGN PATCHES

Seven regions, once a part of China proper, which have been ceded or leased to foreign governments, form the subject of a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. These regions, which have actually been transferred, either by lease or cession, are not to be confused with the so-called "spheres of influence," which are more or less indefinite and many of which are not recognized by the Chinese.

What once threatened to be the great international sport of annexing parts of China began with the arrival of the first Europeans in the Far East, says the bulletin. Those who blazed the trail around Africa, across the stormy Indian Ocean, and up the east coast of Asia to rich Cathay were the Portuguese. For half of a century they came and went in their trading ships, but by 1577 they felt the need of a station to facilitate their commerce, and settled at Macao on the southern coast of China. A region of about four square miles was set aside for them partly as a reward for assistance in breaking up piracy in the nearby waters, and has been claimed by Portugal ever since. Formal transfer of this tiny fragment of China was made by the Chinese Government in 1887, and since then has been without question Portuguese territory.

Lull Before Annexation Storm

More than two and a half centuries passed after the founding of Macao before China was again called upon in the name of commerce to give away more of her territory. By that time all the commercial nations of Europe, and the United States as well, were engaged in the remunerative trade. Friction arose in the early part of the nineteenth century between British traders and the Chinese, and after a war in which Great Britain was victorious, China, as a part of her indemnity, in 1842 gave Great Britain the island of Hong Kong, a few miles from Macao. This island with an area of 32 square miles and one of the best harbors in the world was actually ceded and became a part of the British empire. In 1860 Great Britain leased three square miles of territory on the mainland opposite Hong Kong and shortly afterward this too was ceded.

What may be called China's period of "intensive land losses" extended from 1895 to 1900, with five nations participating. At the conclusion of the Japanese-Chinese War in 1895, Japan not only obtained Korea, over which China claimed a protectorate, but also the large island of Formosa with an area of nearly 14,000 square miles, off the central Chinese coast.

A New Lease Every Month

From that time on the political pot boiled furiously among the nations wishing to follow in Japan's footsteps, and at one time the world was informed of a new lease of Chinese territory nearly every month. Germany tried to lease Kiaochow Bay on the coast of Shantung in 1896, but China refused her offer. In November 1897 Germany seized the bay ostensibly because two German missionaries had been killed in Shantung. In December the Russian Asiatic fleet steamed into Port Arthur, 200 miles north of Kiaochow, and announcement was made that it would winter there. In March 1898 Germany obtained a 99 year lease of approximately 100 square miles on the shores of the bay which she had seized; and the same month Russia obtained a 25 year lease to Port Arthur and a part of the Liaotung peninsula, with the right to extend the lease.

Only a few weeks after the lease had been granted to Germany and Russia, Great Britain obtained a lease on the shores and Bay of Wei-hai-wei, almost equidistant between Port Arthur and Kiaochow. This British lease was not for a definite number of years but provided that it was to run for the period during which Russia should hold Port Arthur. Later in April France entered the competition and took a 99 year lease on the Bay of Kwang Chow and approximately 230 square miles of territory on the mainland.

France Enters Field

In June Great Britain increased her holdings at Hong Kong by leasing for 99 years 356 square miles of additional territory on the mainland and additional islands aggregating 20 square miles in area. In November 1899 France added to her lease at Kwang Chow a group of islands dominating the bay. Finally in 1900 came one of the most ambitious steps of all in the acquisition of territory by Russia. This brought on the Russo-Japanese war after which both Russia and Japan removed their troops from Manchuria which reverted to China but with the provision that Japan should have certain economic concessions.

Since 1900 no new areas in China have passed under foreign control, but there have been important changes in the ownership of some of the seven tracts already alienated. After the Russo-Japanese War, Japan succeeded to Russia's claims on Port Arthur and the Liaotung peninsula, obtained an extension of the lease to 99 years. As a result of the World War Japan came into possession of the German territory and concessions in Shantung and claims them for her own.

With the removal of Russia and Germany from China, the seven tracts under alien control are now in the hands of only four nations. Japan holds three: Great Britain, two; and France and Portugal, one each. Japanese Formosa, British Hong Kong, and Portuguese Macao are claimed as unqualified possessions. The other four regions are held under 99 year leases.

Makes Powerful Appeal

SUN-GOD BAALBEK: CITY OF THE

Baalbek, in Syria, which in the days of Augustus Caesar would have been given a full column on the front page of a newspaper, had there been such a medium for the transmission of news, now presents a plea to the public in a small stick in newspaper dispatches to note that it prefers attachment to the Grand Lebanon rather than annexation by Damascus.

This namesake city of the sun-god once enjoyed a position of great commercial importance, as it was on the direct route to Syria from Egypt and the Red Sea, as well as from Tyre to Syria, Asia Minor and thence to Europe, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its Washington, D. C. headquarters.

Though its earliest history is shrouded in darkness, it is certain that at a very early date it was a chief seat of sun worship. Lying in the plain of Buka's about 40 miles from Damascus in a well watered area which forms a watershed for the Orontes River, along whose valley the armies and traffic of all ages have passed to and from Egypt, it attained a position of prominence in the early Christian era.

Cleopatra's Needles

The Greeks, during the Seleucidian dynasty, changed the name of Baalbek into the Greek equivalent for city of the sun-god, Heliopolis, and this was subsequently adopted by the Romans. The city, however, is not to be confused with the celebrated Heliopolis of Lower Egypt, which was the seat of the Egyptian worship of the sun. In the latter the two obelisks, known as Cleopatra's Needles, which now mark the skyline in London and in Central Park, New York City, originally stood.

Above the heterogeneous collection of low flat-roofed mud cottage that constitute the present city of 2,000 inhabitants, the stately ruins of what must have been one of the most magnificent of Syrian cities now stand out as a tribute to the energy and culture of a people, the long arm of whose power was felt throughout the then-known world.

Most of the known history of the place dates from the time when Augustus planted a Roman colony there, as the coins of Heliopolis in the first century show. The temple, which legends among the inhabitants say was built by Solomon, was in reality founded by Antoninus Pius, that adopted son of the Emperor Hadrian whose reign is almost a blank in history because during it practically all wars, violence and crimes ceased, his thoughts and energies being dedicated to the happiness of his people.

Imposing Ruin a World Wonder

The imposing ruin well might be classed among the wonders of the world. Upon a base which still shows the names of Antoninus Pius and Julia Donna, the architects reared the Temple of the Sun, a rectangular building, 290 feet long and 160 feet wide, whose roof was supported by 54 Corinthian columns, the circumference of which was 22 feet and height 80 feet—giants in comparison to those on the U. S. Capitol in Washington. It stands upon a platform on the Acropolis which measures 1,000 feet by 450 feet, and was originally entered by a broad flight of steps, but when Kaiser Wilhelm was engaged in restoring the ruins in 1905 he put in the place of this stately ancient approach a narrow modern staircase.

With the exception of six of the columns, little of the temple is now standing. Perhaps the most remarkable feature of the structure, notwithstanding its size and the beauty of its conception, is the fact that such enormous blocks of stone were used in its construction. Some of them measure 60 feet in length.

The god, Baal, whom the Greeks identified with their sun-god Helios and the Roman with their Jupiter of Heliopolis, to whom the temple was erected, is usually represented as a beardless youth wearing a long drape of scales and carrying a whip in his right hand and thunder bolts and ears of corn in his left.

Constantine used the temple as a Christian church. Theodosius the Great wrought havoc in it, using portions for another church which he built nearby; earthquakes have done their deadly work to its walls and columns; the Arabs used it as a fortress, when they sacked Baalbek in 748 A.

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

WHAT WE SAY TO OUR EMPLOYEES:

In the eyes of the public YOU are the company.

Treat our customers as you yourself like to be treated.

Courtesy avails much and costs little. It is the most valuable asset you possess.

By making courtesy a daily habit, you will not only win friends for the company but you will make yourself a better—and better paid—employee.

Disputes with customers is bad business. Assume, always, that the customer is right in his or her complaint until the facts prove otherwise. If investigation shows no ground for just complaint, make the case so clear that you will preserve his or her friendship.

Remember that the company's reputation is in your hands.

ARINGTON GAS LIGHT CO

D.; Timur the Lame pillaged it in 1400; and the Turks took possession of it in 1517, the prashas of Damascus tearing down the magnificent pillars for the iron with which the stones were bound together. In spite of the misery and misrule which the city has experienced since, it stands as one of the most stately ruins of the ages.

Blending Liquids

In general liquids will remain permanently blended if one is soluble in the other, as, for example, a blend of gasoline and lubricating oil. With emulsions the rule is that the emulsion will not be permanent unless a third liquid is present to coat the drops and prevent their reuniting. When one liquid is not soluble in the other and no emulsion is formed the liquids may stay mixed for a time if they are of nearly the same specific gravity. The greater the difference in specific gravity the quicker they will separate.

Water—When and How Much

Hundreds of batteries die of thirst every year.

Not because their owners didn't know water was necessary.

Not because they didn't know the neglect was shortening battery life and costing them money.

But simply because they overlooked it—hadn't the distilled water handy or didn't know just how much to put in.

We can't do your remembering, but we can take all the rest of the job off your hands. Drive around anytime and ask us to see if your battery needs water.

Iridescent Artificial Pearls.
Artificial pearls were probably invented about 1680, A. D. by a Frenchman named Janin. There are several ways of making them, the commonest of which is to use a globe of blown glass coated on the inside with so-called Oriental pearl essence. This is made from the scales of certain fishes, rubbed down in a mortar with fresh water and strained. This gives a beautiful iridescence. The globules are then filled with white wax, parchment glue, isinglass or mucilage. The glass often contains hydrofluoric acid and oxide of tin.

WHY THE "BLUES"

Just Stop and Ask Yourself,
"What's the Use?"

Too Many People Seem to Take Pleasure in Cultivating Their Pains and Grievances.

Among the selfish, expensive and superfluous luxuries, what are commonly known as "the blues" take high rank.

If we call the halt and take the time to do so, any of us can think of all sorts of dismal things that are really or supposedly the matter with us.

But what's the use? What good does it do? Half the time, when we tell a hard luck story, we are telling it to someone who has ten times as good a reason to complain.

It's not interesting or flattering to realize when we're low in our minds that it may be because we ate imprudently, or slept too little, or let trifles light as air fret us, or broke some one of nature's wise and well-established ordinances.

Just as mischief in a schoolroom or lassitude in an audience may be due to bad air, so mental depression may be the result of a regimen of life that is awry.

It's very easy to poke fun at the conventions and kick over the traces of sleep, and temperance, and three meals a day at regular hours.

It's easy to decry decency and regularly as stupid and Victorian.

But there's a reason.

The people who complain that their own nerves torment them and that life is hard and fate is cruel are not the people who have worked hard, lived soberly and obeyed the rules.

They are the people who said they were having "the time of their lives"— which really meant they were throwing away the time of their lives—the precious time, which is all that any of us has to live on.

You do not hear the workers complain of the petty things that seem to bother the idlers. The workers have no time to cultivate their pains and grievances as if these were flowers.
The workers are busy "enraving on"
in place of those who stop and sit down to examine the bruises and coddle themselves.

Some friends of the world are regarded as towers of strength needing no buttress, and fountains of sympathy never requiring replenishment. If those who depend on them but knew these apparently glorious and limitless human beings often cry from the agony of the heart to open space for renewal and refreshment. They feel their weakness and emptiness.

But they do not visit their discouragement, their sense of failure or their plague of nerves upon their fellows.
They keep their hearts for other hearts;
their faces shine; they are a blessing where they stand and as they move.

It is what we feel for others, not what we feel in ourselves that matters.
—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

"Fraternity" Camps.

Ten little Indian girls from four Oklahoma schools play amicably with their white American sisters in a Y.
W. C. A. camp at Tulsa, Okla. Organized into ten "Indian tribes," with a councilor for each, the campers govern themselves and hold many a pow-wow over the camp fires. A pretty ceremony took place recently when Ella Jones, a full-blooded Creek Indian girl, lighted the "friendship fire" as a token of friendship between the two races. Five hundred Indian girls are members of the Y. W. C. A., and conduct the activities of their several associations in ten Indian schools in Oklahoma and New Mexico. Summer camps form the meeting places for these daughters of our first families and the daughters of later comers to America. Miss Edith Dab, who directs the Y. W. C. A. work for Indian girls, has lived for many years on the reservations. Partly because of the esteem and confidence with which she is regarded by the tribes, she ranks as an authority on all things Indian.

Embarrassing Moment.

I was appointed sergeant of decoration for the school hall. I had a number of assistants, together with some forty-odd spectators who offered criticisms whenever there was an opportunity.

It was a few hours before the play, and I was hurriedly attending to "last-minute" preparations, perched on the top of the shaky ladder. I remember, distinctly, reaching out to untwist a flag, paying no heed to the "that-a-girl" and "go-to-its" of the onlookers, when the ladder gave way under me and I came crashing to the floor. Imagine, how I looked and felt sitting aside the flattened ladder, a hammer poised in one hand and the troublesome flag in the other.—Exchange.

memorial is being instituted by the Fourth Dragoon Guards. A portable brass plaque has been designed, which will always remain with the regiment tablished, in that the names of the fallen engraved on the plaque will be saluted with full military honors once a day by the guard at "guard mounting."—London Telegraph.

New Silverplating Process.

More than 100 per cent increase in the output of electroplating vats is gained by the recent discovery of an English metallurgist. The method of applying the new process, as used at Sheffield in silverplating, is merely to add potassium carbonate to the plating bath, instead of neutralizing that already present by introducing barium cyanide, as is ordinarily the practice. The silver deposit obtained the new way is declared to equal, if not surpass, in quality any accomplished by the old method.—Popu-
